SAIGON (UPI) — Small groups of American airmen in faded green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps are back in South Vietnam, leaving the country only briefly every four days to comply with the letter, if not the spirit, of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

The airmen are reorganizing a supply system for critical spare parts that has lapsed into chaos in the two years since American GIs left. U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a Catch-22 end-run around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C-141 transport jet flies the men to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning, an overnight hop of 2,000 miles.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out. "Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese Air Force) straighten itself out."

American sources in Saigon denied the airmen's presence violated the Paris agreement.

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement."

"This is no more of a ceasefire violation than the provision which requires us to fulfill our obligations. There have been several teams such as this coming in and there will be more," the source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen, of questionable legality at best, underlines how South Vietnam still depends on U.S. military supplies and technical know-how.

The United States provides all of South Vietnam's military needs, from items that cost thousands of dollars to 35-cent washers needed to keep helicopters flying. Recent figures showed the economically strapped Saigon government had

CTA funds issue splits RTA board

by STEVE FORSYTH

The rift between city and suburban board members of the Regional Transportation Authority widened Wednesday in a dispute over a move to funnel money directly to the Chicago Transit Authority without RTA board approval.

City board member Nicholas Bosen introduced a resolution that would have allowed himself and new chairman Milton Pikarsky to agree to the terms of a $5 million joint donation from the city and the County Board. His action would have skirted full board approval and allowed the city a $3 million donation to go directly to the CTA.

"You've started to destroy a working relationship between the city and the suburban members," said board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "You've put our chairman on the spot in his first meeting."

THE $5 MILLION donation is required in the RTA law before any money can be given to the CTA, so a $9.3 million grant approved by the board more than a month ago has been held up pending the agreement. The County Board has approved a $2 million contribution and the city will provide the rest, but a formal agreement has not been signed.

Bosen introduced the resolution although the proposed agreement was not

Rights-of-way must be obtained

Lake-Cook Rd. work facing legal delays

Plans to begin construction in autumn on Lake-Cook Road improvements in Buffalo Grove are threatened with delay because of difficulties in obtaining rights-of-way, a County Highway Dept. spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman, Francine B. Stuart, Tuesday said officials did not foresee delays in the autumn start of construction despite the right-of-way acquisition difficulties. She said, however, that she "found out differently" Wednesday.

She was unable to say how long condemnation would take if it is required, saying offers have only recently been sent to property owners between Arlington Heights and McHenry roads, the Buffalo Grove boundaries of the project.

Originally, she said officials' only concern was whether delays may have pushed the work back a few months. She said she learned Wednesday from officials that rights agreements could cause delays.

THE COUNTY HIGHWAY department is widening and extending Lake-Cook road from the Edens Expressway, in Highland Park to Ill. Rte. 59 in Barrington. Work is underway on the $3 million project in Northfield Township between the Edens and Waukegan Road.

Improvements are about 9 per cent complete, she said as crews are working their way west.

Essentially, the road will follow the Lake-Cook county line although it will be widened and realigned in some spots.

When finished, Lake-Cook Road will be a major east-west highway through several north and northwest suburbs.

Last year, Buffalo Grove gave the county right-of-way to realign the road around the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Wheeling man killed as gas truck explodes

A Wheeling man was killed late Tuesday when the gasoline tanker truck he was driving left the road, rolled over and exploded on U.S. Rte. 14 near Woodstock.

McHenry County Sheriff's Police said Daniel T. Ulrich, 32, of 931 Blaze Tr., apparently was driving west on Rte. 14 near Dunham Road when he lost control of the truck and it rolled into a ditch on the north side of the road. The tanker, carrying 7,000 gallons of gasoline, burst into flames and exploded.

Police are investigating to determine the cause of the crash. There apparently were no witnesses, they said.

Firemen from the Woodstock Rural Fire Dept., Crystal Lake and Harvard fought the blaze for more than two hours before bringing it under control.

The road was closed for six hours early Wednesday while work crews repaired the pavement and cleaned up the remainder of the gasoline. Police said the pavement was damaged by the intense heat and they feared the standing gasoline would pose a hazard to passing motorists.

Supreme Court to hear Palwaukee Airport case

by JOE FRANZ

The Illinois Supreme Court next May will consider attempts by Wheeling and Cook County to regulate runway length and aircraft weight at Palwaukee Airport, a village official said Wednesday.

A ruling by the high court will decide whether the county and village have the right to place restrictions on airport operations.

The Circuit Court has ruled that the Federal Aviation Administration, not the village or county, has jurisdiction. The ruling was upheld by the Illinois Appellate Court.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said Wednesday the village and county have until Feb. 28 to submit written arguments of its case to the court. After that Palwaukee officials will have 35 days to file a response, he said.

THE VILLAGE and county then will be given 14 days to file a reply before the court sets a date for oral arguments. "I think the Illinois Supreme Court will consider the matter during its May term," Hamer said.

The attorney said the village will attempt to have the lower court decisions overturned because of recent correspondence from the FAA which states the agency has no right to regulate aircraft weights and runways at private airports.

"The lower courts have ruled that the village and county have no jurisdiction over local airports," Hamer said. "The critical consideration is who has jurisdiction, the FAA or the county where the airport is located."

The village and county have maintained since the outset of the legal battle that they have the right to control runways and aircraft weights because of zoning agreements made when the runways were extended in 1963.

WILLIAM ROGERS, chairman of Wheeling's Palwaukee Steering Committee, said Palwaukee was given permission to extend its northwest-southeast runway with the requirement that the airport comply with all FAA and state regulations.

The county permit, he said, restricts the length of the airport's runway and sets a maximum weight for aircraft landing at the airport. The steering committee contends the current length of the runway and the weight of aircraft landing at the airport pose a danger to passengers and to residents living in the path of the runway approach.

Rogers said the airport does not comply with FAA regulations and the appeal to the high court will attempt to force Palwaukee to limit operations on its northwest-southeast runway so it complies with all federal and county regulations.

The lower courts have ruled they do not have the authority to enforce FAA regulations. The previous rulings said that only the FAA can enforce its regulations.

Sticker deadline wins extensions

Cook County, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have extended deadlines for buying vehicle stickers until March 1 to conform to the new 1975 state license-plate deadline announced by Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

Officials of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove said Wednesday their communities would stick to the Feb. 15 deadline. In Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, no decision had been made Wednesday on extending vehicle license deadlines.

Howlett announced the new midnight March 1 deadline for state license plates because of delays in processing of applications.

'Real' winter may be here

Snow was fun if you didn't have to work.

It's been a milder winter than most, but Wednesday's two-inch snowfall and Thursday's prediction of colder weather and more precipitation may change all that.

The slippery and hazardous driving conditions Wednesday will continue as temperatures are expected to remain below freezing today. Snow flurries and northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 m.p.h. and gusting probably will make driving difficult.

The high temperature Thursday will be in the low- or mid-20s, according to the weather bureau, with the low mark expected to be about 5 degrees above zero Thursday night.

Friday also is expected to be cold with temperatures remaining in the 20s.

Book-ban figure may get school job

The West Virginia school superintendent who gained national prominence last autumn when he became involved in a "ban-the-book" protest by parents may be considered for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 superintendency. The name of Kenneth Underwood was submitted by Judy Zanca, a Dist. 59 board member, to be considered for the vacancy created by the forced resignation of James Ervitt in December. Underwood, 46, was superintendent of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 from 1964-66. He resigned his post as superintendent of the Kanawha County, W. Va., school system after a stormy battle with parents over the use of textbooks some parents labeled obscene and immoral. Underwood was out of town Wednesday and unavailable for comment.

Airport battle to high court

The Illinois Supreme Court will consider attempts by Wheeling and Cook County to regulate runway length and aircraft weight at Palwaukee Airport in May, a village official said Wednesday. A Circuit Court judge has ruled that the Federal Aviation Administration, not the village or the county, has jurisdiction. The ruling was upheld by the Illinois Appellate Court. The owner of the airport, George Priester, said Wednesday he will continue to fight the village and county. "I just think it's a shame that the people of Wheeling are paying to keep this thing going," he said.

ICC studies utility service

Complaints about the quality of water and sewer service provided by Citizens Utilities Co. have prompted a study by the Illinois Commerce Commission. The ICC is looking into the quality of service in addition to considering the firm's request for a 38 per cent rate hike for sewer service. Citizens services some 2,350 homes in Mount Prospect and another 500 in unincorporated Wayciden Park near Des Plaines.

Slick roads cause crashes

Slippery road conditions caused numerous accidents Wednesday night, mostly minor. "We've had a bunch of them," a Schaumburg police spokesman said. Extra men were called on duty in some suburbs and salt trucks were ordered out. Injuries were reported in accidents at Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck roads in Prospect Heights, and at Palatine Road and Elmwood Avenue in Palatine. State police reported "numerous minor accidents" on state highways.

Better protection sought

Residents of three northern Palatine Township subdivisions will meet tonight with Sheriff's Police to demand more police protection in their area. Residents of the English Valley, Pepper Tree Farms and Heatherlea subdivisions say more regular police patrol is needed. Their concern was prompted by the booting and rape of a woman Friday night in the garage of her home in the English Valley subdivision.

Mental health funds asked

A township tax levy for mental health is being requested by officials of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center in Elk Grove Village. Center officials have asked Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships to include a levy in their 1975-76 budgets that would provide about $50,000 each for mental health. Center officials say the money, along with federal revenue-sharing funds from the townships, is an important factor in building a $600,000 center in the next few years. Township officials have not acted on the request.

submitted to the board's attorney, and he was criticized by city and suburban board members for his methods.

Board member Joseph Tecson of Riverside joined in the objections. "The thrust of my reasons relates only to the strengthening of the RTA board," he said. "Earmarking money is in violation of the comprehensive spirit of the (RTA) act. It serves no purpose to earmark $3 million in a budget that could exceed $200 million."

Suburban board members mentioned that the $25 million in approved emergency grants to the CTA was carried by the strength of suburban votes, because two city board members abstained or voted against every grant recommendation. "We have demonstrated publicly in grants to assist the CTA that the four suburban members are going out of their way to help the CTA," Tecson said.

BOSEN DEFENDED his action by saying, "Money raised in the city should go to the CTA and money raised in the county should go to the RTA."

"I don't feel I have to accommodate Republican or Democratic members of the county board, or the corporate counsel of the city," Baldino said in an angry outburst. "I represent all the people. You're dealing with less than a full deck in this proposal today," he told Bosen.

The issue was tabled at the request of Baldino, although Bosen and James Kemp of Chicago opposed the action.

Pikarsky said the issue would be reconsidered at a later board meeting, probably after he has a chance to talk to Baldino and Bosen together. "I think some of it (the dissension) is letting off a little steam," Pikarsky said after the meeting. "They're all good board members."

South Vietnam still relying on U.S. supplies, knowhow

about $175 million of its own, far from enough to finance a war.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu says if he doesn't get the $300 million additional military aid President Ford has asked from an unwilling Congress, 1975 will be "very dangerous."

Congress cut the administration's original $1.4 billion aid request for the year ending June 30 in half, providing $700 million. American officials cut out expensive planes and tanks and spent most of it on ammunition and fuel.

From intelligence reports that rely heavily on reconnaissance photography, Pentagon officials believe Hanoi is receiving between $1.2 and $1.3 billion in economic and military aid this year from Russia and China.

Two months ago the level of fighting in South Vietnam increased. The Saigon government suffered some reverses, but more than held its own in other areas. Both South Vietnamese and Western sources believe the North Vietnamese will continue attacks on an increased level, but short of an all-out offensive.

South Vietnamese troops have also launched some offensive operations in recent days, particularly in the northern part of the country, digging into fuel and ammunition stockpiles, which could lead to shortages some time in the future.

On the Saigon political front, meanwhile, a former South Vietnamese chief of state called for the ouster of President Nguyen Van Thieu at a lunar New Year lawn party for opposition leaders. Retired Lt. Gen. Duong Minh, who lost to Thieu in the last presidential election, told anti-government Buddhist, Catholic and political leaders:

"Either the tyrannical government must step back to let the people advance in freedom, democracy and establish the political structures necessary for national reconciliation and concord, or everything will collapse."

On the battlefields: Cambodia pro-Communist Khmer rebels infiltrated the Prey Sala village skirting Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport, but were driven out by peasants fighting back with household utensils, military sources said.

In South Vietnam, official figures show 168 Communist troops were killed during the 24 hours ending at dawn Wednesday losses were put at 36 killed and 164 wounded.

World unrest: State of emergency declared in Lima

From Herald news services

The military government of Peru crushed a police strike with tanks Wednesday and then declared a state of emergency in Lima to combat students who rampaged through the streets rioting, looting and setting fires that turned sections of downtown Lima into a smoking inferno.

An unknown number of soldiers and policemen were casualties when tanks smashed into police barracks before dawn. When student rioting then erupted, the government of President Juan Valasco Alvarado placed local government units under direct military rule and suspended constitutional rights.

It was the worst outbreak of violence since Alvarado came to power in a coup d'etat in 1968.

Witnesses said many policemen were wounded in a pre-dawn military assault on police stations and ambulances filled with wounded raced along the city streets all day.

Just below the sixth-floor office of UPI in downtown Lima, tanks and troops fired teargas grenades and recoilless rifle machine gun rounds over the heads of rioters Wednesday afternoon.

Throughout Lima groups of students looted stores, overturned and burned autos, stoned buses and sometimes charged army soldiers in jeeps.

Thick columns of smoke from the burning buildings and cars rose over the downtown area.

Thousands of troops in action at Asmara

The Ethiopian government poured thousands of troop reinforcements into action Wednesday against Eritrean rebels around Asmara as the exodus of foreign nationals from the beleaguered city picked up speed.

The fighting moved away from Asmara, where the Ethiopian government declared peace restored, into scrubland north of the provincial capital, where the rebels are entrenched.

Military sources said about 2,000 troops were airlifted into Asmara, raising the garrison strength to about 19,000.

Israeli night club hit by guerrillas

Palestinian guerrillas said Wednesday they staged a midnight grenade and machine gun attack on an Israeli coastal night club that killed or wounded more than two dozen persons.

"One of our special units launched a grenade and machine gun attack on an Israeli night club in Netanya, frequented by Zionist intelligence officers," said a statement from the extremist guerrilla group Popular Struggle Front.

"A number of enemy intelligence officers were killed, others wounded and the club suffered heavy damage," the statement said.

Ford: reconsider aid to Turkey

President Ford urged Congress Wednesday to reconsider its order ending military aid to Turkey at midnight. In a statement issued by the White House in his name, Ford said the action will damage Western security interests. He added "The administration will comply fully with the law."

Also during the day, Ford told Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto the United States will provide that drought stricken country with as much food aid as possible and also may end the U.S. military aid ban.

National Guard troops remained on the scene and armored personnel carriers were still in place Wednesday at the abbey in Gresham, Wis., which was forcibly held by Menominee Indians for 34 days. Guard officials said they expected the security for the novitiate would be turned over to local law enforcement officers by the end of the week and the remaining guardsmen would go home.

Tower chief: TWA crash was crew's fault

The control tower chief at Dulles International Airport indicated Wednesday the blame for the December crash of TWA Flight 514 lay with the crew of the jetliner. "There was disagreement in the cockpit, and somebody lost," Robert P. Logan told a National Transportation Safety Board inquiry. Logan also rejected testimony by other witnesses at the inquiry that confusion exists between pilots and radar controllers over FAA regulations.

GSA cites energy savings

The General Services Administration said Wednesday strict adherence to lower speed limits and a cut in mileage traveled helped save the federal government almost 2.5 million barrels of crude oil last year. GSA administrator Arthur Sampson said a 21 per cent energy savings accrued through federal workers traveling at 55 miles per hour, lowering thermostats in winter and limiting air conditioning in summer, carpooling, replacing 2 million fluorescent light tubes with regular bulbs, and reducing miles traveled by 15 per cent.

Three gunmen, wearing ski masks and armed with shotguns, robbed the drive-in facility of the Northwest National Bank of Chicago of about $130,000 Wednesday. FBI agents called it the biggest bank robbery in the Chicago area in the last 10 years. No shots were fired during the robbery, and police said no one was injured. The getaway car, which was recovered later, had been reported stolen. There have been no arrests.

Ford working to sustain veto

90-day oil tax delay passes House

From Herald news services

The House voted Wednesday to block for 90 days President Ford's $3 per barrel fee on imported oil.

Ford, anticipating eventual congressional passage of the delay in his price-raising fee, began a campaign to assure enough votes to sustain a veto.

The delayed legislation now goes to the Senate where Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., is opposed to it and where a filibuster against it is probable. Eventual passage is likely, however.

Democrats — except for some oil-state members — supported the delay while most Republicans opposed it. House GOP leader John Rhodes, in what appeared to be a veiled threat, told his Republican colleagues, "This is a very important vote . . . for those of us on this side of the aisle to shape up."

There is every indication Ford considers this issue one of the most important showdowns of his presidency.

Meanwhile, Treasury Secretary William Simon said there must be some slack in the economy for years to come "to ensure that inflation can be squeezed out gradually."

To attempt to push the economy back to full capacity at breakneck speed without regard to the inflationary consequences . . . is the wrong path to travel because it would not work," Simon told Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

Simon's statement came as the White House said President Ford intends to

Shipping magnate Onassis in oxygen tent

ATHENS (UPI) — Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, suffering from a muscular disease, was put in an oxygen tent Wednesday because of difficulty in swallowing and breathing, friends of his family said.

The same sources said Onassis, stricken with myasthenia gravis which debilitates the muscles, was fighting for his life with his wife, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, and his daughter Christina at his bedside.

An official family spokesman, however, said Onassis has influenza and showed some improvement Wednesday.

"Mr. Onassis showed some improvement today and if necessary we can always fly him to the best hospital for his case," said Ioannis Georgakis, a medical professor, close friend and legal adviser of Onassis.

Georgakis said the 69-year-old multimillionaire caught a cold a few days ago, complicated by a virus infection, "but he does not seem to be in danger."

Dr. Isidor Rosenfeld, a New York heart specialist who flew from New York Monday with Mrs. Onassis, left Greece Wednesday, according to the receptionist of the suburban hotel where he stayed during his brief visit. He left Onassis in the care of four Greek physicians, family friends said.

Rosenfeld, Onassis' friend and longtime personal physician, advised he not be moved for at least two days, according to the shipping magnate's brother-in-law, Nicos Konialidis.

Asked by newsmen whether Onassis, who has had mild heart trouble in past, had suffered a heart attack, Konialidis said, "It is only a bad flu but because of his age, he must take special care of his heart."

Goldwater says 'once around the track is plenty'

Sen. Barry Goldwater R-Ariz., said in Chicago Wednesday he has no plans to run again for president and that President Ford appears to be the lone Republican candidate for the post. "That's a boy, Barry. Go for the big one," a passenger called to Goldwater as he arrived for a speech. "No thanks," the senator replied. "Once around the track is plenty."

Meanwhile, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas scheduled a press conference Feb. 17 to make official his announced campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. His Senate colleague, Henry A. Jackson of Washington, has already bought national television time Thursday night to formalize his own hard-running but unannounced candidacy. Official campaigns have already been launched by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia and former Sen. Fred Harris of

500 pay their respects to Juckett in Park Ridge

PALLBEARERS LEAVE St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Park Ridge, with the casket of the late State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who died Sunday at 42. The pallbearers included State Sen. John Nimrod, Skokie, (left, front) and Cook County Republican Chairman Floyd Fuller of Des Plaines (in light coat, behind Nimrod).

Nearly 500 persons came to St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Park Ridge Wednesday for funeral services for the late State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge.

Among the congregation was a large delegation of Juckett's fellow representatives and state senators of both parties. Gov. Daniel Walker, who was en route to the services, was delayed by the adverse weather conditions.

Juckett died Sunday morning at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, where he had been hospitalized since early December with leukemia.

IN A BRIEF eulogy, the Rev. Russell K. Johnson, pastor of St. Mary's, cited the Biblical story of Christ washing the feet of His disciples: "He took a towel and girded himself and became a servant."

Johnson recalled Juckett's words when Circuit Judge Reginald Holzer administered the oath of office to him in the hospital for his fifth term in the Illinois General Assembly. "He said, to this effect, 'It is a wonderful privilege to be able to serve your fellow man, especially when you have hope that what you are doing is good.'"

"What did he do while he was here?" Johnson asked. "He took a towel and girded himself and became a servant."

AMONG THE pallbearers were State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, from Juckett's 4th District; Maine Township committeeman and Cook County Republican chairman, Floyd T. Fuller, and former representative Peter J. Miller and Rep. Ray Hudson, R-Hinsdale.

Also attending the funeral Mass were Rep. Eugene F. Schickman, R-Arlington Heights, and Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, Juckett's fellow representatives from the 4th District; as well as Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview; Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights; Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates; Rep. Edward Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park, and other legislators.

Juckett was elected to the legislature for the first time in 1966 and was a former chairman of the House Executive Committee. He was best known for his legislative efforts in the field of mental health.

He is survived by his wife, Janet, and four children.

Senate OKs, sends elderly tax relief plan to House

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Senate Wednesday passed and sent to the House a $40 million-a-year tax relief plan for the elderly.

The measure, similar to one already vetoed by Gov. Daniel Walker, could give the elderly and the disabled cash grants ranging from $50 to $100.

The vote was 52-2, with State Senate Republican leader William Harris of Pontiac and State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, the only senators voting "no."

Before passing the package, the Senate's Democratic majority easily defeated a Republican amendment which would have restructured the plan's grant system.

THE GOP PROGRAM, offered by Harris, would have given the biggest grants to those with the smallest incomes. Harris said that system gave the most help to the persons who most needed it and also solved some technical problems in the Democratic bill.

The amendment died on a 19-34 roll call, however, as Democrats used the majority they won in last November's election.

A companion bill appropriating $34 million to pay for the plan also sailed through the upper chamber. That was the price tag which the program's sponsor, State Sen. Philip Rock, D-Chicago, put on it.

Elderly and disabled Illinois residents who earn less than $10,000 a year are eligible for grants under the program. The exact amount given each recipient would depend on his income level.

Walker has given no indication he will look any more favorably on this measure than he did on a nearly identical one which he vetoed last month on grounds the state cannot afford it.

Residents complain about hazards on new roadway

Residents living near the intersection of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads have complained to police and state officials that the new roadway is hazardous. Five accidents have been reported on the curving stretch of N. Arlington Heights Road since December. State officials will ask for police reports on the incidents in response to a complaint by one resident.

Les Swieca of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation said he was uncertain what could be done after the reports are examined. The speed limit currently is 30 m.p.h.

The curving stretch was built by the state as part of the Dundee Road widening project completed last summer. Ar-

Plans changed to save trees

Plans for the third phase of Centex's Winston Square development in Buffalo Grove have been revised in order to avoid chopping down trees.

Village plan commissioners indicated at a meeting Wednesday night they would study the plans and vote in about two weeks.

Plans for the 500-house development were changed to save the trees, which are on property donated to School Dist. 102.

Originally the trees were to be removed to make way for housing units, but the village's Appearance Control Commission asked Centex officials for the changes to save the trees.

The new plans also have gained approval by the Dist. 102 Board of Education.

THE ENTIRE development calls for 350 townhouses and 155 houses on a 57-acre site near Welland Road and Ill. Rte. 83 in Lake County.

At the plan commission session Wednesday, Comr. Howard Mendenhall objected to the new Centex proposal, saying a shift in some of the housing units will leave inadequate space for access to the school site.

He said a series of walkways between some units were too small and would not "encourage" residents and school children to use them.

He suggested they be widened, but Elmer Hamming, Centex project manager, said the company already has spent $75,000 to change its engineering plans so the trees could be saved. He disagreed with Mendenhall's statement that the walkways would be inadequate.

lington Heights Road was widened to four lanes from University Drive north to Dundee Road and curved west to meet Arlington Heights Road north of Dundee.

One of the residents who complained, Isabel Dinitz, 909 Thornton Ln., Buffalo Grove, said she hopes something can be done to prevent future accidents. "I don't want my daughter going to school around here until this is taken care of," she said.

Capt. Jack Aldrich of Arlington Heights police said five accidents have been reported on that section of N. Arlington Heights Road since early December. Three of the accidents occurred after dark and involved cars leaving the roadway, he said.

on Government Operations, recently said Palwaukee apparently fails to meet several FAA standards for runway design. He said, however, FAA officials have told him the standards in question are not a threat to air safety, and they plan no immediate action to make Palwaukee comply.

Rogers said he is hopeful the congressional subcommittee's report will help bolster the village and county's case against Palwaukee Airport. The subcommittee decision was based entirely on information supplied by Rogers.

Palwaukee Airport owner George Priestor said Wednesday he will continue to fight the village and county in its attempts to regulate operations at the airport.

"I was really surprised to hear that the Illinois Supreme Court agreed to hear the case after the Appellate Court reached a unanimous decision in the airport's favor," he said. "I just think it's a shame that the people of Wheeling are paying to keep this thing going."

Palwaukee is at the northeast corner of Palatine and Wolf roads, near Wheeling.

The girl is 17 years old. She wants to go out on her own, get an apartment, find a job and perhaps go to school.

Like others her age, she needs advice but doesn't want to be told what to do. Unlike most other children, however, she is a ward of the state, and has lived with a succession of foster families. Who does she turn to for help?

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling, is working with the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services in a program called "Transitional Living." It is designed to help foster youths 15 to 18 to live on their own.

THE PROGRAM, to begin March 1, basically provides the foster child a volunteer who will teach him what it is like to live on his own, said Lois Broll, child welfare director for Omni-House.

"The volunteer will be much like a roommate for the ward," Miss Broll said. "The ward will have roommate status, sharing the workload. It's not a mothering situation."

Omni-House will receive about three referrals from the state in March and will eventually work with six to eight wards a year.

The volunteer must be single, at least 21 and living in an apartment. The ward lives with the volunteer, averaging three to six months in length of stay.

During that time, the ward learns all about living on his own. He learns how to budget, carefully parceling money for rent, groceries and other expenditures.

HE ALSO LEARNS to share responsibilities such as cooking, cleaning and maintaining the apartment. He learns the responsibilities of going to work or school, to tailor his schedule so that it would be compatible with his lifestyle.

As a backup service, Omni-House workers provide other services needed, such as counseling or vocational planning.

The "Transitional Living" program is subsidized by the Dept. of Children and Family Services. The foster volunteer will receive financial reimbursement for the care of the ward.

Youths often need to get away from parental domination when they feel they are ready for independence, Miss Broll said, adding that the program is needed because the same holds true for foster youths.

"No matter how old you are, if you're living in a family situation, there will always be somebody telling you what to do," Miss Broll said. Volunteers must be single to avoid a family atmosphere, she added.

BEFORE THE PROGRAM was planned, foster children who wanted to live on their own often were sent without sufficient guidance, Miss Broll said. They tasted independence the hard way.

Omni-House is seeking volunteers for the program. An applicant need not be a college graduate nor have experienced in psychology, Miss Broll said. "We're looking more at the personality of the person."

Applicants will be interviewed and screened by the staff at Omni-House. Interviewers will look for such characteristics as maturity, flexibility and others desirable in a volunteer, Miss Broll said.

Foster youths will be referred by the state. Youths wishing to be placed in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships will be referred to Omni-House.

The staff will pair a ward with a volunteer whose personality would be appropriate for the youth, Miss Broll said. The volunteer will undergo training sessions and meet with Omni-House workers and occasionally a state caseworker in weekly meetings.

"The situation has to be looked at all the time," Miss Broll said.

ESTIMATED RENT for this $100,000 home at 1720 S. Elm Rd., Palatine, is $50 for Forest Preserve employee Richard Morin. The home is one of 105 on district property rented to employees free or at low rates, according to results of an investigation by the Better Government Assn.

BGA hits Forest Preserve for employees' low rents

The Better Government Assn. has criticized Forest Preserve officials for renting houses on forest preserve land to district employees at cut rates.

The BGA, a private watchdog group, disclosed that district employees and supervisors occupy 105 houses on district land at monthly rents of $30 or less. Some pay no rent, the BGA said.

Houses are on property purchased by the district for public use, and are near Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Barrington and several western suburban communities.

The BGA said one employee, Gerald O'Connor, 327,072 head of maintenance and operators for the district, pays only $20 a month to rent a pre-

Civil War farmhouse in suburban Westchester.

DISTRICT SUPT. Arthur Janura said the employees, some of whom occupy houses valued at $100,000, are providing a service by maintaining the homes and watching for fires. He said 40 of the houses are near branch headquarters and nature centers, and the other 65 are rented to district personnel so they will be available to fight fires or handle other emergencies.

The BGA charged that the program is "an expensive way to fight fires" since there were only 66 reported last year in the district's more than 24,000 acres. Janura also says he would have to pay $25,000 each for watchmen at the district's 40 isolated headquarters or service areas, if employees were not living near the sites.

Janura said the incentive of low rent is occasionally not enough, because he has two vacant houses he has had difficulty renting to employees.

He said some homes are occupied by former landowners who were allowed to stay as a condition of sale of the properties.

The BGA charges that the district employees who live in houses on district property use local services such as schools, but pay no taxes. A spokesman added that one employee even uses a repainted and remodeled district outhouse as a warming house for his children to wait for the bus.

Prospect Heights at mercy of 'neighbors'?

Many residents believe problems stem from being 'poor relative'

Tradition says Prospect Heights got its name from a combination of the names of its two neighbors — Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

Today, residents of the unincorporated area in Wheeling Township maintain that most of their problems stem from Prospect Heights still having to take what these powerful neighbor communities dish out.

The taking of the area's name from its neighbors has been accepted and a deep pride has been built up behind the name.

Stories by Tom Von Malder

Prospect Heights. It is one of three unincorporated areas in Cook County that have a name apart from subdivision identifications.

HOWEVER, the community objects strongly to being nearly ringed by high-density apartment complexes and shopping centers and having to accept in Prospect Heights the resulting traffic, noise and pollution.

In the last decade or so, Prospect Heights' three neighbors — Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Wheeling — all have annexed large portions of the unincorporated area and each of the three communities has approved large apartment complexes on the periphery of Prospect Heights.

Arlington Heights allowed construction of the Brandenberry Park East apartments on Camp McDonald Road and the Memco Store on Rand Road. Mount Prospect permitted the Colony Country project to locate hundreds of apartments and a huge water tank on the Old Orchard Golf Course property, southwest corner of Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads. Wheeling approved apartment projects along Elmhurst Road such as The Forums and Pleasant Run.

In addition, Mount Prospect helped turn a 100-acre farm at the southeast corner of Elmhurst Road and Euclid Avenue into what was in 1963 the country's largest enclosed shopping mall — the Randhurst Shopping Center. That project caused Euclid and Elmhurst to be widened to four lanes.

BASED ON THIS past, Prospect Heights residents "fear annexation to the surrounding towns" because such annexations "erode their confidence that the open space will remain," said Jack Gilligan, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. The PHIA, the force for community action, dates back to at least 1939 as a civic organization.

Most residents moved to Prospect Heights because of the area's "openness."

"It was wide open here and I enjoyed the one-half acre or acre lots they had to offer," said Robert J. Lunaberg, who settled in Prospect Heights with his wife 16 years ago. "I hated to see Old Orchard (Country Club) go for apartments," Lunaberg added, echoing the thoughts of many other residents.

Residents of the area are particularly militant about maintaining what they describe as their "country atmosphere." Fences are few and most homeowners would fight the incursion of such "city" amenities as sidewalks and street lights.

An exception is made for safety as in the current effort by parts of the community to get sidewalks or footpaths for use by school children.

THIS WILLINGNESS to fight to maintain openness has been evident in three recent cases. Most typical has been the lawsuit by the Wheeling Road Zoning Committee, a group of homeowners. The suit tried to get Wheeling's annexation of 40 acres along Wheeling Road declared illegal and voided so apartments will not be built on the property. The homeowners lost the case, and are appealing the court decision.

Another example of the same type of fight is the PHIA's staunch opposition to plans to build thousands of apartments on the Rob Roy Golf Course east of Wheeling Road. That fight also may end up in court.

The third example is the combined efforts of the Izank Walton League and the Prospect Heights Park District to maintain the Hillcrest Slough as a nature preserve. The park district hopes to be able eventually to purchase the whole slough and currently has the south half under condemnation proceedings. Park Board Pres. Max Lyle said the owner of the south slough already has plans to fill in and develop it if the park's lawsuit fails.

WITH NO MUNICIPAL government to support them in their fights against developments, residents of Prospect Heights often feel their objections are not given sufficient consideration.

The lack of local government also hurts the community with regard to police protection — probably the second greatest area of concern among the residents.

Police protection for Prospect Heights falls to the Sheriff's Police. There is virtually no patrol of residential streets and the residents concede that patrol is just about an impossibility because of the wide area that the Sheriff's Police has to cover.

'It was wide open here and I enjoyed the half-acre lots they had to offer. I hated to see Old Orchard go for apartments...'

— Robert J. Lunaberg,
16-year resident

"I don't know if we get too much protection from the county police," Lunaberg said. Another big complaint is the slowness of Sheriff's Police in answering nonemergency calls. Gilligan said the wait has been as long as 90 minutes.

SINCE ABOUT 1970 it has generally been accepted in Prospect Heights that only two avenues remain open for the community. One is to be absorbed eventually by one or a combination of the three surrounding villages through annexations. The other is for the area to incorporate, forming a City of Prospect Heights.

Several attempts at incorporation have been made, all spearheaded by the PHIA. The most recent attempt is still the subject of pending litigation.

Gilligan, despite the past failures and the objections of the neighboring communities, thinks this is the year for incorporation. "I think the court will order a referendum. We're pretty sure of that," he said.

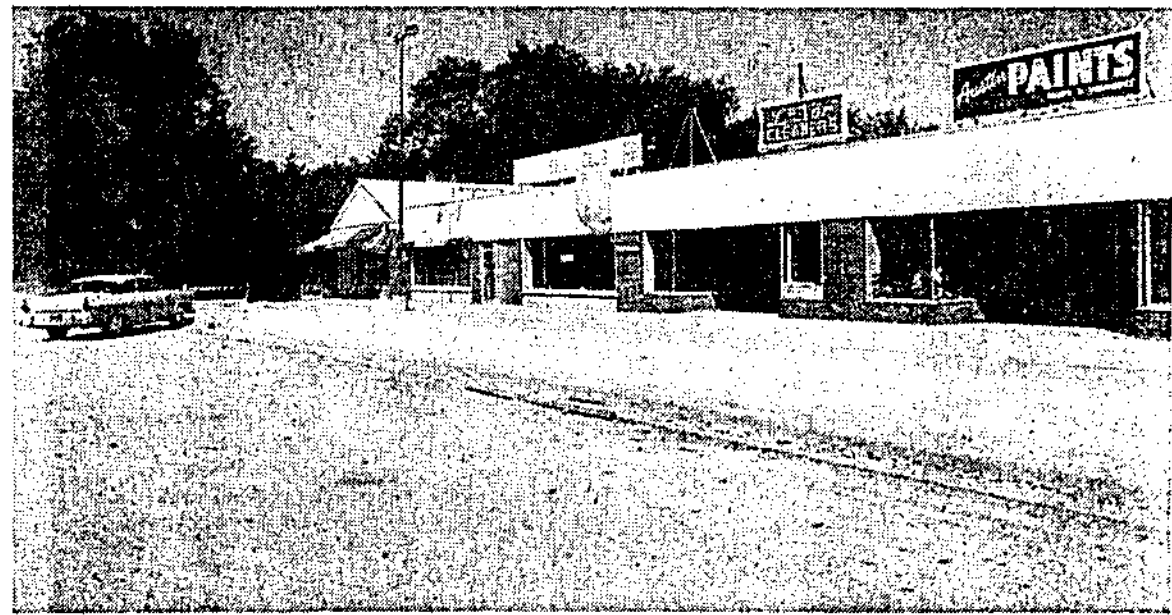

He sees the referendum being held in May or June and passing. Then he predicts a lively campaign will ensue for the various city government positions.

The incorporation efforts encompass most, although not all, of the Prospect Heights area. By law the area of a new town can be no greater than four square miles, so the plans call for just under that limit and include 10,653 residents.

IN 20 YEARS, the geography of the Prospect Heights area has changed considerably, with farm land being converted to homesites and apartment complexes. This

THE SHOPPING CENTER at Elmhurst and Camp McDonald roads in Prospect Heights was the first drive-in type center in the Midwest when it opened in 1937.

This 1962 photo shows the initial effects the then-new Randhurst Shopping Center had on its ancestor, less than a mile away.

Prospect Heights offers many services

It isn't your typical one-horse 'unincorporated' town

Prospect Heights is not unusual for an unincorporated area just because it has its own name and identity. It also has a park district, a post office branch and a volunteer fire department.

The fire department was started during World War II. Area Civil Defense leaders met with the Prospect Heights Lions Club, which also was instrumental in getting park facilities for the area, to raise $200 for brooms, rakes and a garden hose to use as weapons against incendiary bombs.

At the time of those discussions, Lions Club member F. E. (Fran) Foor suggested that a regular fire protection district be formed to protect the 300 homes and 1,000 residents of the Prospect Heights area.

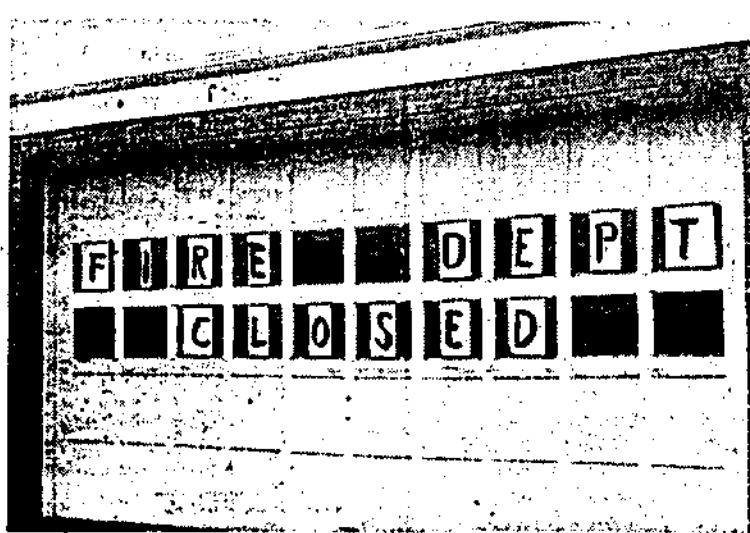

IT TOOK WORKERS less than a day to get the necessary signatures on petitions so that a referendum could be held. The referendum passed and the Prospect Heights Rural Fire Protection District was organized Oct. 17, 1944.

The department's first piece of equipment was a 1926 Chevrolet fire truck donated by a group of community businessmen.

During the years, the department gradually grew in both manpower and equipment and on April 15, 1955, the department fought its largest fire. A blaze started in one store of the small shopping center at the northeast corner of Elmhurst and Camp McDonald roads. The blaze threatened five other stores and caused an estimated $150,000 in damage.

In the early 1960s, a number of disagreements developed between the firemen and the fire district trustees which led to the firing of Fire Chief Foor, who became chief in 1947. The move closed the fire station for three months in late spring and early summer of 1962.

DISAGREEMENTS ABOUT leases and contracts in 1961 threatened to disrupt the department's operations, in part because the fire district owned the equipment, but the firemen owned the fire station.

The 1961 situation was smoothed, but in early 1962 the district trustees fired Foor. Foor refused to leave and when the firemen's association's contract with the district expired on April 30, the fire station was closed. The Mount Prospect Fire Dept. handled calls in the fire district until the dispute was resolved and the station reopened Aug. 1. The new chief was William Andrew.

Most recently, district voters approved a $275,000 referendum on May 1, 1971 to fund an addition to the Camp McDonald Road fire station, remodeling of the old station and the purchase of equipment. Another Prospect Heights novelty was that a house on the adjacent property was removed after a public auction.

June 1973 saw the department get its first real ambulance and paramedics trained to man it. The Prospect Heights Lions Club contributed $3,000 toward the $14,000 cost of the ambulance, with the district paying the rest.

Today, the department has grown to 52 men with four engines, a squad car, an ambulance and a chief's car as equipment vehicles. The fire district is scheduled to seek bids soon for the fire station addition, which had been delayed by a lengthy technical process of relocating an alley easement. The current fire chief is Donald R. Gould, who replaced Chief Andrew in 1969.

$4 billion treatment-plant allocation gives clean-water forces cause for optimism

by LEA TONKIN

Clean-water enthusiasts are encouraged by President Ford's proposed budget allocation of about $4 billion in the coming year for the construction of municipal waste-treatment plants. Nancy Flowers, spokesman for the Chicago-based Lake Michigan Federation, said the funds are badly needed, but it's "questionable whether the actual construction projects will be done as fast as needed."

"The funds should have been released long ago," she said. "Sewage treatment is a major problem for Lake Michigan and other Great Lakes." The cleanup funds were impounded a year ago by former President Nixon. Another $5 billion in construction funds authorized by Congress is still set aside.

The proposed $25 million expenditure for drinking water studies may include funds for Lake Michigan research, Miss Flowers said. As millions of people are drinking Lake Michigan water, she said, the study of carcinogens in the water supply outlined in the Safe Drinking Water Act should indicate potential problems.

Suit charges air unclean

Carbon-monoxide pollution continues at unacceptable levels in the City of Chicago, the Citizens for a Better Environment charges. In a suit filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court, Chicago, CBE seeks to force the federal Environmental Protection Agency to enforce its own regulations within the city. The suit charges that the EPA failed to take action against the city following its failure to impose a Loop parking ban and laxity in a vehicle maintenance and inspection program. The case was assigned to Judge James B. Parsons.

Land-use planning on tap

New developments in energy research, land-use planning and wilderness areas are among the topics to be discussed at the annual meeting of the Great Lakes Chapter of the Sierra Club. The Feb. 15 meeting will start at 9 a.m. at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, Chicago.

Northwest suburban participants in the program include Maynard P. Venema, chairman of the executive committee of Universal Oil Products Co., Des Plaines, and a member of the Illinois Conservation Advisory Board, who will engage in a panel discussion of Project Independence, and Schaumburg Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher, who will serve in a land-use planning panel discussion.

Participants include John Cherry, director of the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation; Stuart Brandborg, executive director of the Wilderness Society; Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club, and Hans Adolph Heinrich, professor at Heidelberg University and visiting scientist at Argonne National Laboratories.

Concern for wildlife grows

Increased interest in wildlife has caused growing concern for the preservation and humane treatment of birds and animals, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service reports. The agency recently slapped one international air carrier with a fine of more than $2,000 for inhumane treatment of wildlife that resulted in the deaths of 151 animals in a shipment of 163 animals. Following the seizures at O'Hare Airport by FWS agents, an agency spokesman said public awareness and efforts by conservation officials are necessary to reduce wildlife deaths caused by carelessness.

New state program offered

Acres for Wildlife is a relatively new program sponsored by the Illinois Dept. of Conservation. The aim of the program is to encourage wildlife-habitat plots on marginal lands. Division of Wildlife Resources biologists are seeking opportunities to meet with organizations and clubs to explain the program. For information, write Dept. of Conservation, 605 State Office Building, Springfield, Ill. 62766.

Venezuelan species periled

Wildlife officials say several Venezuelan animals, birds and reptiles are threatened with extinction by clandestine hunters who slaughter the creatures for tourist souvenirs. The National Guard recently raided tourist shops in the cities of Caracas and Maracaibo, seizing animal skins and stuffed alligators. Species threatened with extinction include wild pigs, alligators, wild hares, deer and various tropical birds.

Judge orders examinations for water-poisoning suspect

A psychiatric and physical examination was ordered by a Cook County Circuit Court Judge Wednesday for Steven Pera, 22, who is accused of attempting to poison Chicago's water supply.

Judge Frank J. Wilson ordered the examination to determine if Pera is fit to stand trial on charges of conspiracy to commit mass murder and bond jumping. Pera has pleaded innocent to the charges.

Pera surrendered in Chicago last week after a three-year stay in Cuba. In March 1972, Pera and codefendant Allen

Massage parlor law clocked

Enforcement of a massage parlor ordinance in Marion, Ill., was temporarily blocked during a hearing that contends the law is "illegal, invalid and unconstitutional."

Judge Dorothy Spomer issued the temporary injunction during a hearing for a permanent injunction. Ginni Yarbrough, operator of the Body Shoppe, Marion's only massage parlor, challenged the ordinance which was adopted by the city Jan. 27.

The ordinance is vague and requires the operator of a massage parlor to be a physical therapist, although the next examination for a physical therapist license is April 24.

Suit on birth record ban

A group called "Yesterday's Children" filed suit in federal court Wednesday seeking to overturn Illinois laws that prohibit many adopted children from seeing their birth records.

Illinois law requires that birth records of adopted children be impounded by court order if any party to the adoption desires such an action. The birth record can only be opened on court order, no matter how many years pass.

Donna Cullom, president of Yesterday's Children, said many adopted children try when they become adults to find their real parents, and are rebuffed when they seek their birth certificates.

Such records are usually opened, she said, only for medical reasons, but even then they are not given the names of their natural parents.

Retarded care out-of-state

Dr. Leroy Levitt, director of the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health, said Wednesday more than 100 of the state's mentally retarded patients are in out-of-state facilities.

But Levitt said there were almost 400 patients out-of-state when he took over the department two years ago, and many have been returned to Illinois.

"The children we have out-of-state are in homes around the state of Illinois, neighboring states where it is more convenient for parents to visit their children," Levitt said.

"These are homes that parents pick and we approve. They're mostly residential schools or homes that do nursing."

Levitt said the state has 82 severely mentally retarded youths in the Carlisle Nursing Home at DeLoit, Wis., and 50 mentally retarded children at the Laurel Haven School in Baldwin, Mo.

Herald opinion

Ford, Walker neglect elderly

This is not the time for government leaders to abandon the people they are elected to serve.

The elderly and the poor of this land are the earliest victims of the present recession and inflationary spiral, and government's priority should be to help them come to terms with these two interrelated and crippling problems.

But our governmental leaders, in a shabby display of non-partisan irresponsibility, have shown themselves to be insensitive to the needs of these citizens.

In Washington, the unveiling of the $349.4 billion federal budget revealed damaging cutbacks in vital programs for the poor and elderly. Programs cut included community health and mental health centers, Medicaid, food stamps, welfare, child nutrition programs and federal pensions.

These cutbacks account for half of the $17 billion cutback in the federal budget. In contrast, it's going to be another big year for defense spending, as an $8 billion increase in that budget is expected by June.

In Springfield, Gov. Walker last week vetoed a $34 million tax relief program for senior citizens and the disabled. Walker has spoken before in favor of aid to the elderly, but some observers believe that partisan politics — his enemy, Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan, was a backer of the bill — encouraged the veto.

In Washington and Springfield, government leadership demonstrated an appalling lack of understanding about the economic suffering which is hitting citizens who are least able to take care of themselves.

Both federal and state governments shouldn't unnecessarily approve and fund every wild-eyed social welfare program. But in these hard times, government is responsible for providing at least minimal help to the victims of the ailing American economy.

There are voices in Congress and in the Illinois Legislature who are speaking out against these cutbacks, and we support them. Ford's social welfare cutbacks may be overruled by Congress, and another aid to the elderly bill is being proposed in Springfield.

These Congressmen and legislators are in touch with the real needs of recession-plagued America. They show a better understanding about our country at this point in its history than do Gerald Ford and Daniel Walker.

We back participation

The Herald recently urged broader involvement in local elections. Now it's time to urge some of those already involved to tone down some of the illogical rhetoric.

In Arlington Heights, for example, a significant "issue" is whether one of the candidates for village president is guilty of the awful crime of spending election nights at the Democratic Party's Chicago headquarters.

The accused candidate is village president hopeful David Griffin. It's feared by some in the village that Griffin may lead a "Democratic take-over" of that community.

But if the accusations against Griffin were true the denies the election night charge, and asserts he's an Independent), the man should be commended for participating in our all-too-often neglected political system.

Most of us contribute to the neglect by watching "Rhoda" and "Maude" rather than by participating in politics. Indeed, a current U.S. Census Dept. survey shows that even fewer Americans voted last year than in past low-turnout election years.

Political involvement of any sort is to be commended, not to be rejected as a "take-over." Candidates should be judged on their abilities, not on rumors about their political preferences. If we're going to elect the best possible local officials in April, open-mindedness and not partisanship are the best guidelines.

Ambulance law needed

It's been slightly more than a year since the Pettie ambulance tragedy in Elk Grove Township, and we're pleased to see that one state Senator has not forgotten it.

David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has resubmitted to the Legislature a bill designed to extend emergency ambulance service and fire protection to all unincorporated areas of the state. The bill would give townships authority to levy a tax in those areas to cover the cost of the emergency services.

Regner's bill is a good method of preventing a recurrence of last year's tragedy, in which immediate ambulance service from Elk Grove Village was denied to Mrs. Jean Pettie, who died en route to a hospital in another ambulance. It's the kind of legislation that tries to make certain that human life comes first in the State of Illinois.

Warns Congress to be careful

Rocky discards low profile

by CLAY F. RICHARDS

WASHINGTON — Nelson A. Rockefeller has dropped his self-imposed low profile image as vice president.

Surprisingly, Rockefeller's first major power move as the 41st vice president was not in the domestic field — where President Ford has carved out a role for him — but on foreign policy.

The occasion for Rockefeller's move was a routine Republican dinner in New Jersey last week. The speech had been billed as a routine political pep talk, and both the $250-a-plate guests and newsmen were surprised when Rockefeller came out swinging.

His target was Congress, which he said has intruded in "dozens of areas" where the Ford administration's "emissary of peace," Henry Kissinger, is trying to negotiate.

Sounding a little bit like the old cold warrior he used to be, Rockefeller said if Congress isn't careful, there will be war in the Middle East.

"The one thing this country has to dread is war in the Middle East," he told reporters later on Air Force II returning from New Jersey.

Rockefeller, who had previously confined his role to presiding over the Senate and making such ceremonial occasions as the truck-driver-of-the-year award, apparently cooked up the speech idea at a State Department lunch with Kissinger earlier in the day.

"I didn't clear the speech with Henry, I just told him what I wanted to say, and went over the list of areas where I feel Congress is jeopardizing his ability to negotiate," Rockefeller said.

The first item on Rockefeller's list was more aid to South Vietnam. He said Congress had made a "moral commitment" for an additional $300 million which was needed "for small arms and ammunition to fight off a Communist takeover."

"If we don't provide the aid and the communists take over and there are a million people killed — liquidated — well, I think the people ought to know where the responsibility lies," Rockefeller told newsmen.

Rockefeller's list of congressional interference included:

- The trade bill denying favored nation status to Russia. Before this restriction, Kissinger had negotiated a plan that had allowed 38,000 Jews to emigrate from Russia. But now there are none, he said.

'Over-reaction mars Congress'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — The unusually large deficit forecast by President Ford in his budget message this week brought about an unusually large surplus of congressional reaction.

If you have ever wondered where all that reaction was coming from, perhaps I can be of service.

In the way that a nuclear reactor is the core of an atomic power plant, the core of legislative power is the congressional reactor.

Located behind thick leaded walls in a restricted area of the Capitol, the reactor is marvelously productive.

In a single day it can generate enough high voltage comment to enlighten a city the size of St. Paul, Minn.

Nevertheless, it is far from perfected. Safeguards presently available have not eliminated the danger of over-reaction.

Accidents of that nature, which are fairly common, can be either quantitative or qualitative.

Quantitative over-reaction occurs when the volume of comment exceeds public interest in the subject matter by a ratio of more than 10 to 1.

Qualitative over-reaction takes place when the intensity of the comment, pro or con, exceeds the significance of the subject matter by 10 to 1.

Quantitative over-reaction is generally harmless, but qualitative over-reaction can cause severe damage to reputations, careers and other fragile resources.

Another disadvantage is the large amount of dross, or waste material, that is produced by the reaction process.

If released into the mainstream of public opinion, this material, which is extremely toxic and contaminating, could cause a great deal of thought pollution.

Thus far, no satisfactory means of disposing of these byproducts has been devised. But fortunately the impurities rapidly dissipate and diffuse as they cross the country.

Weighted against these drawbacks is the reactor's wondrous efficiency. The smallest bits of trivia will trigger some congressional reaction.

And when highly volatile material such as the budget message is available, it operates at peak capacity for days.

News media personnel covering the Capitol are, of course, exposed to concentrated doses. No one can say with certainty what the long range effects will be.

At one time it was believed that constant exposure would build up immunity to over-reaction.

Lately, however, I've noticed signs of obtuseness among some of my older colleagues, and I must say I'm feeling a bit benumbed myself.

There's a slight difference

Our first budget had a national debt, too

by GIL GODFREY

United Press International
The entire 1789-91 federal budget would keep the government only briefly supplied with stationery in 1975.

$1.3 million versus $394.4 billion — that's how our expenses have jumped in 185 years.

George Washington's first budget established a precedent. Interest payments on the public debt equalled 50 to 60 percent of the entire outlay, a situation new to history. The reason: America's need to meet obligations incurred by her birth struggle.

Gerald Ford's first budget also established a precedent. The sum he submitted to Congress Monday would create a record peacetime budget deficit.

The difference between the United States of 1791 and the United States of 1975 could be no more dramatically illustrated than by a look at military expenditures.

President Washington devoted $600,000 to military purposes in the 1789-91 budget. He was grieved to see this sum leap to $7 million by 1794, due to wars with the Indians and international disputes with France and Spain.

President Ford's military budget is $94 billion, up about $8.7 billion from this year.

Other contrasts:
• The early budget set aside $200,000 for pensions — the only social welfare item. The current budget seeks $118.7 billion for income security — a category which includes Social Security, public assistance and unemployment insurance.

• The public debt in 1789 was about $56 million. Ford's proposed tax cuts, combined with other steps to turn the economy around, would yield an $87 billion deficit in fiscal 1975 and 1976 — with the possibility of an even larger figure if Congress rejects various spending cuts proposed by the White House.

• The early budget produced a surplus of $100,000. The only time a surplus was achieved in recent times was in 1969, when Lyndon Johnson's revenue figures exceeded expenditures by $3.2 billion.

• The total revenue listed in the 1789-91 budget was $1.4 million, all from customs receipts. Expected income in 1975 is $278.8 billion in 1976.

Perhaps the feature that George Washington, foe of foreign entanglements, would most abhor in Gerald Ford's budget is the multi-billion dollar item for upkeep of American troops in Europe.

The almanac

Today is Thursday, Feb. 6, the 37th day of 1975 with 328 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning star is Mars. The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter, Saturn and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

Actresses Zsa Zsa Gabor and Mamie Van Doren were born on Feb. 6 — the former in 1923 and the latter in 1923.

On this day in history:
• In 1778, Massachusetts ratified the U.S. Constitution.

• In 1943, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was named commander of Allied Expeditionary Forces in North Africa. He later became World War II Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

• In 1967, Cassius Clay defeated Ernie Terrell to retain the heavyweight boxing crown.

• In 1971, Apollo 14 began its trip home after a moon-landing mission.

A thought for the day: American historian Henry Brooks Adams said, "He too serves a certain purpose who only stands and cheers."

'New library a Mount Prospect necessity'

For the past several weeks I have read various articles written by people opposing a new library in Mount Prospect.

I, like most people, am not looking for anything that would raise our taxes. But as a parent with children presently in three different schools I know how inadequate our present library is. When the children have reports or theme work they have to wait for their father to take them to the library in Arlington Heights. This seems a little silly to me with the population of Mount Prospect and it's unfair to our children.

I have my own reasons for being against other things that might increase our taxes but the library I feel very strongly that it's a necessity.

And I don't feel it should be a campaign issue for the coming election. When I read all the articles from people criticizing our mayor and the village officials and the way the town is being run, I wonder if these same people would be willing to give up their time and be as dedicated to this town as the present officials are.

I suggest that the CORPSE organization enter into a program with the idea in mind that the residents in those multiple housing projects along McHenry Road also use a little common sense in their driving habits, too. It has been proven many times that some drivers may have been "dead right" in their right-of-way thoughts, but many have ended up being just plain "dead" as a result of not using good driver sense.

Why adults are returning to college

It wasn't very long ago that a college student was somebody who was 18 to 24, taking courses to prepare him or her for beginning a career.

Even a few years ago, anyone who appeared as a student in a college class after the age of 25 was likely to earn the epithet "perpetual student." Most campuses could boast several of those, who just kept hanging around, never graduating. They were curiosities — relics from a bygone era — on the campus.

There were always, of course, large numbers of idealistic educators who talked about things like "life-long" learning and who made speeches and wrote scholarly articles about the role of schools in retraining people who changed careers in midstream.

EXACTLY WHEN that idealistic rhetoric became reality is hard to say. But one thing is clear. In the last few years, as the number of 18- to 24-year-olds has tapered off, more and more college students are adults who are starting second or third careers.

Members of the Harper College Board of Trustees have been holding meetings around the Northwest suburbs lately to talk about the college. And one of the things that inevitably surprises the audience is that the average age of a student at Harper is about 28.

Older students aren't attending just Harper either. Other colleges around the nation, particularly those in urban areas, are seeing more and more adults in their classes.

There are a lot of theories about why adults have started going back to school in such large numbers. The recession is probably part of it, at least right now, because it is prompting people to go back to school after they are laid off. The women's movement, which has led many women to try to get out of the "housewife" role, also is probably part of it.

BUT, SOMEHOW, I suspect that all those theories probably don't completely explain the fact that more and more men and women in the mid-30s or later are going back to school and changing their direction and their careers.

The basic, underlying reason, I sus-

Another new building for Harper?

Harper College will gain another classroom building if Gov. Daniel Walker and the Illinois General Assembly approve a new list of building projects proposed this week by the Board of Higher Education.

The list of building projects to be added to this year's college and university construction plans includes $1,992,261 for a classroom building at Harper. The higher board already has approved a budget that calls for a vocational building and another classroom building for Harper this year.

The $42 million in proposed building projects are the higher board's response for Walker's proposal that $1.9 billion in state construction funds be released this year to create jobs. The building projects would not normally be approved by the higher board until the 1978-79 fiscal year.

Harper Vice Pres. William Mann said Wednesday he is "very pleased" that Harper's building was included on the higher board's recommendations for additional buildings. "We were lucky enough to be ready to go with another project when they asked us about it," he said.

Mann said the classroom building, called Building J on the college's master plan, will be part of the same complex of buildings that include the vocational building and the other classroom building scheduled for this year. He said if the General Assembly approves the Governor's plan construction on J Building could begin in July.

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

pect, has something to do with some interesting changes in the relationship between generations since World War II. The "adults" who were in their 30s and 40s and who are returning to school are not, after all, the adults who lived through the Great Depression and the Second World War and who sacrificed their own happiness for their children. Instead, today's adult students are the children of the parents who lived through those things.

Remember, a person who is 40 today was 20 (and presumably a bright-eyed, wet-behind-the-ears kid) in 1955. A person who is 35 and has two kids, two cars and a suburban house was 20 in 1960.

Now a lot of nasty things have been said about the people who were teenagers between 1950 and 1960. They were the "silent generation" who bought all the "phony" values of their parents. Or, if you listen to someone else, they were the first "indulged" generation that grew up without the kind of hardship that had forged earlier generations.

It is, then, the "silent," "indulged" generation that is returning to school now, and they are making some new assumptions about their lives — assumptions their parents never thought about making. These adult students, who grew up during the 1950s and 60s, are making the assumption that it is important for them to enjoy what they are doing—and they believe they shouldn't hesitate to change what they are doing just because in the past a person started in a career, and most of the time, stayed with it until retirement.

CERTAINLY, there are plenty of older people who don't fit into the age group I describe who are also going back to school. But somehow I suspect that the cause of the return is based on the relatively recent assumption that most people should look to their careers for satisfaction — not just for a salary.

It may be that some people, diehard believers in the axiom that people should be practical and should stay with the job they start with, will view this new movement by adults to change careers as final proof that those who grew up in the 1950s were the first "indulged" generation.

But I suspect that many people now believe that encouraging people to change fields — and to look for things they enjoy — is probably not a sign of "indulgence." Instead, it seems to be the sign of flexibility in a rapidly changing society.

Fed lowers rates to banks

Stocks score late gains in heavy trading; Dow up 9

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market rallied late Wednesday to register a solid gain.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 3.37 points Tuesday, gained 9.78 points to 717.85. The closely watched average had been up around three points at the outset and off five points around noon before the afternoon surge.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index advanced 1.34 to 78.05. The average price of an NYSE common share rose 45 cents. Advances topped declines, 999 to 434, among the 1,821 issues crossing the tape. Volume totaled 25,830,000 shares, compared with 23,040,000 traded Tuesday.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE Bank provided the impetus for the gain by lowering the discount rate it charges member banks for loans to 8.6 per cent from 7.25 per cent. It was the third reduction in the rate in two months and should force short-term interest rates lower. The Fed also revealed it had eased its money policies three times since November.

The Dow average gained 37 points last week and more than 87 for the month of January.

General Motors, whose report of sharply lower 1974 earnings had depressed the market, was among those sparking the rally, gaining 1-1/8. It was the fifth most active issue. Ford gained 7/8 and Chrysler 1/4. Late January sales reports indicated the automakers' rebate sales programs were working.

SONY WAS THE most active issue on the Big Board, gaining 1-3/8 to 8 on 390,000, including an opening block of 90,000 shares at 7-5/8.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the second most active issue, up 7/8 to 50 on 309,300 shares.

Pan American World Airways, which is trying to arrange financial help from oil-rich Iran, was the third most active issue, off 1/8 to 4-1/8 on 280,700 shares. Pan Am reported a $48.5 million fourth-quarter loss, compared with an $18.1 million loss a year ago. Delta airlines gained 1-5/8.

Chemicals also played a big part in the rally. Oils and related issues were mixed. Steels and rails rose.

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex common share increased five cents. Volume totaled 2,970,000 shares, compared with 3,063,000 traded Tuesday.

Payments due March 1

Local governments get real estate tax money

Tax money from the first installment of 1974 real estate tax bills already is being distributed to local governments even though property owners are not required to pay the bills until March 1.

County Treasurer Edward J. Rosewell said a second distribution of tax funds to municipalities, school districts and other taxing districts was being prepared Wednesday.

Rosewell said the Jan. 30 first distribution was the earliest in the history of the county. A spokesman said $9,428,820 has been distributed to suburban taxing agencies.

The reason for the early distribution, which allows taxing bodies to avoid borrowing with tax anticipation warrants, is a new program to mail out tax bills in January that are based on the taxes paid the previous year.

The second installment of the tax bill, due Aug. 1, will reflect the full tax amount being charged this year on a piece of property.

Property owners who have not received their tax bills should call the treasurer's office, 443-7930.

A penalty of 1 per cent per month is charged for any payment of the first installment after March 1.

Lets you borrow money by writing a check!

If you have a checking account at First National Bank of Des Plaines, you are eligible to apply for First-Charge. First-Charge is a line of credit reserve that acts as an extension of your personal checking account. There's no fuss. Just write a check as you normally do. If the amount is over your balance, First-Charge automatically deposits money in increments of $100 in your checking account so that you will not be overdrawn. As you repay your First-Charge loan, it is automatically renewed to your full line of credit. Think of it...money available when you need it.

CHECK THESE FIRST-CHARGE ADVANTAGES...

- With First-Charge you can shop for bargains whenever and wherever they are available, without waiting for payday or touching your savings.
- First-Charge is less expensive than most revolving charge card plans.
- Remember that the finance charge is imposed each month only on the amount of First-Charge in actual use.
- Convenient—no special checks, just use your personal checking account.
- No one knows you are using credit.
- Unlike most charge card plans, First-Charge includes credit life insurance free.
- First-Charge may be the only charge account you'll ever need—only one consolidated payment each month.

Come in today or phone for an application to establish your First-Charge line of credit.

TOM GRUNNAH of the Mount Prospect Speed Skating Club will be one of the featured performers Saturday in the 15th Annual Winter Carnival at the Twin-Ice Skating Arena. Competition begins at 8 a.m.

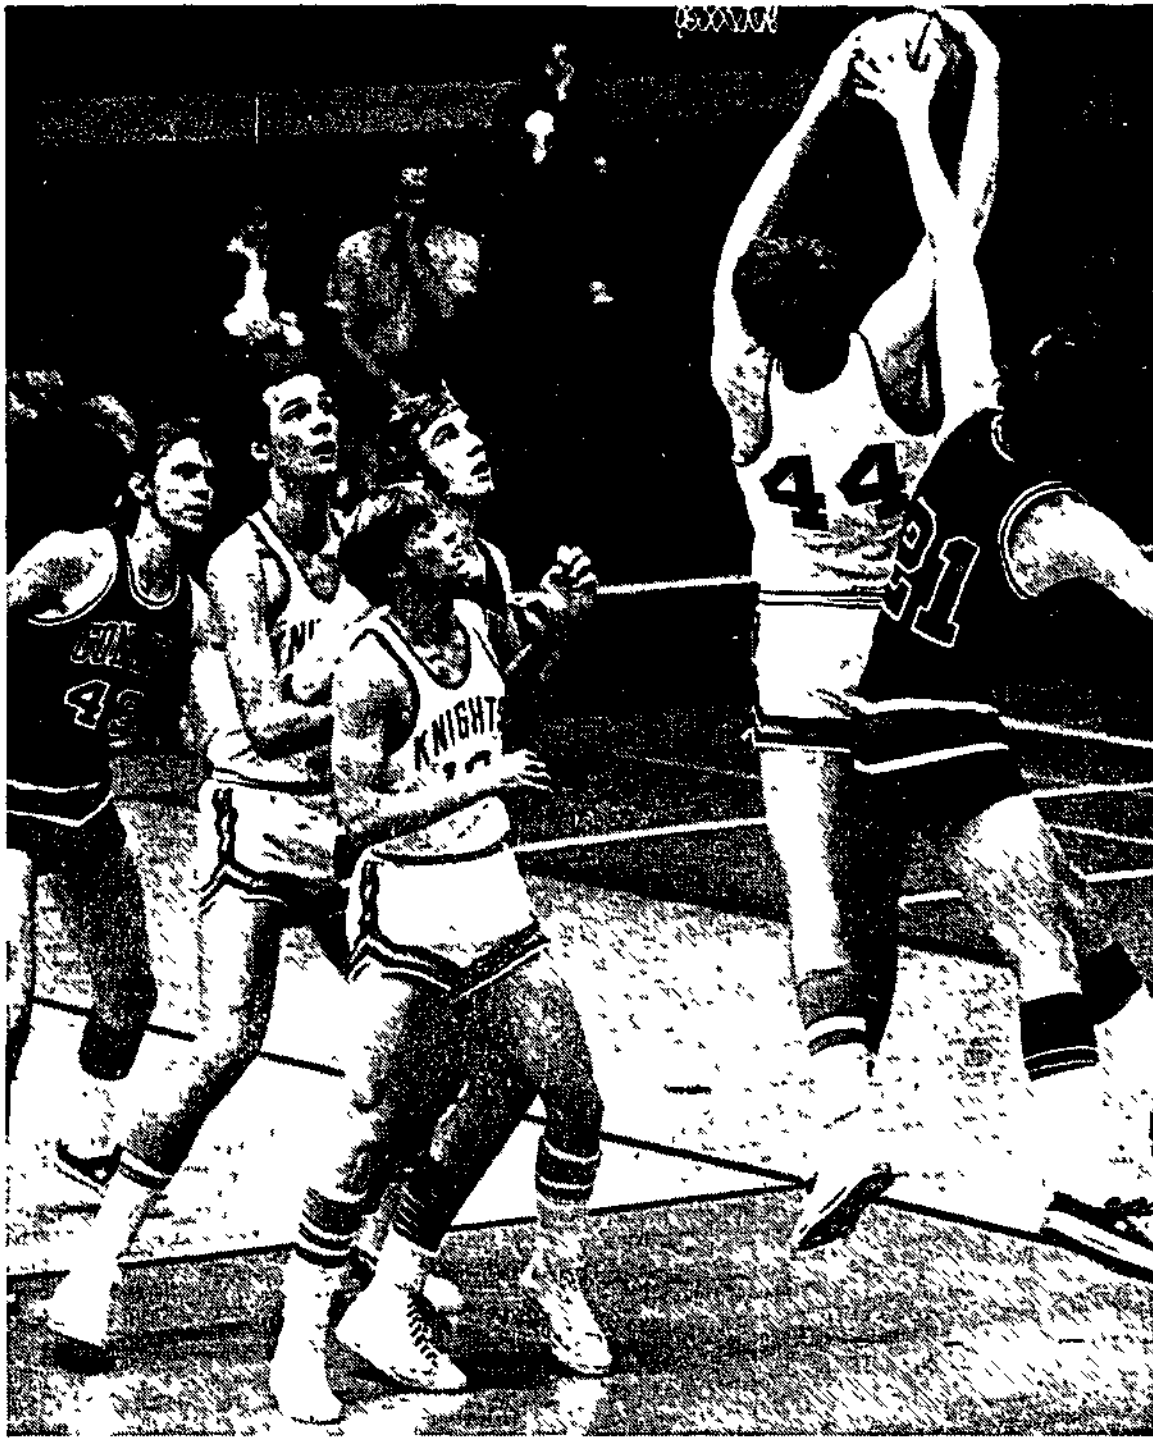

The Mount Prospect Skating Club will host this year's 15th Annual Winter Carnival, featuring some of the area's top speed skaters, at Randhurst Shopping Center's Twin Ice Arena Saturday.

Skating will begin at 8 a.m. and continue until 2 p.m. at the Mount Prospect ice skating facility.

Among the competing teams will be the Des Plaines Skating Club, the Pierce Skating Club, the Northwest Skating Club, St. Bronislava's Club, the Champaign Skating Club, the Northbrook Skating Club, and clubs from Lilac, Evanston, Glen Ellyn, and Park Ridge.

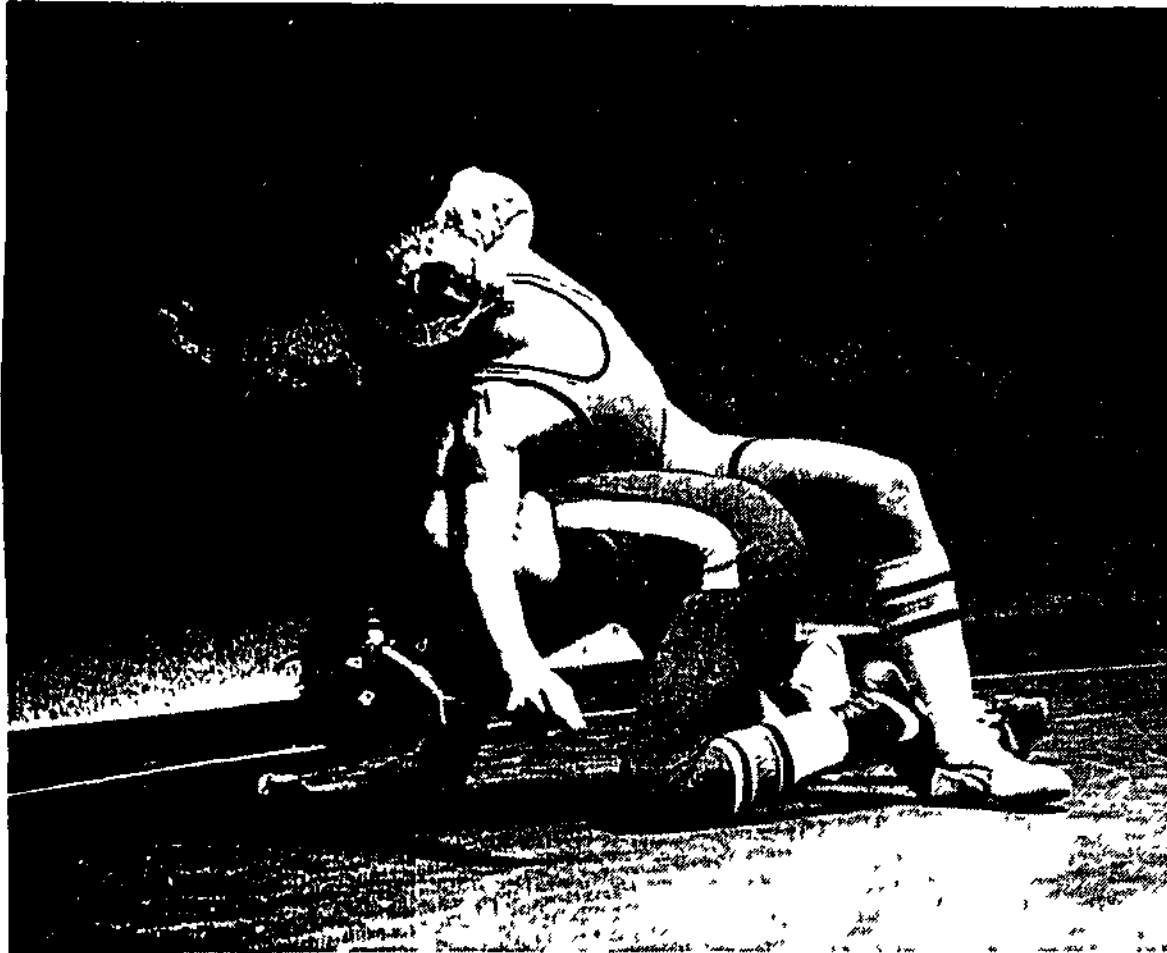

Six members of the host Mount Prospect Club have qualified for the North American Meet which will be held in Winnipeg, Can. They are John Gassardo, Tom Grunnah, Rich Vehe, Bob Vehe, Helen Lutsch, and Joan Wagner.

Anyone interested in the Mount Prospect Skating Club should contact coach Chuck Serechuk at 437-5704. Tryouts are from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday.

Virginia Slims tournament opens Monday in Chicago

Chris Evert... Evonne Goolagong... Margaret Court... Olga Morozova...

They'll all be in Chicago next week for the fourth annual Virginia Slims Women's Professional Tennis Tournament.

Playing host to this the fifth stop on the tour will be the International Amphitheatre this Monday through Saturday.

A total of 32 women, including Chicago-area star Sue Stap, will vie for this year's prize money, totaling $75,000.

Preliminary matches begin on Monday. Singles will continue throughout with doubles matches beginning on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Quarter finals and semi-finals will be played on Thursday and Friday. The third place singles match will be played on Saturday at 1 p.m., followed by the singles final match at 2:30, and the doubles final match at 4 p.m.

"This marks the fourth year the Virginia Slims tourney has been held here," says Jock Miller, director of the tourney. "It's the first time it's being held in an arena the size of the Amphitheatre with its 6,600 seats. In other years, the most we could accommodate was 4,500. That's why I predict a record attendance."

In anticipation of large numbers of fans turning out for the 1975 Slims, special efforts are being made by Miller and the Amphitheatre staff to make the inside of the 75-year-old building as attractive as possible. The locker rooms used by the Cougars in the World Hockey Association are being transformed from a masculine to a feminine decor, and some of the spectator sections that have undergone wear and tear during the last three hockey seasons are getting a new coat of paint.

"We want both players and fans to be pleased with the Amphitheatre facilities," said Miller, "and to this end Larry Cairne (the Amphitheatre manager) and I are making arrangements to embellish the place the best way we can."

Miller also had good news for Evonne Goolagong fans who feared that the 24-year-old Aussie star would be unable to play in the Chicago tournament because of a wrist injury she incurred recently in her native Australia.

"Evonne will play here," Miller said. "The injury is not as serious as at first believed, and the published three-month rest ordered by her doctor actually was for three weeks."

The 10 tournament Virginia Slims Circuit will culminate with the $150,000 Virginia Slims Championship at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, April 1-5. Only two women, Evert in 1972 and 1973 and Goolagong last year, have ever won the title. Both will be hard pressed to repeat in 1975.

Margaret Court returned last week at the Virginia Slims of Washington, D.C. and this week Olga Morozova makes her first appearance of the year, at the Virginia Slims of Akron. Both are scheduled to play the remainder of the circuit.

Tickets, which are $5 for the first five days and $6 for the finals, are available at the Virginia Slims office at 679 N. Michigan Avenue, phone 871-1820. A limited number of $10 box seats also are available.

Football's 'flesh dealers' overlook area products

Twice a year the highest priced "meat market" opens for business.

Twenty-six buyers, their purchasing numbers in hand, anxiously await their opportunities to look over the choicest "cuts."

The "filets mignons" were quickly sold out last Tuesday. "Prime ribs," "steaks," and "chops" went pretty fast, too, that day.

It didn't matter that the selling price could go as high as $1000 per pound. Wealthy buyers are always carnivorous in their craving. They believe such spending is worth it if the ultimate feast is theirs — a Super Bowl.

Last week the 26 National Football League teams grabbed up their top choices on the first day of the professional draft of college players. They finished their "shopping" on Wednesday, picking out the "pot roasts," "ground round," and "stew meats" that remained in the "college cooler."

All told, 442 hunks of football flesh were picked up during the 17 rounds of drafting. When it was over, a lot of young men were left in the "football freezer" — passed over for various reasons.

Jeff Selleck

Among them were Steve Ostermann and Jeff Selleck, Ostermann, a former prep star at St. Viator, was a standout the past three years at Washington State University.

Selleck, who starred for Arlington in high school, was a starter 2½ years with the University of Minnesota.

Both young men had hoped and dreamed of becoming a pro. Over the past week, both have made certain decisions about their football careers because of draft.

"I was disappointed after the 10th round went by," said Steve, who was kept informed by the university's wire service.

Paul Logan
Associate Sports Editor

"I was very disappointed when I didn't get drafted at all. It came as a shock to me. I was there waiting to pick up the phone if it rang, and it never rang."

Steve had every reason to have hope going into last Tuesday and then Wednesday. He made the All-Pacific Coast Conference team the past three years as an offensive guard. His junior year he made second team All-America in the states and first team on one picked in Canada. He was a co-captain his senior year. And he's quick, running the 40-yard dash in 4.8 seconds.

He had been contacted by pro scouts and had a "whole pile of letters from agents" who wanted to represent him when he negotiated his pro contract.

There was just one hangup — his size. He's 6-foot-1½ and 225 pounds. The pro teams projected him as a linebacker, feeling he was too small to play in the offensive line. But that doesn't worry Steve. He handled that position at St. Viator and also played linebacker his freshman year in college.

But the wire service never typed out his name. His phone remained silent those two days.

"It was very depressing," he said from his Pullman, Wash., home this week. "We — my wife and I — had built up in our minds that I would at least get drafted."

Meanwhile, Jeff Selleck was watching the papers. Despite the small print of all the names drafted, he still could read between the lines.

"I was really shocked when Steve didn't get drafted," said Jeff, from his Minneapolis, Minn., residence. "I looked and looked and looked. It sort of made me think because he wasn't too tall either."

Jeff's just one-half inch over six feet and weighs 220. He was a fine center for the Golden Gophers, helping captain his team last fall. Again, his size hurt him, too.

Both have been approached by pro clubs to try out as free agents.

"I decided on my own not to try it at all," said Jeff, sounding like he was content with his choice. "I'll hit the books a little harder, graduate and get a job."

Jeff just didn't want to go through all the rigors of another pre-season of weight training knowing it all might be a waste of time. Canadian Football League teams have also expressed some interest, but it looks like this young man's fine career is over. A business career awaits him.

Not so with Steve.

"I want to play pro football," he said,

Steve Ostermann

still exuding confidence. "I want to give it a try."

Kansas City is one of several teams offering him a shot. Steve's had too much success. He believes he has what it takes to play on the ultimate level. He must find out.

The weight training program will begin again. Steve's out to prove the drafters made a mistake.

And so it goes throughout the country as thousands of young men must make the same decision.

That two-day "meat sale" affected an untold number of lives. And that's no hog-farm.

Arlington builds lead, holds on to top Hersey; Meadows triumphs

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

A Hersey rally turned out to be too little, too late and with some help from their neighbors to the South, it will be Arlington taking the circuit's only unblemished dual meet slate into the Mid-Suburban League wrestling tournament Friday at Elk Grove.

There were three teams sporting unbeaten loop logs prior to last Friday and one was sure to stand with Arlington (7-0) and Hersey (6-0) going head-to-head for North Division honors. While the Cardinals turned back the hosting Huskies 24-17, however, the South Division-leading Grenadiers (7-0) were knocked from the untarnished ranks by Rolling Meadows, 24-18, leaving only the Redbirds with a perfect mark.

The Cards jumped into a 9-0 lead on Steve Scott's decision and Dan Weber's pin and were never headed in losing Hersey its first league loss since 1970. Arlington went on to build up a 19-3 lead by the time Dan Kennedy posted a 9-2 verdict at 132.

Then the hosts nearly stemmed the tide. Mark Furlong upped his overall record for the season to 29-8 with a 12-4 triumph at 138 and Eric Strutz followed up with a shutout win at 145.

Spotlight on wrestling

Kevin Temesy (16-3-1) pulled out a dramatic 10-7 nod over Herb Darmofal (12-2) in one of the evening's showcase bouts at 155 and then Gary Hodge just barely nipped Lee Welez 10-8 in another headliner at 167. That had Hersey almost pulling within range 19-15.

Jim Stanczak stepped to the mat next for the guests at 185 and led the victory for his teammates with a 7-1 win. It was his 19th triumph this campaign in 20 tries.

Over at Meadows, Elk Grove was also seeing a late rally fall short. Paul Hyneman's 9-3 win at 132 pulled the Mustangs into a 19-3 heading before the visitors got busy.

Rick Morris turned aside Pete Martin in a solid struggle at 138 and later Leo Montemayor, Tim McGuire and Mike Malone followed suit for the Greys, cutting their deficit to 21-18.

Bob Newell of the hosts rang up a 7-4 win at heavyweight though to crush the late Grove bid.

In other conference action Fremd held on to just barely squeeze by Wheeling.

Key verdicts included Doug McCarthy's 2-1 decision over Mike Reif and Russ Pollard's quick pin at 155. Sophomore Ken Kent won 13-6 at heavyweight to wind up undefeated in conference action but his 'Cat teammates needed a pin to win.

Buffalo Grove throttled Palatine, Schaumburg stopped Forest View and Conant dumped Prospect Friday and in each case the losing team could muster up only 11 points. Among the interesting individual outcomes were Knight Jim Bethell's 2-2 tie with Cougar Phil Kerr at 132, Saxon Terry Roddy's rally to beat Falcon Jamie King 7-4 at 112 and the counter win 5-3 by View's Kevin Smith over Joe Hannon of Schaumburg at 119, and Bison Jim Brough's 5-2 decision over Pirate Paul Bordenkircher at 112.

Saturday, in a battle to stay out of the South Division cellar an injury-riddled Prospect alignment succumbed to Hoffman Estates 42-12. Pins by Chad McCreary and Jim Thomas and shutouts by Dan Kaufman and Wisniewski keyed the Hawks in their first conference triumph.

A remarkable record ends...after 39 straight

It was perhaps fitting that Arlington issued Hersey its first league wrestling loss since the 1969-70 season.

The Cardinals stopped the Huskies 24-17 last Friday, annexing North Division honors in the Mid-Suburban mat circuit and finishing with an unblemished 8-0 loop record. The verdict was Hersey's first setback in 40 conference dual meets.

And it was the Redbirds who the Huskies upstaged when they rocketed into the limelight by capturing conference, district, and then state championship honors in 1971.

The 1969-70 campaign was only Hersey's first as full, four-year school and under the direction then of Tom Porter, they finished with a so-so 4-5 MSL mark. They lost their second-to-last meet that season to Prospect 38-6 and then wound up action with a 31-10 verdict over Fremd that was to be the first of 39 straight conference conquests.

In 1970-71 they were 9-0 in conference and claimed the title trophy in the first running of the MSL mat meet. The following year they were 7-0 in dual meets, nailed down another loop tourney title and went on to earn a second straight state championship.

In '72-'73 the Huskies were 8-0 and won another conference meet first place trophy outright. Last year they repeated in dual meets, winning eight out of eight, but lost out in the circuit tourney to Schaumburg and had to share the overall title with Elk Grove.

And this year they won their first six bouts before running up against Arlington.

In 1969-70 it was Jack Cutlip guiding the Cards to a 9-0 ledger that earned them the league crown. One of his top grapplers back then was a 130 pounder named Rich Stanczak who won all nine of his conference bouts.

Last Friday it was still Cutlip at the helm when Jim Stanczak forged a 7-1 decision at 185 pounds to mathematically pull his squad out of reach and deal Hersey their first setback in 40 tries.

Cards, Mustangs win outside league

Arlington and Rolling Meadows wrestling teams both kept good things going Saturday as dual meet action around the Mid-Suburban circuit rolled to its inevitable conclusion... another big round of non-conference action.

There were a dozen exhibition tilts, just about as many as there were the Saturday it all started late last November. And in the case of the Cardinals and Mustangs, the verdicts ended up in the same place... on the winning side of the log.

The Cards downed a strong Fenton alignment with an awesome windup while Meadows polished off two visiting units, one of them a league rival. Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Palatine and Forest View picked up a win apiece in other various action.

Here's the rundown:
ARLINGTON 33, FENTON 17
The usually dominant front end of Arlington's lineup ran into trouble and left it up to the heavies to pull their team through. They did so stunningly in overcoming the 1973 state champion Bisons to finish up with a stellar 15-2 overall record.

Fenton jumped off to a 14-0 lead and they were up 17-9 with only four bouts to go. Herb Darmofal triggered the turnaround with a pin at 5:12.

Then it was Lee Welez pinning at 3:59, then it was Jim Stanczak striking his foe at 3:22 and Kirk Kennedy topped off the Redbird rally with a 1:33 win by fall at heavyweight.

ROLLING MEADOWS 48,
LAKE PARK 0
ROLLING MEADOWS 24, PALATINE 15
PALATINE 36, LAKE PARK 12

The Mustangs must be improving. They only beat the Lancers 39-10 two weeks earlier. This time they shut Lake Park out and coupled with a win over the former coaching grounds of mentor Jack Ellis, Meadows finished up with a nifty 17-3 overall dual meet record.

Tyk, Rich Whitfield and Bob Newell were all double winners for Rolling Meadows. The hosting Pirates, who failed to win a single conference meet but were 8-4 against outside competition this season had double victories Saturday from Jeff Sheppard, Mike Bowman, Mike MacBride and Brian DeWyz.

BUFFALO GROVE 36,
ROCKFORD AUBURN 18
ROCKFORD JEFFERSON 34,
BUFFALO GROVE 25
WHEELING 39,
ROCKFORD AUBURN 2
ROCKFORD JEFFERSON 28,
WHEELING 13

The hosting Bison and Wildcats both took it on the chin from one Rockford school and dumped the other. Buffalo Grove, in finishing up with a solid 16-4-1 record, was headed up by double winners Terry McCann, Rich Wilhelm, Doug Browning and Tom Bickner.

For Wheeling (8-11-1) Mike Reif won twice, as did Kurt Rathje and Ed Wargo. ADDISON TRAIL 31, FEMD 8
Only Vike winners were Jeff Glueck and Dan Stark as the Blazers claimed their fifth area victim this season. Dan Lynch tied his bout and Diego Ramirez was just barely edged by Ralph Cortez in a 2-1 thriller while Fremd finished up with a 10-9-1 overall mark.

FOREST VIEW 34, LANE TECH 18
WILLOWBROOK 31, FOREST VIEW 24
OAK PARK 28, FOREST VIEW 20

The Falcons finished up 6-12-1 while Joe Gross, Kevin Smith and Dave Swanson were each picking up a trio of victories. Jamie King and Tom Andersen were both just one narrow decision away from winning three times too.

Revenge for Maine South; Hawks handle Maine West

Maine South extracted a measure of vengeance.

Still recalling how their perfect dual meet season last year was ruined by Maine West, the Hawks came on strong at the end to bump the visiting Warriors 22-20 and mathematically spoil their Central Suburban pennant bid.

It was only the third loss absorbed by West in 18 meetings this season. All have occurred in conference play over the past three weeks.

Saturday Maine West rallied to white-wash Niles North in another league go. Maine East, meanwhile, spanked New Trier West Friday and split against a couple of tough non-loop foes Saturday, edging LaGrange and just barely yielding to West Leyden.

The South-West fray favored the guests 20-12 with three bouts to go. Tom Krauser had opened with a 20-1 mauling and Rob Krusinski and Roger Herrera had helped with shutout decisions.

A subsequent pin at 187 and two more setbacks at 185 and heavyweight turned things around however.

Saturday against the Vikings there were four forfeit wins and everyone else triumphed impressively.

Krusinski, Ralph Rolape and Herrera won by pin, the latter accomplishing his in less than a minute. Mike Tramel won by superior decision and there were three shutouts.

The Demons rallied to trip the Cowboys after trailing 18-15 with four matches to go. Mike Semmerling rapped out a 16-5 verdict and Ed Dembeld, Claude Grant and Jeff Livingston followed up with decisions to salt it away.

East produced nearly the same style of windup against the Lions Saturday, with Grant's pin at 2:52 proving decisive in a 24-21 victory. West Leyden stopped the hosting Blue Demons 23-19.

Semmerling was the only double winner although Kurt Schmidt helped out with a win and a tie against two strong opponents.

Forest View's jayvee team stops Hoffman win streak

"It was a thriller . . . right down to the wire," said Jerry Segebrecht, Hoffman Estates' coach.

But at the wire, Forest View drew ahead, winning the junior varsity game at Hoffman, 50-47, Tuesday night. It ended a five-game winning streak.

The game was close almost all the way. After being tied at 30-all at half-time, the Hawks took an eight-point lead heading into the fourth quarter.

With 1:52 remaining, they held a 57-50 advantage. "Then we made mistakes and they went down and capitalized on every one of them," said Segebrecht.

Hoffman was led by sophomores Jeff Curtin and John Staback with 16 points each. Joe Gajewski had 13 along with six rebounds.

Forest View was paced by Jim O'Rourke's 16 points. Tom Lunak had 12 and Bill Simon 10.

Hoffman shot 53 per cent from the field and Forest View 47. Both teams made 27 field goals with Forest View hitting five free throws to Hoffman's three.

The Hawks held the rebounding edge, 21-20.

Hersey comes to Hoffman Estates Friday night. The game will start at 7:30. The Hawks (7-4) will be seeking its eighth win.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Never take a losing finesse

Old man Z, who used to play the dummy in the columns about auction bridge, was back in duplicate action again. Since he was the only declarer to bring home four hearts, he was asked how he played the hand.

"Quickly," was his reply. "Back in the days when I used to appear in Milton Work's column, I learned never to take losing finessees. East was marked with the king of clubs for his diamond overcall. The play started with a queen of diamonds lead. I won in dummy and led a trump. East hopped right up with the ace, cashed the king of diamonds and got out with a low trump. I won the trick, proceeded to cash dummy's ace of clubs, came to my hand with a trump and led a club to dummy's queen. East took his king and had to lead a diamond to give me a ruff and discard or a spade right up to dummy's king-jack."

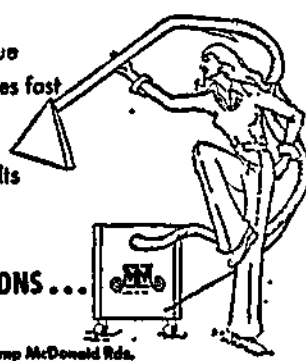

Z's play was well thought out. He would still make his contract if West held the king of clubs. He wouldn't make it if East held four to the king, but that was an unlikely holding. It would make no difference if East held exactly three, but it did bring it home against East's doubton king.

Foodpipe spasm needs immediate attention

I am a 67-year-old accountant. I had a duodenal ulcer and hiatal hernia. The ulcers flared up two years ago and healed in a couple of months, proved by X rays.

At the present I feel no excess acidity and I carry on a fairly active normal life. However, at dinner time, poorly masticated meat or rice and other foods stick in my esophagus causing soreness when I try to force it down.

This has happened twice in the last two weeks. I solved the problem by regurgitating the food. I want to consult physician, but I don't know which specialist to see for this disorder.

You are describing esophageal spasm. This is sometimes a complication of the hiatal hernia. When the lower esophagus has been repeatedly exposed to the acid digestive juices squirted backward into it from the stomach it undergoes changes.

At first spasm may be all that occurs, but that can be painful enough. Later scar formation may result and it necessary to have treatments to dilate this area of the esophagus when it is too small.

You can help protect yourself from this condition by treatment of the hiatal hernia, particularly neutralizing the acid digestive juice and taking measures to prevent it from leaking backward into your esophagus.

Anyone who has trouble swallowing must have a medical examination to be sure what the problem is. Occasionally it is from a tumor or even cancer in the esophagus, so it should not be neglected.

You can see your family internist for your problem, but he may want to refer you to a specialist in gastroenterology.

Two months ago I gave birth to a healthy baby boy. The only thing is he has all his organs from his left side on his right side and vice versa. Is this harmful to him or will it be

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

as he gets older? Could you tell me why it happened? I had a normal pregnancy.

It is a rare condition, but it can occur without any abnormality at all. Some babies have other defects as well, but your doctor could detect this with his examinations.

If it is a simple reversal of the organ location you have nothing to worry about.

No one knows just why this happens. It is sort of like everything being a mirror image of itself. When you think of the complex changes the body undergoes from the time one fertilized cell starts the whole process, it is a miracle that we don't have more variations than do occur. Do you realize that the same set of plans, called genes or DNA, in that first fertilized cell literally has to duplicate itself and parts of itself, over and over to form a heart, a set of lungs, a brain and all the other structures we have?

The variation you describe can occur without any problems during pregnancy. Your boy may cause the doctors a lot of trouble as he gets older before they realize what is going on, but if he is free of any other developmental abnormality, this variation will not interfere with his development or health.

Howard N. Nelson Sr., 74, of Mountain Home, Ark., formerly of Des Plaines and Arlington Heights, died Sunday in Baxter Memorial Hospital, Mountain Home.

Born in Chicago, June 6, 1900, he was the retired owner of Howard N. Nelson Inc., a transportation company at 5230 N. Milwaukee Ave., Chicago.

Visitation is today from 3 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Margaret, nee Turner; a daughter, Mrs. Marjorie (Alfons) Orlovski of Racine, Wis.; a son, Howard N. Jr. (Rosemarie) Nelson of Mount Prospect; six grandchildren; one great-grandchild; a sister, Mrs. Grace (Al) Olson of Chicago Heights, and a brother, Roger (Kate) Nelson of California.

Funeral service will be at 11 a.m. Friday in the funeral home. Burial will be in Mount Olive Cemetery, Chicago.

Elmer Boesch

Visitation for Elmer Boesch is today from 3 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines.

Mr. Boesch, 68, a retired machinist for a manufacturing firm, died Tuesday in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. He was born in Chicago, Dec. 24, 1906.

A funeral Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 11 a.m. Friday in St. Mary Catholic Church, 800 Pearson St., Des Plaines. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Nettie, nee Burns; three sons, Ronald of Des Plaines, Melvin of Louisiana and Thomas of Chicago; a daughter, Joyce Boesch of Des Plaines, and four grandchildren.

Family requests, please omit flowers.

Ragnhild Erickson

Mrs. Ragnhild V. Erickson, 81, nee Anderson, of Arlington Heights, died Monday in Sierra Nevada Memorial Hospital, Grass Valley, Calif. She was born March 23, 1893, in Sweden.

Visitation is today from 6 to 10 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, and where a funeral service will be at 1 p.m. Friday. Officiating will be the Rev. Donald C. Elfrson. Burial will be in Mount Emblem Cemetery, Elmhurst.

Preceded in death by her husband, Ernest G., surviving are a son, Robert G. (Margaret) of Arlington Heights; a daughter, Mrs. June (James) Gallagher of Grass Valley, Calif.; six grandchildren, Glen Erickson, Vicki Burns, Carol, Connie and William Ziemer and Steven Galtner, and a great-granddaughter, Jennifer Erickson.

Family requests in lieu of flowers, memorial donations to Norwood Bible Church, 3759 N. Noy Ave., Chicago, would be appreciated.

Albert A. Melind

Albert A. Melind, 68, of Chicago, a retired corporate president since 1944 of the H. L. Fisher Manufacturing Co., 1225 Forest Ave., Des Plaines, died Tuesday in Brookwood Convalescent Center and Nursing Home, Des Plaines. He was born Dec. 11, 1906, in Hamburg, Germany.

Funeral service is today at 1:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines. Burial will be in Irving Park Cemetery, Chicago.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Wilhelmina. Surviving are four nephews, Harry and Carl Melind, both of Chicago, Jay Melind of Des Plaines and Albert Melind of Germany, and two nieces, Martha Kraus of New York and Julchen Hensel of Germany.

Clara L. Smidl

Miss Clara L. Smidl, 86, of Palestine, formerly of Chicago, died Tuesday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. She was born Oct. 21, 1888, in Illinois.

A retired secretary, Miss Smidl was a member of the Rebekah Lodge, No. 14 in Cicero.

A memorial service will be at 1 p.m. Friday in First United Methodist Church, 123 N. Plum Grove Rd. at Wilson Street, Palestine. Officiating will be the Rev. Dr. Calvin W. Robinson.

She is survived by a brother, Otto J. of Palm Springs, Calif.; a nephew, Ward C. Smidl of Palestine, and a niece, Jean Johnson of San Mateo, Calif.

Family requests contributions to the First United Methodist Church of Palestine, would be appreciated.

Arrangements were made by Abigim and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palestine. There will be no visitation.

Daniel T. Ulrich

Visitation for Daniel T. Ulrich, 32, of Wheeling, is today from 6 to 10 p.m. in Drake and Son Funeral Home, 625 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge, and Friday from 4 to 10 p.m.

Mr. Ulrich, a truck driver for A. D. Conner Inc., Elmhurst, for about two years, was killed Tuesday night when the semi-trailer gasoline truck he was driving ran off U. S. Rte. 14 near Woodstock, rolled over and burst into flames.

Funeral service is Saturday at 1 p.m. in St. Peter Lutheran Church, 111 W. Olive St., Arlington Heights. Officiating will be the Rev. Robert O. Bartz. Burial will be in a family lot.

He is survived by his widow, Janice, nee Berg; a son, Daniel Timothy II; a daughter, Sharon Janice; parents, Alvin and Ruth, nee Rowoldt, Ulrich of Park Ridge, and two sisters, Almarita Yocum and Marly Larsen.

Harry Reasoner

Harry Reasoner still finds room for a chuckle

NEW YORK — Newsmen rush to a crime, an editor shouts "bulletin," and a TV anchorman catches a bite to eat while rewriting an overseas dispatch.

This is the daily game of journalism — the fast-paced wham, bam, battle of headlines, instant analysis, and short, punchy sentences. The results build thousands of stories in print and on the air.

But somewhere along the assembly line of news, says ABC's Harry Reasoner, editors and reporters lose something in the struggle:

"We don't have enough time to think," he said. "Everybody does something as a

Television in review by Frank S. Szwedlow

primary duty, his day-to-day action, and nobody I know, at least at ABC or CBS, is qualified to say what is going to happen to the world three months from now."

REASONER, coanchorman for the ABC Evening News and the anchorman for "The Reasoner Report," was taking time out from his daily chores to discuss the business of news.

"I think that one of the biggest problems we have today — and it has been going on for the last couple of years — is that we have a lot more news from Washington. There is this constant feeling that everything that is done in Washington is so important. We have to do something about this to counteract it."

During Reasoner's years as a broadcaster, principally at ABC and CBS, he has sought to lift a pessimistic world by cloning the pitfalls of life with a smile. There have been essays on women, chairs, and his favorite — the English language.

Although he sometimes has been accused of being too light, Reasoner is quick to defend his style. "I have a basic feeling that you don't have to be pretentious or pompous to present the news. I think gallows humor or wryness is just as much a part of humanity as heavy news."

While some newsmen try to appear icy, or puckish or earnest, Harry Reasoner comes across as warm and witty. He's ABC's guy next door.

Consumer support, court action may overturn tradition

Escrow accounts may start to bear interest

After a large dip in 1974, new home building may head upward in 1975.

Three Northwest suburbs lead Chicago-area building

Three Northwest suburban communities are billed as Chicago-area housing leaders in the most recent Bell Federal Savings survey of new building.

The annual report indicates that permits for new housing units within the metropolitan area dropped 48 per cent below 1973 figures to the lowest level since 1946.

Mount Prospect ranks as the leader in new housing permits during 1974. Permits were filed for 88 single-family houses and 1,105 multi-family units within the community. Schaumburg, second among the area housing leaders, recorded permits for 675 single-family houses and 512 multi-family units. Permits were filed for 210 single-family houses and 300 multi-family units in Elk Grove Village, ranked fourth behind Oak Lawn.

Single-family house permits issued by Northwest suburban municipalities in comparison with 1973 permits are as follows:

Arlington Heights	92	283
Buffalo Grove	132	134
Des Plaines	44	86
Elk Grove Village	210	205

Hoffman Estates	129	411
Mount Prospect	88	236
Palatine	183	202
Rolling Meadows	45	19
Schaumburg	675	1,210
Wheeling	117	441

Within the six-county Chicago metropolitan area, there were 11,617 single-family house permits issued during 1974. The figure represents a 41 per cent decline from 19,564 permits reported during 1973.

Multi-family housing permits issued in 1974 included the following reports of 50 or more units by Northwest suburban municipalities: Arlington Heights, 175 units; Des Plaines, 184 units; Elk Grove Village, 300 units; Mount Prospect, 1,105 units; Schaumburg, 512 units; and Wheeling, 65 units.

Multi-family housing permits issued in the Chicago metropolitan area during 1974 totaled 10,738 units. The figure is 54 per cent lower than the 1973 total of 23,391.

THE INCREASED availability of mortgage money could prompt an upturn in single-family house construction, during 1975, a Bell Federal spokesman said. He said economic uncertainty may account for the lack of renewed interest by potential homebuyers.

"People may be waiting for interest rates to come down," the spokesman said. "If it does, it will mean a minimum of lending activity in this area." The state usury ceiling of 9 1/2 per cent is due to expire in mid-1975, possibly forcing the mortgage interest rate ceiling down.

A lower interest rate would dampen lending activity because savings and loan institutions are paying as high as 7.75 per cent interest to savers, shaving the desired margin between savings rates and loan rates. The Bell spokesman said a variable mortgage interest rate is among the alternative financing plans considered by the savings and loan industry.

The Bell Federal survey included a report of permit values for all types of construction — residential, commercial and industrial — in 1974. A total of $1,704,443, 217 in permit values was reported for the year. The figure is a 17 per cent decrease from $2,045,562,491 in 1973. Permit values dropped 16 per cent in the City of Chicago, 14 per cent in area suburbs and 31 per cent in the unincorporated areas.

GOVERNMENT DATA supports the prediction of declining multi-family unit completions. The number of multi-family units under construction at the end of November 1974 was 723,000, down 31 per cent from 1973 reports and the 15th consecutive month of decline. Preliminary data for December indicates privately-owned, multi-family unit housing starts reached a seasonally-adjusted rate of 190,000 units. The figure is a 70 per cent drop from figures a year earlier.

The slump in rental unit construction will continue, reflecting the decline in multi-family unit building permits throughout 1974. During December permits for multi-family units in some 14,000 jurisdictions in the United States reached an adjusted annual rate of 320,000 units. "This is a whopping 50 per cent below the rate of 645,000 units a year earlier," the report said.

When the construction of multi-family units begins to improve, the impact will be delayed due to the lengthy construction time, the report said. The average completion time for projects with five or more units was more than 10 months in 1973. Construction of larger projects containing 300 or more units may continue two or more years.

by LEA TONKIN

Illinois homebuyers may have questioned the tradition of non-interest-bearing escrow accounts for the payment of real estate tax and insurance. But now there are signs the individual borrower is gaining ground in the struggle for accountability — and interest payment — for these accounts.

Every time a homeowner makes the monthly payment for principal and interest on a mortgage loan, a partial payment for real-estate taxes and insurance generally is included in the amount. While the interest to be gained by a borrower on the escrow accounts may be small, says Chicago attorney Edward Atlas, the amount of escrow-account funds available to moneylenders at a financial institution may run into millions of dollars.

Atlas is serving as attorney in a class-action lawsuit filed against Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago, seeking the designation of escrow accounts as trust accounts and accountability for earnings on them. After an unfavorable ruling in Cook County Circuit Court in 1974, Atlas filed an appeal before the Illinois Appellate Court.

"This should go to the argument stage in March," Atlas said. "We're seeking accountability for the use of these funds. I would think they would average 7 to 8 per cent on their money," he said of Bell Federal earnings on the accounts, which he estimates at $15 million.

RECENT DECISIONS handed down by state supreme courts in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts held that escrow accounts are trust funds, Atlas said. A similar decision was reached in the lower courts of New York, he added.

Widespread consumer support will be needed to overturn the tradition of non-interest-bearing escrow accounts, said State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights. As the chief sponsor of an unsuccessful bill that would have required payment of interest on escrow accounts several years ago, Mrs. Chapman said heavy opposition by the savings and loan industry and a lack of public support have relegated similar proposals to the status of "an exercise in futility."

"It was clear to me that this is an unfairness to people paying on a mortgage," Mrs. Chapman said. "It's beautiful money for the lender to have, because he knows exactly how long he's going to have it. He can loan it for 60 or 90 days or whatever, because he knows when to bring the money in."

Lenders have the upper hand over consumers when it is time to negotiate mortgage terms, Mrs. Chapman said. She favors legislation to overcome the nearly uniform policy for escrow accounts, labeling the lack of interest payment a "hidden cost" for homebuyers.

BILL KEMP, counsel for the Illinois Savings and Loan commissioner's office, said there is no state prohibition or requirement involving the payment of interest on the accounts. Legislation has been introduced at the state and federal levels to require a minimum payment to borrowers. Savings and loan associations carry the burden of a "tremendous amount of paperwork" for escrow accounts, Kemp said. The requirements of interest payments for escrow accounts would strap many savings and loans, he said.

"We will promote a bill that would give the financial institution the first lien against the title," he said. "This would do away with the escrow account. The person could pay his own taxes." Kemp said. Under present regulation, taxes have first lien against the property title, he said.

Proposed change in Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulations may open the door for state escrow-account legislation. The board proposed in January that federally chartered savings and loans should follow the state law requiring interest payments on mortgage escrow accounts, not to exceed passbook-account interest rates. The rule may be in effect by March 4, said John Schlosser, vice president of the FHLB of Chicago and a board supervisory agent. The possibility that federally chartered savings and loans could sidestep state interest payment requirements hampered previous legislative efforts, Kemp said.

STUDIES OF THE administrative cost for escrow accounts indicate "it's pretty much a break-even proposition," a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations said. The system is "more of a convenience for the public than anything else," he said.

"The position of lenders has been that if there were to be interest paid on escrow accounts, they would make a charge for handling the payment of taxes," said a spokesman for the Illinois Savings and Loan League. There are "a couple savings and loans that offered this for publicity, but they are the exception," he said. He added that borrowers may not want to withdraw funds from an interest-bearing escrow account when it is time to pay the lump sum.

One alternative available to borrowers "seems to have been successful," said savings association officer Anthony Lagod. A borrower may deposit funds in a collateral-pledged savings account equivalent to the annual payment for taxes and insurance. The borrower will receive 5.5 per cent interest on the account, and may set aside added funds for the payment of taxes and insurance when the bills come due. If the borrower cannot meet the payment from his own account, the funds are taken from the pledged savings account. "We've never had to draw from pledged accounts," Lagod said.

Realtors' group predicts:

'Tight market may force rents higher'

Pressures for rent hikes will result from the tightening multi-family housing-market outlook, the National Assn. of Realtors research department predicts.

The expected increase in household formations also points to keen competition for available units, the researchers said. Relief for cost-conscious tenants is not expected in the near future. Fewer multi-family units will enter the housing market in the United States in 1975 than at any time in the past three years, the association said.

The housing pipeline has been emptying during the past year as new multi-family housing starts declined at a faster pace than completions. For example, association data indicates that multi-family completions in November led starts by a three-to-one ratio. Completion of new multi-family units will remain low throughout 1975 and at least the first quarter of 1976, the report said. This should cause vacancy rates to stabilize and perhaps decline following an upward trend which began in 1970.

GOVERNMENT DATA supports the prediction of declining multi-family unit completions. The number of multi-family units under construction at the end of November 1974 was 723,000, down 31 per cent from 1973 reports and the 15th consecutive month of decline. Preliminary data for December indicates privately-owned, multi-family unit housing starts reached a seasonally-adjusted rate of 190,000 units. The figure is a 70 per cent drop from figures a year earlier.

The slump in rental unit construction will continue, reflecting the decline in multi-family unit building permits throughout 1974. During December permits for multi-family units in some 14,000 jurisdictions in the United States reached an adjusted annual rate of 320,000 units. "This is a whopping 50 per cent below the rate of 645,000 units a year earlier," the report said.

When the construction of multi-family units begins to improve, the impact will be delayed due to the lengthy construction time, the report said. The average completion time for projects with five or more units was more than 10 months in 1973. Construction of larger projects containing 300 or more units may continue two or more years.

Coming up...

• Feb. 6: The American Appraisal organization plans a meeting beginning at 8 a.m. at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel, Arlington Heights.

• Feb. 6: Approximately 200 persons are expected to participate in a meeting of the Midwest Institute of Park Executives at the Arlington Park Hilton.

• Feb. 7: U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, will be the guest speaker at the general membership luncheon of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce. Crane is expected to discuss legislative proposals as tax credits for educational costs, medical and dental expenses and a bill to mandate a balanced federal budget. The meeting will begin at 11:30 a.m. at the Navarone Steak House, Elk Grove Village.

• Feb. 7: Midwest Industrial Gas Council representatives will meet at the Arlington Park Hilton. Meetings are scheduled for 8:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m.

• Feb. 12: An equal-employment opportunity seminar is slated by the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce. The meeting will begin at noon at the Brandywine Restaurant in the Holiday Inn of Elk Grove Village.

Real Estate brokers provide varied services

Many people think of a real estate broker as the friendly man who sits in his store-front office down the street waiting for house-hunters to drop in.

Some of today's full-service real estate companies may have been founded by a neighborhood "real estate man," but the scope of their activities has gone far beyond the servicing of a residential area.

With the growing complexities of real estate ownership, leasing and management; financing; zoning, building code and environmental restrictions; tax considerations and, more recently, energy conservation, real estate professionals have become increasingly important to property owners.

Particularly in the area of commercial and industrial real estate, capable brokers can become virtual "partners" in the development of growing companies, in the view of James D. McLennan, partner and general sales manager of McLennan Co., full-service real estate firm involved in commercial and industrial development in the Greater O'Hare area and Chicago's north and northwest suburbs.

"The owner of a small but growing company is too busy with his own business affairs to devote day-to-day attention to the problems of owning or leasing his place of business," McLennan said.

"This is especially true when business growth dictates expansion. The owner should be free of such worries as unexpired leases or selling an outgrown building; he can then devote energies to planning in-plant expansion."

McLennan Co. files are filled with success stories of firms that began operations in incubator buildings or other relatively small commercial or industrial quarters, then promptly needed larger quarters.

"Essay International, an importer and distributor of machinery has been typical," McLennan said. "We leased the company 2,100 square feet of office and sales-service space at 812 Busse Highway, Park Ridge, when it was established by Syd Anderson in 1970.

"By 1973, Essay needed more space, so McLennan General Construction Company built a 5,000 square foot building, with deluxe office, display and warehouse space, for the company at 821 Oakton, in the McLennan-developed Oakton Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village."

McLennan said. "Essay still had time left on its lease in Park Ridge, so we subleased that on behalf of the company."

"Now," McLennan added, "Anderson looks forward to even larger space requirements in the future. To meet them, McLennan General Construction Company is completing a 17,000 square foot structure on an adjacent lot in Oakton Industrial Park, with separate units of 6,000 and 11,000 feet. The building has 16-foot ceilings, recessed dock, bed-level dock, two drive-in doors and deluxe offices.

"Until Essay requires the new building, we will lease the space to other industrial tenants," McLennan said. "Thus, through finding or building space, then supplying lessees, we have helped fulfill the past, present and future needs of a new and growing company."

Carol Hall heads Bicentennial committee

Carol Hall, sales associate with Lieberman, Inc. Realtors, has been appointed Chairperson of Festive Activities for the Buffalo Grove Bicentennial. Her committee has planned a variety of community activities including the following:

Fourth of July, 1975, the First Annual Arts and Crafts Fair.

New Year's Eve Ball, a gala evening to kick off the Bicentennial.

Fourth of July, 1976, Second Annual Arts and Crafts Fair.

Another Bicentennial event is scheduled before the end of 1976. This last event is still open and Mrs. Hall welcomes suggestions and volunteers. She can be reached at 541-5000, the Buffalo Grove office of Lieberman, Inc. Realtors.

Arlington Square hostesses depict 'town square' history

Hostesses in historical costumes added to the spectacle at the Preview Opening Party this week for Arlington Square, a new community of townhomes and courtyard condominiums, arranged in the "town square" pattern, being developed by Plato Foulas & Co. in Arlington Heights.

The costumes, ranging from Roman to Medieval and American Colonial, were symbolic of eras in the past when the town square was the center of community life. In the time of Caesar, the forum was the center of legal and civic activity. A square was constructed at the heart of many European towns and cities. In America, the square was incorporated into the design for our earliest settlements.

Arlington Square updates the concept of the town square and offers it as a pattern for contemporary living. Each cluster of homes and landscaped courtyard, or "square," provides a self-contained environment, creating the atmosphere of a private, mini-neighborhood within the community. At the preview, the first of the planned eight clusters of residences was open for display. The model homes are open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends.

To reach Arlington Square, take the Northwest Tollway (I-90) to Route 53. Go north on Route 53 to Dundee Road (Rt. 68). Go west on Dundee Road for one-half mile to Rand Road (Rt. 12). Go south one-half mile to Arlington Square.

Real estate facts

by Virgil E. Grand
President, Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors®

Specialization in professional fields is a growing trend. Doctors, attorneys and accountants have been gaining expertise in specific areas of their professions for many years. And so have Realtors.

Members of the real estate profession may be industrial brokers, commercial brokers, residential brokers, farm and land brokers, syndicators, property managers or appraisers. But while this trend to specialization gains momentum, there remains a need for a real estate generalist, one who has broad knowledge and experience in many areas of real estate. From that need has evolved the real estate counselor — a "specialized generalist."

What is a real estate counselor's function? The American Society of Real Estate Counselors (ASREC), an affiliate of the National Association of Realtors, reports that the real estate counselor provides "competent, disinterested and unbiased advice, professional guidance and sound judgment on diversified problems in the broad field of real estate."

This would involve all segments of the real estate business, such as merchandising, leasing, management, planning, financing, appraising, court testimony and other similar services. ASREC explains. And the counselor is available for all of these functions.

A real estate counselor does not act as a real estate broker. He does not actively participate in the sale of property — and he is not paid a fee on any sale. He does not act as an appraiser or real estate manager . . . and, in fact, he is not even in competition with those who do.

A counselor sells advice. He must know a great deal about real estate and he must understand his client's needs. He can predict marketability, project sales volume, advise on site selections and make market analyses. He may provide assistance in land acquisition, land use or marketing for a builder. Or he may give advice on selling or maintaining property in an estate case. His function closely resembles that of an attorney; he is paid a fee for his product — advice.

Much of the counselor's work is done for real estate brokers and salesmen in handling regulatory problems or advising on the financial holdings of a broker's client.

The professional designation of the real estate counselor is Counselor of Real Estate (CRE), conferred upon all members of the American Society of Real Estate Counselors. Requirements for membership in ASREC include practical experience in real estate for at least 10 years, and having counseled on a fee or retainer basis for at least three years. The counselor also must be a member of the National Association of Realtors, at least 35 years old, and the sole proprietor or principal officer in a firm, partnership or corporation providing real estate services. Membership in ASREC is by invitation only after these qualifications have been met.

Growing trend toward rehabilitation

"The existing home market — growing trend toward rehabilitation of older dwellings — will provide a great shot in the arm for the hard-pressed housing industry."

So declares Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry.

"From Boston to Brooklyn, Savannah to Sacramento and Pittsburgh to St. Petersburg, old buildings are being acquired, remodeled and refurbished to meet housing needs," Goss notes.

Formerly abandoned neighborhoods, Victorian era homes — even waterfront properties — are taking on a new look and coming back into their own as valuable and desirable residences.

"New York's stately brownstones were among the first to be returned to their original elegance on a large scale," Goss says.

"Quietly and efficiently, they were made ready for new occupants and new life styles."

He points out that most metropolitan areas of the U.S. followed suit and entire blocks and neighborhoods of the nation's cities have undergone transformation.

"Old buildings on the Boston waterfront have been converted into gracious condominium housing. An entire section of Cincinnati was rejuvenated without moving out the local residents," Goss continues.

"And an area in old Savannah was restored so beautifully that it has now been designated as an historic landmark."

In the vanguard of the trend are young adults, he adds.

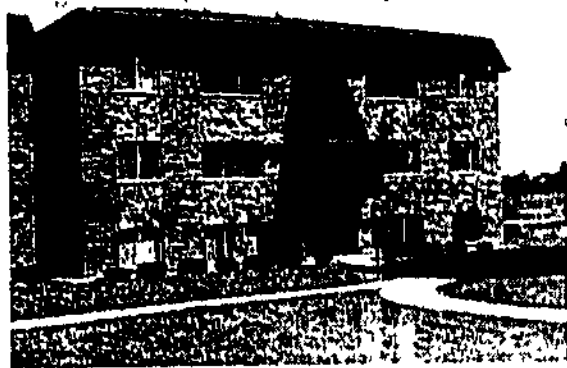

"Preserving the old, capturing nostalgia — at the same time assuring themselves of good investment and a place to live — were big selling points."

Even where rundown residential areas have not been remodeled or renovated, the impact has often been felt. Present owners and residents are responding by taking more pride in their properties. If they can't completely remodel, they improve.

"But the motto may be revive — not renew," Goss concludes.

Kunkel opens Arlington office

Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, will celebrate the opening of their new Arlington Heights office with an open house for sales associates and brokers.

According to Ralph H. Martin, president, a "Kunkel Cook-In" luncheon affair is scheduled for Thursday, February 6, from 11:30 to 2:30, to acquaint real estate personnel with the new office. The luncheon buffet will be casual, featuring bratwurst and hot dogs. All sales associates and brokers from the Chicago area are invited.

Kunkel's new Arlington Heights office, located in the Arlington Plaza, Rand and Arlington Heights Roads, has 10 staff members under the direction of John Bye, manager, and James McLaughlin, assistant manager.

VILLA PLAN II is a ranch-style townhouse with a living room, separate dining room and either two or three bedrooms. It's part of Kennedy Brothers' The Groves of Hidden Creek near Palatine.

Lincoln Federal receives award

Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association received one of the first three citations of merit to be awarded by the Chicago Area Council of Savings Associations.

Vice President Jack G. Douglas accepted the award, presented for "humanitarian services in the community," on behalf of the $145-million Berwyn institution.

Other recipients of awards, to be given annually by the Council, were National and Palatine Savings and Loan Associations.

Lincoln Federal's recognition noted meeting rooms donated monthly to 80 to 100 organizations, Lincoln's Birthday ceremonies by boy and girl scout troops, services to senior citizens and general community involvement.

Homefinders looks back on 1974

During 1974, while many real estate firms tightened their belts, Homefinders Realtors opened five new sales offices.

Now there are 12 sales offices in four counties, from Du Page to the Wisconsin border... a host of million-dollar sales associates... affiliation with the nationwide ERA network of real estate brokers to facilitate buying and selling homes to transferees... a Buyers Protection Plan.

Founded on June 15, 1967, with only two offices, Homefinders Realtors has developed into one of the better known names in real estate in the northwest suburbs.

Based at 235 N. Northwest Hwy. in Palatine, Homefinders now has sales offices in Arlington Heights, Antioch, Buffalo Grove, Lake Zurich, Libertyville, McHenry, Mt. Prospect, Palatine, Roselle, Schaumburg, Streamwood and Waukegan.

The Antioch office was opened in January and Roselle in April. The 10th office in McHenry was opened in July, and the Libertyville office in August.

In December the 12th Homefinders office was opened in Waukegan.

According to Robert L. Zaun, president of Homefinders, the tremendous growth in Homefinders' sales and property is not due solely to following traditional sales practices. "It would be easy to give a lot of facts and figures which point out our success and growth," says Zaun, "but statistics are terribly boring to almost everybody. Instead, we like to talk about some of the out-of-the-ordinary services Homefinders offers, and some of the unusual fun things we do.

"Business people have been accused of lacking a sense of humor, being out only for the sale. Not so at Homefinders! Certainly our prime interest is in doing a professional job for our clients, but I am also concerned about making it a fun thing to do! It is our intention to have a happy and enthusiastic, as well as educated staff. Toward this end, we try to mix a little pleasure with business."

Homefinders has had a flair for the unusual, from the surprise appearance of the Harper College cheerleaders at a company breakfast meeting, to joining up with Electronic Realty Associates, otherwise known as ERA.

Only through Homefinders can clients sit at their kitchen table and go house hunting coast to coast through ERA. Likewise, only at Homefinders, can a seller market his home anywhere in the United States, through the same electronic network. ERA therefore facilitates the purchase of homes for persons moving from one section of the country to another.

Here is how ERA works.

When a person in the northwest suburbs wishes to sell his home, Homefinders takes a photo of his houses and places it in the ERA computer system. The picture is then sent to ERA brokers throughout the country upon demand.

Meanwhile, at the other end, a transferee informs his ERA broker that he is looking for a home in the northwest suburbs of Chicago. The brokers, through ERA, inform Homefinders and six minutes later the prospective buyer is looking at six Homefinders homes for sale in this area. All of this is accomplished with electronic photo-scanner and facsimile equipment.

After the transferee makes his selection, Homefinders arranges for his personal visit and follow-up.

Homefinders is the exclusive ERA broker in the northwest suburbs.

One of the most exciting developments in the real estate field is the Buyers Protection Plan, which provides for the repair or replacement of essential home components for one full year from the date of closing of the sale.

Many purchasers of Homefinders' listings can now be provided with the Buyers Protection Plan Service Agreement. This agreement protects the buyer for one year from deficiencies in the heating system, plumbing system, entire electrical system within the home, water heaters, sheet metal duct work, central air conditioning systems, built-in appliances such as dishwashers and disposals, all plumbing fixtures except toilet seats and water softeners. Roofs are covered, based on number of years of service.

"The Buyers Protection Plan is exciting because now prospective buyers know that there are homes they can purchase through Homefinders with the assurance that they won't be immediately faced with unexpected repair bills," notes Zaun.

Probably one of Homefinders' most effective salesmen is John Cameron Swayze, America's foremost salesman on television. Swayze is the official spokesman for ERA, and informs audiences from coast to coast about ERA and the Buyers Protection Plan. In addition to television, Swayze conveys the ERA message and Homefinders' participation through radio, newspaper advertising, brochures and film strips.

Homefinders does not confine its sales activity to residences. The Commercial and Investment Division handles all transactions involving commercial and industrial properties, large apartment buildings, vacant land to be developed, and both residential and office condominiums.

This division is now conducting a "traders" seminar every Wednesday for all Homefinders personnel currently involved with extra-residential business.

In addition to the Residential and Commercial and Investment Divisions, Homefinders has a Division of Special Projects headed by Randall Rathjen. This new Division is aimed specifically at helping builders market their projects and developments, property management, and commercial and residential condominium sales.

Larry Ham, veteran trainer of real estate salesmen, is the training director at Homefinders. It is an absolute requirement that all new associates take the two-week sales training course, regardless of their prior real estate experience. Some of the subjects covered are salesmanship, appraisal, financing and income tax problems as they relate to real estate.

But as Zaun has pointed out, people at Homefinders have fun, too!

There is the Mighty Homefinders Art Players which puts on many stage productions at the company's annual Christmas party. The production is usually written by Zaun, with the roles played by Homefinders managerial and administrative staff. Last year, the Mighty Homefinders Art Players presented a musical, "Snow Job and the Twelve Dwarfs," with musical accompaniment by the Mighty Homefinders Music Players.

The executives of Homefinders do not confine their real estate experience and homefinding techniques to their three divisions and 12 offices. They are also busy in the evenings informing college and adult education classes on how to sell real estate and how to make the most of their investments.

Bob Zaun, for example, teaches "Real Estate, Marketing and Brokerage" at Harper College. Dave Hanner teaches an investment class at Fremd High School in District 211. Randy Rathjen teaches a course in investment properties at Harper.

Homefinders is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, the Elgin Board of Realtors, the Waukegan-Lake County Board of Realtors, MAP Multiple Listing Service, Town & Country Cooperative Listing Service, Elgin Multiple Listing Service, and Waukegan-Lake County Multiple Listing Service.

There's risk in all monetary dealings

Persistent among inquiries about savings accounts, investments, gold — even U.S. Treasury bills, notes, and bonds — are the questions "Are they safe?" and "What are the risks?" To answer the questions, you must also ask, "Safe from what?"

Safety is the flip side of risk; they go together. Ordinarily, the greater the risk, the lower the safety and vice versa.

Safety in one sense means assurance against physical loss. In another sense it means assurance against a decrease in value. A traditional concern among depositors putting cash into savings accounts is assurance that dollars will be there when needed or desired.

TODAY, ANOTHER risk must not be overlooked — the risk of loss through inflation. Future dollars that buy fewer goods and services than current dollars suffer a loss as real as if your pocket was picked.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. offer assurance that depositors' dollars will be protected from a numbers loss. The FDIC and FSLIC stand ready to shore up a weak financial institution or to step in and supply cash to prevent loss by depositors within the limits prescribed by law and operating rules.

But what happens if the dollars plus interest from a savings account or U. S. Treasury bill buy less than the dollars would have at the time of deposit? While difficult to calculate, such losses are occurring regularly because loss of purchasing power is not insured.

Suppose you deposited $1,000 in a savings account paying 5.25 per cent. At the end of the year you would receive $1,052.50, possibly a bit more depending on the frequency of compounding. However, during the past year the Consumers Price Index increased roughly 12 per cent. To buy a comparable selection of goods and services, the $1,000 would have had to increase to $1,120.00 to keep up with the 12 per cent rise in the cost of living. Thus, the depositor with $1,052.50 after a year lost the equivalent of $67.50.

WHITE THE Consumer Price Index is not a perfect indicator of inflation, it is the best we have. If it indicates a rise in overall prices of 10 per cent, the flip side is a dollar worth less by roughly 10 per cent. If dollars saved do not earn

Managing your family's money

by Merle E. Dowd

a rate equal to the rate of inflation, then the saver loses. This loss amounts to a negative interest rate. Thus, one must balance the negative interest rate — 4.75 per cent (10 less 5.25 per cent) against the possibility of losing the whole bundle in some investment with a higher return and higher risk.

Avoiding losses of purchasing power while retaining safety of principal calls for a hard look at a variety of possibilities.

• U.S. Treasury bills, notes, and bonds are as safe as the government. You can always expect to get your dollars back even if the government effectively prints more money to pay you. This is what has been happening most of the last 30 years.

• Insured deposits up to $40,000 in banks and S&Ls are insured by "an instrumentality of the U. S. Government." While these insurance corporations have weathered occasional bank and S&L failures, their ability to support a widespread series of failures has not yet been tested. While guaranteed against loss, deposits also are guaranteed against gains likely to maintain purchasing power through inflation.

• Common and preferred stocks, mutual funds, and bonds have generally lost billions of dollars of value as measured by various indicators. No protection exists against losses in these equity and/or debt investments. But these flexible securities offer one opportunity for keeping up with inflation, albeit a chancey one lately.

• Commodities, land, collectibles, and other stores of value offer even less assurance of safety with potentially great opportunities for gain. However, except for commodities, these opportunities suffer problems of non-standard units.

Thus, no absolute answer to the question, "Is it safe?" exists. During these turbulent times you should try to develop a program for minimizing losses while holding open chances for gain through a prudent diversification of investments and/or savings.

Shirley Ryan has top year

Shirley Ryan of Willshire Real Estate, 121 S. Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights, recently received special mention for her best year in five in making residential sales in the northwest suburbs. Her gross sales were just under two million and this was accomplished in only 9 months in 1974.

Willshire Real Estate was established just 14 months ago by Shirley and her husband, Bill, who is also a broker and an attorney. They are members of MAP Multiple Listing Service, Guaranteed Referral Service and National Multiple Listing Service.

Schaumburg building leased

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has announced the leasing of 20,407 square feet in the one story building containing 40,814 square feet at 736 Estes Avenue, Schaumburg to E. Targosz & Co., Inc. The facility will be used as a warehouse and distribution center for their bulk chemical business.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates was sole broker in the $100,000 lease transaction. James H. Dana represented the lessor and Vernon F. Schultz represented the lessee. Attorneys were Matt Gray representing the lessor and Peter Zamis representing the lessee.

Rich Port elected RNMI president

The Realtors National Marketing Institute or RNMI recently announced the formation and activation of the Midwest Chapter of Certified Residential Brokers. The Chapter is composed of members in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin who have attained the Certified Residential Broker (C.R.B.) Designation and candidates working toward this achievement.

The Chapter's newly elected president is Rich Port, chairman of the board of Rich Port, Realtor, La Grange, who noted that "Chapter activities will include information exchange sessions, presentations for its members by noted real estate leaders and businessmen, and educational seminars for the public on various facets of real estate. In addition, the Chapter hopes to promote cooperation among its members and other Realtors in order to develop sound and ethical business practices throughout the real estate industry."

The C.R.B. Designation is awarded by RNMI to those individuals who have completed exacting requirements of education, experience and ethics and it signifies competence in managing the most professional and efficient real estate offices. It assures the public of dealing with a Realtor who has proven himself in this specialized area of brokerage.

The National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, has a membership of over 33,000 Realtors and Realtor-Associates throughout the United States. It awards the C.R.B. Designation for which credits are earned through educational courses sponsored by RNMI and state real estate associations, for college studies and degrees, and for completion of scheduled professional and related activities.

Haas nominated

Sam Haas, of World-Wide Liquors, was recently nominated for the presidency of the National Liquor Store Association. The Association represents 2,500 retailers in 17 states. The nominating convention was held in Miami, Florida recently and the election will be conducted in Las Vegas in May.

World-Wide has stores in Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

2 tradesmen receive honors

Dan Minkiewicz of Chicago has been selected December "Tradesman of the Month" and Floyd Carter of Villa Park has been selected as the November choice for this award. This award is given each month to an employee of one of REALCOA's suppliers/subcontractors. Efficiency and productivity are the determining factors.

Minkiewicz, a roofer, is employed at Rogers Insulation and Roofing in Chicago, and Carter, a concrete finisher, is employed by Zemon Concrete, Palatine.

Stylish exteriors draw tenants to rental units

The tenements of old that used to display signs in the window advertising "rooms to let" are largely gone. They've been replaced by multi-family housing that offers room and a variety of amenities designed to keep residents from getting "bored."

Rental apartments are competing with condominiums in the matter of offering inducements to tenants. A recent survey of apartment construction trends for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development found that 61 per cent include air conditioning at no extra cost to tenants. And 69 per cent include swimming pools in rental payments.

The appeal of rental units extends beyond "swinging singles." Garden apartments and townhouses that offer gracious and easy-care living that represents a departure from single-family home ownership are becoming popular among the divorced, widowed and couples whose children have grown up and left home. Many people looking for an apartment are seeking units with exteriors that offer a warm, individual, homelike appearance.

St. Paul promotes two

Ernest J. Drescher, assistant vice-president, has been appointed manager of the Rolling Meadows office for St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Association. It has been announced by Faustine A. Pipal, board chairman. The office is located at 3139 Kirchoff Road in the shopping center on the south side of Kirchoff.

Francois Soss has been appointed assistant secretary of St. Paul and assistant manager at Rolling Meadows.

Drescher joined St. Paul in 1954 and subsequently served as manager of the teller area and internal auditor before becoming personnel manager in 1972. More recently, he was manager of St. Paul's office at 18th and Leavitt, Chicago.

He has been an instructor and director of the American Savings & Loan Institute, past president and director of the Mont-Clare Elmwood Park Lions Club and is a member of Mont-Clare Leyden VFW.

Mrs. Soss attended Triton College and joined St. Paul Federal in 1970 as secretary to the president. She was subsequently a systems analyst and, prior to her new appointment, was assistant manager at St. Paul's 18th Street office.

Fragman Construction moves

Fragman Construction Co. has moved from offices in Wilmette to new executive quarters at 204 E. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights. It was announced by Marvin Goldblatt, president of the general contracting firm.

It was also announced by Board Chairman Joseph J. Freed that Goldblatt has been elected president of Capitol Fixture and Construction Corp.

According to Freed, Fragman's move and Goldblatt's election as head of both firms will allow them to centralize corporate services while integrating construction activities with their affiliated companies.

"Each of our companies has experienced dynamic growth over the past five years. The move to central executive and general offices will allow management to utilize not only the combined talents and expertise of all the companies, but will enable each to expedite all business services in anticipation of our continued growth and increased volume," said Freed.

Fragman Construction Co. specializes in the construction of shopping centers, industrial and commercial buildings. Capitol Fixture and Construction Corp., activities include building and installation of retail stores and the manufacture of store fixtures and equipment through its Peshtigo, Wis., plant. Other companies include Display and Decoration, Capitol Computer Services, Capitol Fixture and Construction Corp. of Florida, and Capitol Fixture and Construction Corp. of California.

Bonanza celebrates anniversary

A local restaurant, which has served enough beef since it opened its doors to make a year's worth of meals for everyone in Steamboat Springs, Colo., will celebrate its second anniversary January 17.

Just about everybody in Buffalo Grove has had a stake — oops, make that "steak" — in helping Bonanza serve up all that beef.

Bonanza caters to local families and, since the restaurant first opened, families have eaten an estimated 233,837 steaks and 92,554 portions of chopped steak and Bonanzaburgers, reports Ron Hoffman, manager of the Bonanza located at 105 W. Dundee Road.

"Not only would that beef feed everybody in Steamboat Springs, for one year, but the steaks alone equal one meal for every adult in the State of Vermont. And the portions of chopped steak and Bonanzaburgers would be one plus an extra bite for everyone in Tallahassee, Fla.," he said.

"Our anniversary is a happy occasion for us and we're celebrating by saying thanks to the families of Buffalo Grove," Hoffman continued. "We're proud and pleased to be so much a part of this community."

The local Bonanza is part of the international Dallas-based chain, which now numbers more than 600 family restaurants in 37 states, Canada, Australia and the Bahamas.

Raucci named vice president

At the December 9th meeting of the Board of Directors of Northwest Trust & Savings Bank, Ronald A. Raucci was appointed to vice president.

Raucci joined Northwest Bank in 1970 and shortly afterward was appointed assistant cashier. In 1971 he was elected assistant vice president.

Raucci is a graduate of Wright Junior College and the Illinois Banking School, Southern Illinois University.

From 1963-67 Raucci was employed by Universal C.I.T. Corp., from 1967-69 he worked for the Chrysler Credit Corp. and from 1969-70 he was employed by the Bank & Trust Co. of Arlington Heights before joining the Northwest Trust & Savings Bank.

Raucci is a member of the Arlington Heights Elks Club, the Arlington Heights Optimist Club, the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, the Chicago Chapter of the American Institute of Banking and he is the director of the Arlington Heights United Fund.

Raucci, his wife and two sons live in Rolling Meadows.

BERNARD G. ### New bank opening in Buffalo Grove

The Buffalo Grove National Bank opened its interim bank facility Monday in the Buffalo Grove Mall at Dundee and Arlington Heights Roads in Buffalo Grove.

The bank will operate in the interim facility offering full bank services (except for safe deposit boxes) while the permanent bank building at 533 W. Dundee Rd. is under construction.

Construction is proceeding on the building and completion is expected by June or July of 1975, said Jack H. Sharp, bank president. The permanent bank building will be located approximately half way between Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights Roads on the south side of Dundee, immediately west of the Kingswood Methodist Church and the fire station currently under construction. The bank building will consist of 8,100 square feet on one floor.

"The Buffalo Grove National Bank has sold $1,800,000 in stock with the greatest number of stockholders living in Buffalo Grove," Sharp said.

Brunner promoted

Attendants wear rainbow colors for Jan. 19 rites

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mrozinski

Six bridal attendants gowned in rainbow shades stood at the altar of Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights, for the Jan. 19 wedding of Elizabeth Minarcik and Paul Mrozinski.

The 3 p.m. double ring rites united the daughter of the Frank J. Minarciks, 153 N. Babcock Dr., Palatine, and the son of the Norbert A. Mrozinskis, 1410 St. James Pl., Arlington Heights.

Elizabeth's sister-in-law, Barbara Minarcik of Chicago, was matron of honor, wearing an apricot polyester gown with matching jacket and carrying white carnations tipped in apricot.

There were four bridesmaids: Jill Callahan, Palatine, gowned in pink; Ginni Yee, Arlington Heights, in green; Jo Ellen Wedel, Palatine, yellow; and Donna Surlak, a cousin from Downers Grove, blue. As junior bridesmaid, the bride's sister Sue, was gowned in apricot.

JOHN MINARCIIK, brother of the bride from Chicago, was best man. Grooms-men included the groom's three brothers, Steve, Roy and Norbert Mrozinski Jr.; Tom McMillan, Arlington; and Bruce Yarno, Kankakee.

The bride's white Empire gown was applied in satin flowers and accented with lace, with the same accents on her headpiece and fingertip veil. She carried yellow roses, white carnations and stephanotis.

The couple greeted 80 guests at a reception at the Black Fox, Rolling Meadows, and are living in a Hoffman Estates apartment. They will take a honeymoon in summer.

Elizabeth attended Palatine High School for two years, then graduated from Richmond-Burton High in Richmond, Ill., and Paul is an Arlington High graduate. She is with Paddock Publications, Arlington; he is with National Tea Co., Palatine.

Pamela Swart, bridegroom met at University of Tulsa

Ranch Acres Baptist Church in Tulsa, Okla., was the site Jan. 11 for the wedding of Pamela J. Swart of Arlington Heights and Patrick N. Wilson, Tulsa.

Daughter of Mrs. Herbert S. Olson Jr., 431 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights, and Jay H. Swart, Peach Tree City, Ga., Pam is majoring in nursing at the University of Tulsa. A '72 graduate of Prospect High, she is affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

Her bridegroom, son of Mrs. Roxey O. Wilson, Tulsa, and the late A. C. Wilson, graduated from the University of Tulsa and is now vice president of Wilson and Associates in Tulsa where the newlyweds are making their home.

PAM WORE A candlelight gown with Belgian lace and pearls and carried a red and white bouquet for the 7 p.m. candlelight, double ring service. Her maid of honor was her sister, Sherry Swart, and bridesmaids were Kim Milner, Des Plaines; Cindy Martin, Enid, Okla.; and April Retzer, Peoria. Their gowns and picture hats were in burgundy with candlelight lace, and they carried red tea roses, pink and white carnations and lily of the valley.

The bride's 7-year-old sister, Stacy Olson, was flower girl. She was also in burgundy, and she carried a basket of the same flowers.

Randy Graham, Oklahoma City, was best man, and ushers were the groom's brother, Ronald; James Rodgers, Oklahoma City; and Phillip J. Eller and Leon Shoenhair, Tulsa.

A reception for 150 guests was held at the Tulsa Club after which the newlyweds honeymooned in Galveston, Tex.

Behavior mod

Its aim should be self-control, not mind control

(This is the last in a series of articles in which staff writer Eleanor Rives examines the concept of behavior modification and how it's being used by local agencies dealing with human behavior, also its potentials and dangers.)

by ELEANOR RIVES

Pavlov conditioned dogs to salivate at the sound of a bell.

Behavior therapists condition whole classrooms of children to quiet down at the click of a light switch.

Technology has reached the area of human behavior. It has provided us with tools to control the behavior of man.

It can change a roomful of noisy, unmanageable kids into a beehive of quiet industry.

It can completely potty-train a toddler in half a day.

It can help children raise their reading scores.

It can break the smoking habit, control overeating, drinking and nervous habits. It can overcome phobias.

AT MARYVILLE Academy's Temporary Care Center, behavior modification is one of the modalities used to motivate neglected, dependent and disturbed boys to positive behavior, youngsters who spend only 60 days at the center while being evaluated and referred to more specialized institutions.

Don Ferro, program director of the center, described the "level" system there as follows: Behavior expectations are spelled out so each boy knows exactly what is expected, acts such as making one's bed, getting to school on time, taking a shower, participating in group meetings. Points are given based on respect, attitude and cooperation in meeting the behavior expectations.

EACH BOY starts at Level 1. After attaining a specified number of points, he moves to Level 2, then 3 and finally 4. The higher the level, the greater the privileges, such as phone use, trips off campus, opportunities to earn money at jobs, etc.

"This program has certainly helped overcome some difficulties," said Ferro. "School attendance, responsibility on jobs, attendance in work training programs. But it must be pointed out that the boys also receive a complete range of services such as individual counseling, family counseling, remedial education, a work program and recreation."

AT LITTLE City in Palatine, behavior modification has been used successfully since 1962. Its residents are classified according to five levels of functioning, from the profoundly retarded at Level 5 to the borderline retarded at Level 1.

At the lower level of achievement, residents are rewarded with candy, food or tokens; at the higher level, with privileges or even a paycheck negotiable at the Little City bank. All residents are given praise and love. Residents who prove their capabilities at one level are promoted to the next.

"It has been tremendously successful," said Mrs. Norina Davies, administrative coordinator. "We can just see the kids improving."

BEHAVIOR MOD has quietly seeped into industry, too, though perhaps by other names and in less obvious ways. Some businesses that have felt its influence, enumerated by Philip Hiltz in his book, "Behavior Mod," are General Motors, Bell Telephone, Warner-Lambert, Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel, Questor Corp. and several major airlines.

Behavior mod disciples advise industry: Decide precisely what performance you want of your employees, tell them exactly, and give positive — never negative — feedback, not only when they achieve that goal, but while they are working toward it.

IN AN ATTEMPT to decrease absenteeism, Motorola Inc., Schaumburg, developed an attendance bonus program. Employees are allowed up to five paid "sick" days a year. But each of those five days not used may be exchanged for an extra day's pay at year's end. Or if the employee chooses, he may "bank" them, adding them to the following year's extra days of pay, up to a maximum of 80 hours.

Production contests and citations for outstanding performance by an individual are incentives to employees assembling two-way radio equipment.

To motivate employees to progress to a higher level, Motorola provides educational and internal promotion programs, on-campus facilities and tuition reimbursement programs, in-house seminars and supervisory career development programs.

IF BEHAVIOR mod is so effective, so practical and useful, if behaviorists are so enthusiastic about their techniques, if its results are already being observed in our own northwest suburban area, why then do some consider it dangerous, frightening?

Opponents cite its abuses. If left to mushroom uncontrolled, might not it possibly lead to "mind control?" Who will be controlled? Who will do the controlling? Is this moving in the direction of Orwell's "1984?"

Jerry Medow, director of the Northwest Mental Health Association and a psychiatric social worker, said, "The one thing I'm concerned about is this: if behavior modification is used, the person to be modified must know it. He must be given a choice, must make a decision, then live with the choice he makes."

THE "LEVEL" SYSTEM, a form of behavior modification which reinforces mature, responsible behavior with increased freedom and privileges, is only one of the modalities used to motivate boys at Maryville's Temporary Care Center. Sister M. Gloria, staff teacher, spends much time counseling individual students.

IN THE CASE of small children, Medow contends their parents should be told in advance. In the case of senile or extremely elderly people, a relative should be consulted. In the case of retarded youngsters, parents should have an option and full knowledge of what is being done.

Medow admits there have been some great successes, but adds, "Behavior mod treats the symptom, not the cause. The higher the intellectual level of the individual, the less effective it is. Results tend to plateau, then go into diminishing returns."

"The goal of psychotherapy should be autonomy," he declared. "The individual must gain enough insight into himself to make his own mature decisions. He should have control over his own destiny."

THE BASIC considerations concerning the use of behavior mod techniques, then, seem to be these. Is it being used openly and honestly to help, rather than manipulate, the individual? Is it being used with the individual's knowledge and consent? Is behavior mod increasing in momentum to the point where it can no longer be controlled? Will its potential for good outweigh its potential for misuse and invasion of human rights? These are the problems society must face.

For an in-depth study of behavior modification, its uses today, its roots and its growth, its potential for good and for evil, this reporter recommends Philip J. Hiltz' "Behavior Mod," published by Harper's and available at several local libraries.

Buzz pattern for postal service upsets workers

In the town of Kokomo, Ind., a computerized, assembly-line plan for mail delivery is being tested, with nationwide implementation scheduled for March. The postal workers' union has declared it will strike in opposition to the plan. It is estimated the system will put 15,000 carriers out of work because of an increased number of stops on each route, despite carriers' physical limitations.

All the bees in the bee colony were in a lizzy. The delivery of nectar had gone bad to worse. It was a crisis of enormous proportions, since the entire colony of millions of bees depended on regular, dependable nectar delivery for their very livelihood.

The bee colony was up in arms against the beehive in charge of nectar delivery. The queen bees of the nectar hive had tried first one solution, then another. They centralized nectar delivery operations into a few regional delivery hives, and nectar delivery was slowed interminably.

They took incorrectly labeled nectar away from the delivery bees and gave it to one special worker bee to handle. And the nectar began turning up at all the wrong hives. (But all the while the queen bees proclaimed that nectar delivery was much improved.)

THEN THE QUEEN bees (who had come to the nectar beehive from a hive that manufactured beeswax and who had no experience in nectar delivery) decided to consult the Great Buzzing Bee. They fed their problem into the Great Buzzing Bee's mouth, and pretty soon out came an answer on a tape.

It was all in a complicated buzz pattern, but the queen bees understood it easily because it was the kind of buzz pattern they had used all the time in their old beeswax hive.

They decided to try the plan in a location in the middle of the colony. Each worker bee in that nectar delivery hive was assigned a large number of hives than ever before, and some of the bees were then sent home without work.

The workers were instructed to fly the shortest, most direct route from one hive to the next instead of respecting each hive's private air space like before.

SPY BEES SENT by the queen bees

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin followed the workers to make sure they never stopped flapping their wings for a second, or even slowed down. The worker bees were required to keep moving as fast as they possibly could all day long, in order to get the nectar delivered.

Even while they gathered the nectar in the morning at the delivery beehive, they were observed by the spy bees to be sure they didn't waste a moment transferring the nectar from the flowers to the delivery pouch. The worker bees rapidly began to tire, and they resented the spy bees. Their productivity began to drop.

Some of them longed for the old days before the queen bees. The delivery beehive had not been perfect, but the worker bees had been treated like bees, not like buzz patterns, and most had taken pride in a delivery system that was considerably more efficient than the present one.

MEANWHILE, NECTAR delivery bees throughout the colony watched the experiment in fear, wondering whether they would lose their jobs when the queen bee ordered the plan implemented everywhere — or whether they would be able to keep up the dizzying pace required by the spy bees if they didn't lose their jobs. Neither alternative seemed tolerable.

The only thing left for the nectar delivery bees to do was to tell the colony they would all stop delivering nectar for awhile, and to hope the colony would realize that this latest "solution" of the queen bees would not improve nectar delivery and would be very unfair to the worker bees.

Moral of story: Inefficiency may not necessarily be a problem of the bottom, but of the top.

Marinated ribs delectable

Dear Dorothy: Whenever I see spare-ribs on sale, I buy enough for two meals, freezing one package. The family likes barbecued ribs but asks if I know another way to make them. Might you have something in your file?

—Robin Prothero

Here's a delectable one. It came to me from a really talented cook. Cut three pounds of fresh pork spareribs into small portions. Put them into a large flat dish and cover with the following marinade. To one and one-half cups of soy sauce (Japanese, if possible) add two crushed garlic cloves, two tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon of sherry and one and one-half teaspoons of salt (this only if you don't use Japanese soy sauce). Cover the dish with foil and allow to set overnight. Turn the ribs occasionally, swishing the whole thing around.

When ready to cook, pour off some of the marinade and put the dish in a 350-degree oven for an hour to brown — then pour off all the fat. Bake for another 20 to 30 minutes. Just before the ribs are ready, smear them on both sides with a mixture of a tablespoon of orange marmalade and one-half cup of the marinade.

Dear Dorothy: Have you ever heard of using old nylons for washing walls? If so, how do you get them to hold water?

—Mrs. R. A. Meyers

You can't. That's why I can't imagine nylons working on walls. You simply have to have something that will hold water, like a coarse undershirt or terry-cloth toweling. The coarser and heavier the material, the less elbow grease necessary.

Dear Dorothy: To get rid of the rings around the collars — and also grease from the clothes — use any brand of shampoo before washing. Throw all into the machine and, presto, it works beautifully. The rings come from oily hair.

Secrets of growing tuberous begonias

The most frustrating thing about outdoor gardening in the Midwest is that a person only gets one shot at it per year (during the relatively short growing season), so even if somebody had 25 years experience, as I do, it means that person has practiced outdoor gardening only 25 times. Not very impressive.

Maybe that's why we spend so much time reading and experimenting and trying to cram all we can into each shot.

It's been three years (three times now, to be exact) that I've observed the "Great Mamoo" do his thing with tuberous begonias and each time I get very jealous of this begonia genius, who can make tubers explode into bushy, prolific petal-pushers.

The "Big Mamoo," of course, selfishly keeps all his secrets to himself, so he doesn't have to share anything with anybody. I think he secretly gloats over the fact that he has managed to keep me uninformed, and that I'll have to wait another whole year until I get the chance to spot him in action again.

IT WOULDN'T SURPRISE me if this wily old coot put a brown bag over his begonias when he sees me pull up in his driveway, so I can't observe them. But working with the challenge, I have indeed picked up a few tidbits from this eccentric, who grows tuberous begonias better than anyone I ever knew.

The "Big M" starts his tubers early. When everyone else is saying, "My, only seven and a half weeks until Easter," old "Mamoo" is soaking his tubers in a shallow cookie pan in a half inch of water. (Most people start their tubers right in peat moss or leaf mold-lined flats.) But the "Big M" gets the sprouts growing in water instead, waits until the sprouts are about an inch long, and then plants each tuber separately in a four-inch clay pot, filled with two parts loam, one part peat moss, one quarter ounce bone meal and a half part well-decayed cow manure. The cow manure is most important. For the "Big M," it is a must.

by Mary B. Good

(Note to beginners: When planting the tuber, the smooth, rounded side is planted down; the scooped out side of the tuber faces up!)

GETTING THOSE BEGONIAS started really early (February) instead of the usual March or early April will result in profuse flowering about two weeks after it is safe to set out tomato plants.

Begonias like it shady, moist and cool, so they do well on the north side of the house, where not much will grow.

It is customary to harden begonias when they are moved outdoors. Here's where a coldframe comes in handy. If you don't have a coldframe, cover the begonias with plastic for a few days until the plants get acclimated.

Begonias have a place in every gardener's place, whether viewed from above — planted in the flower bed; from eye level — popped in a window box; or from below — admiring a drooping variety of begonia bred especially for hanging baskets.

Move over, "Big Mamoo," if you read me. This year I'm going to challenge your stronghold!

A Hearty Feast

Valentine's Day is a sentimental occasion. On this holiday, have a buffet supper for the person in your life and good friends. Old-fashioned lace, flowers and the glow of candlelight set the mood for the evening.

The menu for this romantic repast stars Gourmet Chicken Divan, a special entree combining chicken breasts, long grain white and wild rice and broccoli spears in butter sauce. Elegant accompaniments are individual molds of tart Cranberry Freeze and stuffed Fantan Rolls. Dessert is a rich Valentine Torte, naturally good with toasted wheat germ, filled with cherry preserves and enveloped in whipped cream.

As a prelude and through the meal, Valentine Tea Punch is served. Tea is a silent partner in the punch, giving it body without masking the other flavors. The strawberry heart ice mold adds punch bowl interest.

Gourmet Chicken Divan

- 4 whole chicken breasts
- Three 12-oz. packages frozen long grain white and wild rice
- Three 10-oz. packages young broccoli spears frozen in cheese sauce
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon marjoram, crushed
- 1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon
- One 2 1/2-oz. jar whole or sliced mushrooms, drained
- One 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese

Place chicken in large kettle, cover with water and season with salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer 1 to 1 1/2 hours or until tender. Remove chicken from the broth, reserving the broth, cook skin, bone and split each breast. Meanwhile, cook rice and broccoli according to package directions only until thoroughly thawed. Melt butter in small saucepan, stir in flour until smooth. Add broth gradually, stirring constantly until smooth. Stir in salt, pepper and marjoram. Heat slowly, stirring constantly until thickened. In a 2 1/2-quart shallow baking dish, combine broth mixture, bouillon, rice and mushrooms, spread evenly over bottom of dish. Slit broccoli pouches and drain butter sauce into small saucepan, reserve for Creamy Cheese Sauce. Carefully place broccoli spears atop the rice. Arrange the chicken breasts atop the broccoli. Top with about 1/2 of the Creamy Cheese Sauce. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Serve with remaining sauce.

CREAMY CHEESE SAUCE

- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- One 2-oz. jar pimiento, drained and diced
- 1 1/2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Add flour to butter from broccoli pouches, stir until smooth. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly until smooth. Add salt and pepper. Heat, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Add pimiento, cheddar cheese and Parmesan cheese, stir until cheese is melted. Serves 6 to 8.

Valentine Torte

- 1/2 cup vacuum packed wheat germ
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup cocoa
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter, softened
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 3 eggs
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 1/2 cup water
- One 12-oz. jar cherry preserves
- 1 pint whipping cream
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 1/2 square (1/2-oz.) semisweet chocolate, grated
- Long stemmed maraschino cherries, drained

Mix together wheat germ, flour, cocoa, baking powder and salt. Beat together butter and 1 cup sugar. Beat in eggs one at a time. Blend in vanilla. Add dry ingredients alternately with water, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Spread batter in 2 buttered and lightly floured 9 inch layer pans. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 18 to 20 minutes or until toothpick inserted into center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pans and cool on rack. Place one layer on serving plate. Spread with half the preserves. Whip cream with remaining 1/2 cup sugar and almond extract until it holds its shape. Spread 1 cup whipped cream over preserves. Top with second cake layer. Spread with remaining preserves. Frost top and sides of torte with remaining whipped cream. Garnish with grated chocolate and maraschino cherries. Makes one 9 inch cake. 12 or more servings.

Cranberry Freeze

- One 16-oz. can whole cranberry sauce
- One 8 1/2-oz. can crushed pineapple, drained
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts

Combine cranberry sauce and pineapple. Whip cream to form stiff peaks, carefully fold into cranberry-pineapple mixture. Add walnuts. Line a 9x9-inch pan with foil, pour in cranberry mixture. Freeze until firm. Remove from pan and cut into wedges. OR — Pour into 8 individual molds. Freeze until firm. Unmold. Serves 8.

For easy garnish, cut heart shapes from jellied cranberry sauce to garnish top of salad.

Valentine Tea Punch

- 4 tablespoons instant tea
- 8 cups cold water
- 1/2 cup grenadine syrup
- 1 6-oz. can frozen pink lemonade concentrate, undiluted
- 1 4/5-qt. bottle rose wine, chilled
- 1/2 cup orange flavor liqueur (optional)
- 1/2 cup superfine sugar
- 1 quart lemon lime carbonated beverage, chilled

Add instant tea to water, stir until dissolved. Mix in grenadine, lemonade, wine, liqueur and sugar. Chill until ready to serve. Pour into punch bowl or carbonated beverage and ice mold. Makes about 4 quarts.

STRAWBERRY ICE MOLD Pour cold water into heart shaped mold almost to the top. Freeze until solid. Barely cover surface with more cold water and arrange 1 cup sliced strawberries in pattern. (If frozen berries are used, thaw, drain and add syrup to punch.) Return mold to freezer. When berries are frozen in place, add a little more water. Keep in freezer. Unmold by dipping in warm water. Remove ice carefully and place in punch bowl when ready to serve.

Toasted Fantans

- One 12-oz. package fantan style brown-and-serve rolls
- 1/2 cup butter, softened
- 1/2 cup vacuum packed wheat germ
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cut between roll sections to about 1 inch from top. Beat softened butter with wheat germ and cheese. Spread between cuts in rolls. Place on baking sheet. Bake in preheated 425 degree oven for 10 minutes or until golden. Makes one dozen rolls.

Mixing chemistry, cooking

His fancy side dishes spark meals

by LOIS SEILER

Having guests for dinner inspires John Holdertied, Mount Prospect, to get into the kitchen and create a culinary masterpiece or two. His wife, Maxine, selects the entree, and John dresses it up with a few fancy side dishes plus an elegant dessert.

Manager of technical services for Michigan Chemical Corp., John holds a master's degree in chemistry and finds his field compatible with cooking. "In both endeavors, you are trying to create something of value for someone else, or attempting to modify a product in some way to give it more utility," he said.

The limited size of their kitchen prohibits John and Maxine from working together, so John does his bit and departs, leaving the clean-up chores to Maxine. She doesn't mind because his creations are so impressive. But, she said, "men use three times as many pots and pans than women."

WHEN JOHN AND Maxine were first married and both worked, John began cooking out of necessity to help out. He enjoyed it from the start and jokes about some of his early disasters. Since, he has mastered the art of delicate crepes and excellent sour dough bread.

Now, business commitments limit John's culinary activities, so he cooks whenever the mood strikes. However, when company is coming, he is prepared to devote more time to food preparation than most women because he considers it a novelty and a form of relaxation.

One of his favorite first courses is Crab Coquille, made from a recipe featured at Cafe De Paris. John simplified the dish and added a few touches of his own. He uses canned or frozen crabmeat or buys it fresh from Burhop's. The crab is sauted in butter and white wine, then broiled in individual ramekins or seashells covered with a white sauce and Italian-flavored bread crumbs. A popular appetizer, John admits that he enjoys it as much as his guests.

AN IMPRESSIVE dessert is his Baklava, made with filo pastry purchased at a Greek grocery. Paper-thin, the filo is assembled in layers in a jelly roll pan with butter between each layer and a filling of finely-diced walnuts and sugar flavored with cardamom. Cut into diamond shapes before baking, the baked Baklava is then drizzled with hot honey.

Rich in calories (a pound of butter is used with the filo), the Baklava looks so tempting it should be served from the tin in which it was baked. It is light in texture, sweet and flavorful. Luckily, the recipe makes three dozen pieces, as once you start, you can't stop eating 'em!

Eye appeal is important to John. He stresses that food must look as attractive as it tastes. His Schaum Torte qualifies as a most impressive dessert, superb in appearance and taste.

It is made from an old family recipe which John doubles in quantity, using nine egg whites and baking the torte in a spring form pan. Quite high with a crispy outer crust and a soft, marshmallowy texture, it is filled and frosted with fresh strawberries and whipped cream. Because this dessert is rich, it should be served in small portions, said the chef.

JOHN SELDOM cooks the entree for a meal, but when he does, his choice is simple. A hunter and fisherman, one of his favorites is fresh trout fillets grilled with lemon butter or a ham cooked on the grill.

"Maxine is still the chief cook," John said. "I just like to make a meal more elaborate with fancy auxiliary dishes and desserts."

CRAB COQUILLE

8 ounces lump crabmeat, frozen, canned or fresh
1 tablespoon butter
1/8 cup dry white wine
1 cup medium white sauce
Italian flavored bread crumbs
Additional butter

If canned crabmeat is used, drain off liquid and towel-dry.

Melt 1 tablespoon butter in skillet; add crabmeat and wine and saute until liquid evaporates. Divide crabmeat equally among four small ramekins, oven-to-table ware or seashells.

Make white sauce by melting 2 tablespoons butter in a saucepan. Gradually stir in 2 tablespoons flour. Add one cup milk a little at a time, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Season with 1/8 teaspoon salt.

Pour over crabmeat and dust with bread crumbs. Brush tops with melted butter. Place under broiler for about five minutes, or until bubbly and brown. serve hot. Serves 4.

BAKLAVA

1 box filo pastry
1 pound unsalted butter, melted
1 pound finely-diced English walnuts
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cardamom
1 small jar honey (10 to 15 ounces)

Combine walnuts, sugar and cardamom. Blend together and set aside.

Remove filo from box, unwrap and cover with a towel to prevent from drying out.

Using a small amount of butter, lightly grease an 11x16x3/4-inch jelly roll pan. Remove one sheet of filo from the roll, handling carefully. Lay crosswise on the pan; half of the sheet will be on the pan and half extending out on working surface. Using a pastry brush, spread one to two tablespoons of the melted butter evenly over pastry. Fold balance of sheet over and spread with another tablespoon or two of butter. Repeat process until you have a stack of six folded sheets making twelve layers. Then spread the sugar-cardamom nut mixture over this base.

Start again with the filo and repeat buttering, folding and stacking process until all the filo and butter have been used up. Using a sharp knife, make cuts through diagonally so that pastry is cut in diamond shapes approximately two inches long by 1 1/2 inches wide. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 to 45 minutes or until golden brown on top. Remove from oven and set aside.

Heat honey by placing open jar in a saucepan of boiling water for several minutes. Drizzle hot honey into cuts between the diamonds and lastly spoon it over the top. Let cool and serve. Makes approximately three dozen.

SCHAUM TORTE

9 egg whites
3 cups sugar
3/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
2 quarts fresh strawberries
1 pint whipping cream

Add cream of tartar to egg whites and beat with electric beater until frothy. Gradually add sugar, while continuing to beat, 2 to 3 tablespoons at a time at first, and one tablespoon at a time near the end. Continue to beat between additions until sugar is dissolved, scraping sides of bowl frequently with rubber spatula. After all is added, continue to beat until batter is not grainy.

Turn into ungreased 9-inch spring form pan and place in a preheated 275 degree oven. Bake for one hour. Turn off heat and let torte set in oven overnight to dry out. Do not open door.

Reserve three or four of the best strawberries for decoration. Crush remainder, adding sugar to taste.

Chill cream and whip until very stiff. Sweeten with 2 tablespoons granulated sugar and flavor with 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Insert a sharp, thin-bladed knife between torte and sides of pan, sliding knife around perimeter to loosen torte. Remove side walls, but leave torte on bottom of pan. Place on a serving dish that is somewhat saucer shaped to hold the juices on plate. Make a horizontal cut about 1/3 of the way down from the top, removing top. Set aside.

Cover bottom of torte with 1/3 of the crushed strawberries and a little more than 1/3 of the whipped cream. Replace top; cover with remaining strawberries, allowing juices to run down over the sides. Spread remaining whipped cream over the top. Decorate with whole or half strawberries.

Cut in wedges and serve in saucedishes or dessert dishes with tapered sides. Serves 8 to 10.

BAKLAVA, a Greek delight made up of layers of thin pastry and butter, molded with a sweet mixture of walnuts and honey, is not a simple undertaking in the kitchen. John Holdertied, however, lists it among his vast repertoire of scrumptious dessert specialties.

Herald market basket survey

The total cost of a market basket of groceries fell 24 cents last month, according to a price survey on Monday.

Meat prices are down with the exception of ground beef which is up 30 cents and frozen perch up 11 cents on Monday compared with Jan. 6. Round steak is down 24 cents, while bacon reflects a substantial decrease of 46 cents. Bologna is down 4 cents.

Except for eggs, which decreased 20 cents in price, dairy products remained much the same. American cheese is up 4 cents and butter 7 cents. A 20 cent increase in head lettuce was the only increase in fresh fruits and vegetables. Potatoes are down 9 cents and oranges 6 cents.

In the cereals and dry groceries category, sugar prices dropped 54 cents. White bread is up 12 cents and coffee down 3 cents.

Processed fruits and vegetables remained about the same except mixed vegetables which are up 17 cents.

Prices were obtained from a representative Jewel Food Store in Arlington Heights.

Honor Chinese New Year with pork

Most holidays come once a year, but the New Year, in case you have broken your resolutions, can be celebrated twice. After Jan. 1, New Year's Day in the western world, comes Chinese New Year.

Based on a lunar calendar, Chinese New Year falls between Jan. 21 and Feb. 19. This year it's Feb. 11 and on the Chinese calendar it will be the first day of the year 4673... the year of the rabbit. The Chinese say that children born this year will be lucky, talented, ambitious and successful in business.

In Chinese communities, the New Year holiday is the biggest celebration of the year, when people exchange gifts and indulge in family feasts. The New Year meal often includes a variety of pork dishes, because eating pork on New Year's Day is considered lucky.

A classic Chinese pork dish, suited for your own Chinese New Year feast, is Moo Shu Pork. This hearty, fun dish might be described as a "Chinese taco."

Each person places a mound of the pork filling on a thin wheat pancake, folds it up and eats it with the hands. The pancakes may be brushed with a sweet and sour sauce or Chinese hot mustard before serving.

Serve Moo Shu Pork with a side dish of pea pods and sliced water chestnuts.

Pork Filling:

- 1 pound lean boneless pork, cut into julienne strips
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1 clove garlic, finely minced
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 2 eggs, scrambled until slightly dry
- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 1 1/2 cups finely shredded cabbage
- 1 8-ounce can bamboo shoots, rinsed, drained and cut into julienne strips
- 4 scallions, white part diced, green part cut into 2-inch sections
- 1 16-ounce can bean sprouts, rinsed and drained
- 1/4 cup salad oil

Combine pork, soy sauce, sherry, cornstarch, sugar, garlic and ginger in small bowl. In large skillet, over high heat, heat salad oil until very hot. Add meat mixture and cook, stirring rapidly and constantly, until pork is lightly browned. Add mushrooms, cabbage, bamboo shoots, and scallions and continue to cook and stir until cabbage has begun to wilt. Add scrambled eggs and bean sprouts, cooking and stirring until heated through. Transfer to warm bowl for serving.

Wheat Pancakes:

- 2 1/4 cups flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup boiling water
- Salad oil

In large bowl, combine flour and salt. Add boiling water gradually, blending with a fork, until mixture forms granules the size of peas. With hands, shape mixture into ball; knead for about five minutes, until dough becomes soft and smooth. Shape into a cylinder about 16 inches long; cut crosswise into 16 slices. Keep unused slices covered with a damp cloth to prevent drying.

Place two pieces of dough on lightly floured surface and roll each into 3-inch circle. Brush tops lightly with salad oil. Place one piece on top of the other, oiled sides together and roll together into an 8-inch circle, being careful not to let the dough wrinkle itself.

Place on ungreased skillet over medium heat; cook each side of the circle two or three minutes, until blistered with air pockets and pale brown. Remove to heated plate and, with fingers, separate the two layers. Cover with foil to keep warm. Repeat. Serve hot. Yields 8 servings.

Note: Pancakes may be made a day ahead, wrapped and refrigerated, then steamed just before serving. To steam put an inch of water in large kettle. Place pancakes in pie tin; support tin above water level with custard cups. Cover kettle; bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes.

Onion rings easy to make

Record supplies of onions are occupying a prominent spot at local markets. According to marketing specialists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, yellow globes and Spanish onions will be in heavy supply this month.

Onion rings are gaining a permanent place as a winning partner to hamburgers, fried chicken and casseroles. They're also a favorite snack food.

While onion rings are available in processed and ready-to-serve fashion, nothing can compare with homemade French onion rings. Use as little or as much breading as you desire. They offer a big cost savings, a bonus in good eating and are easy to make.

Onion rings can be prepared at any time and kept frozen until they are used. Serve after placing the frozen rings on a baking sheet and heating in a 450 degree oven for five minutes.

One newer recipe featuring buttermilk batter gives them a golden puffed coating. Sweet Spanish onions, now plentiful, are especially good for rings. Cut two Spanish onions in half-inch rings. Dip each ring in a batter of two eggs, 1 1/4 cups buttermilk, 1 1/2 teaspoons salad oil, 1 1/4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon baking powder. Dip and fry a few at a time in deep fat heated to 375 degrees. Drain thoroughly on paper towel and sprinkle with salt. Keep warm in oven until ready to serve.

Noted epicurean likes chicken best

by GENIE CAMPBELL
Epicurean Robert Lawrence Balzer has traveled the world, tasting wines, dining at the most posh of restaurants and sampling every dish ever concocted. But his favorite entree would not make any one of us jealous. Chicken... who hasn't had it? Narrowing his choice even further, Balzer speaks very lovingly of cream of chicken soup.

"Chicken to a cook is like clay to a sculptor. There is an enormous potential there," said the food and beverage editor of Holiday Magazine who was in the Chicago area recently to present the 1975 Holiday Magazine Dining Award to Reinard Barthall, general manager of the Tower Garden and Restaurant in Skokie.

YET THE FOOD expert is very particular about his soup... "cream of chicken that retains the flavor of chicken and nothing else," he said. "He recommends it be made with a basic broth, finely diced chicken and just a hint, perhaps, of celery tops and onions for seasoning. And that's all. To add carrots and things would only ruin the true flavor."

Balzer looks just the opposite of what one would expect of a person who eats and drinks for a living, extremely thin with not the slightest hint of a paunch. That's because he has never over-tipped the scales to be faced with counting calories, and second, he does sample a lot, but never too much at any one time.

"Sometimes it gets embarrassing because people are not only looking at the food, but they're also looking at me to see what I eat," he said demonstrating how he has mastered the art of pushing food all around his plate, spreading it thin to somewhat camouflage the amount.

Occasionally Balzer feels obligated to clean his plate. "Duty eating" is what he calls the situation where he must eat beyond what he really wants. The end result? The same thing that happens to you and me. He becomes uncomfortably stuffed.

BALZER SPENDS a lot of time in his own kitchen back in Santa Ana, Calif., but he bypasses the rich culinary hocus pocus for natural flavor.

"I love fresh vegetables that are directly prepared and not mucked up with all kinds of sauces and creams."

"Cooking is only domestic chemistry," he continued. "And no one need be bound by recipes. A beginning cook needs to know a basic rule and a sauce and be able to look at what is happening in the pan. That's when adventure in cooking begins. And that's when it becomes fun. No one needs a cookbook except for ideas."

For example, Balzer mentioned a chicken recipe he invented when he was looking for something a bit unusual to serve at a small dinner party. He mixes strips of orange and celery in a basic cream sauce with sour cream and freezes the mixture slightly in order to easier stuff breaded chicken breasts. The meat is baked before serving.

"COOKING IS JUST thinking and imagination. Take color for instance. There are only three primary colors — red, blue and yellow. You have to go from there."

With cooking you also have certain basics... flour, milk, eggs and sugar. Then there are the chemicals, cream of tartar, herbs and other seasonings. The processes extend the potentials. The trouble is, many people are afraid to try things," Balzer himself learned to cook testing recipes.

Yet despite his epicurean tastes, Bal-zer is not too proud to admit he enjoys sitting down in front of the television with a big bowl of popcorn. About the only thing he shuns altogether is deep fried foods. He never eats french fries or potato chips. And he is allergic to seafood.

"But I live to make desserts. The time to think about a menu is when you're hungry. Wow, all those cakes with Bavarian cream fillings," he rolls his eyes.

"COOKING IS A kind of therapy for me. There are days when I'm writing and under intense concentration to make deadlines. If an idea doesn't get, I'll do one of two things, either take a nap or bake a cake or bread."

"And during that time it all comes together."

Warm up guests with Toffee Schnecken

When guests come a-calling with winter weather nipping at their cheeks it's up to you, the hostess, to have a warm-up waiting.

A cup of coffee is a good start, but an even better way to welcome your guests, is with hot schnecken, that bakes so easily and has an unusual and crunchy flavor.

TOFFEE SCHNECKEN

Dough:

- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1/2 cup lukewarm water
- 1 cup lukewarm milk
- 1/2 cup soft butter or margarine
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 3 teaspoons salt
- 1 egg, beaten
- 4 1/4 to 5 1/4 cups

altered flour

Filling:

- 1/2 cup soft butter or margarine
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1 1/4 cups chopped chocolate-covered English toffee candy bars (6-1 1/8-ounce bars)
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup

Prepare dough: Dissolve yeast in water. Add milk, butter or margarine, sugar, salt, egg and 2 cups flour; beat until smooth. Stir in enough flour to make stiff dough. Turn onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic. Cover with plastic film and a towel. Let rest 20 minutes.

Make filling while dough is resting: Cream butter or margarine and sugar; stir in chopped toffee and pecans. Punch down dough. Cut into two equal parts. Roll each piece of dough into 12x9 rectangle. Spread each with an equal amount of filling. Roll up tightly beginning at wide side. Cut each roll in 12 slices. Grease muffin pans and place 1 teaspoon corn syrup in bottom of each pan. Arrange slices in pans. Cover loosely with plastic film. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hours.

When ready to bake, remove from refrigerator; uncover and let stand at room temperature while oven is heating, 15 to 25 minutes. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, until done, 20 to 25 minutes. Turn rolls out of pan onto wire rack over waxed paper. Yield: two dozen rolls.

It's a spicy sauce they serve at Crazy Ed's place

For devotees of Dixieland music and excellent barbecued beef ribs, let me recommend Crazy Ed's at 1926 West Deer Valley Road in Phoenix. The slogan "No One Ever Comes Here 'Cause It's Too Crowded" gives you the idea that this is no ordinary place. The walls are decorated with a pattern of old movie posters and the ceiling is an artistic mixture of wagons, old traffic signals, and Western hardware. Drinks, cocktails, beer or water, are served in Kerr canning jars.

But, the food is good and entertainment topnotch. As to eating, you first visit the salad bar which offers tossed greens and ranch beans. Then, order from a menu which offers steaks, seafood, chicken, barbecued beef ribs and believe it or not a "Peanut Butter and Jelly Sandwich for $7.25."

My host recommended the beef ribs. These are served as slabs of 4-inch cut ribs. They are roasted in massive quantities at Crazy Ed's because the price includes all you can eat. The beef is tenderized, then roasted for hours at low temperatures.

When served the ribs are dried over high heat and brushed with barbecue sauce. This can be made hotter if you like by sprinkling the ribs with pepper sauce, but most palates won't need the extra touch.

Here's a recipe for the sauce which is good with ribs or other beef cuts which require braising. This makes 1½ cups. In a large saucepan, mix 1 cup tomato sauce (or catsup) with ¼ cup elder vinegar, and 2 tablespoons oil.

Heat the mixture and add 1 tablespoon molasses (or brown sugar), 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 minced clove of garlic, 1 medium onion, chopped fine, ¼ teaspoon Louisiana hot sauce and 2 teaspoons (or less) of crushed red peppers.

Bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer slowly for five minutes, stirring constantly. Taste and correct seasoning to your choice.

Should you prefer a less spicy sauce, omit the crushed red peppers. Have sauce piping hot when brushing beef ribs.

How to choose onions

When selecting onions, look for large, round onions with burnished, delicate, golden-brown paper-like skins that crackle at the touch. Necks should be dry and show no signs of sprouting.

An herb or a spice?

Even though herbs live side by side on the spice shelf with "true spices," the American Spice Trade Association offers this distinction:

The true spices are parts of aromatic plants grown in the tropics. Herbs are leafy aromatic plants grown in the temperate zone.

Cookbooks, especially older ones, sometimes refer to "sweet herbs," "culinary herbs," "simpling herbs," "pot herbs," and "fines herbes." "Bouquet garni" might be added to this list.

Sweet herbs and culinary herbs are the same thing, seasoning products intended to give intriguing flavor to dishes. "Simpling herbs," also called "simples" are herbs believed to have healing powers. "Pot herbs" are leafy green vegetables such as spinach, kale and cabbage.

"Fines herbes" are a mixture of herbs chopped and added to a sauce or soup. They are eaten along with the other ingredients. "Bouquet garni" is also a mixture of herbs tied together with string or tucked in a square of cheesecloth and cooked with food briefly, then removed, bag and string.

South Vietnam still relying on U.S. supplies, knowhow

SAIGON (UPI) — Small groups of American airmen in faded green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps are back in South Vietnam, leaving the country only briefly every four days to comply with the letter, if not the spirit, of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

The airmen are reorganizing a supply system for critical spare parts that has lapsed into chaos in the two years since American GIs left. U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a Catch-22 end-run around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C-141 transport jet flies the men to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning, an overnight hop of 2,000 miles.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out. "Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese Air Force) straighten itself out."

American sources in Saigon denied the airmen's presence violated the Paris agreement.

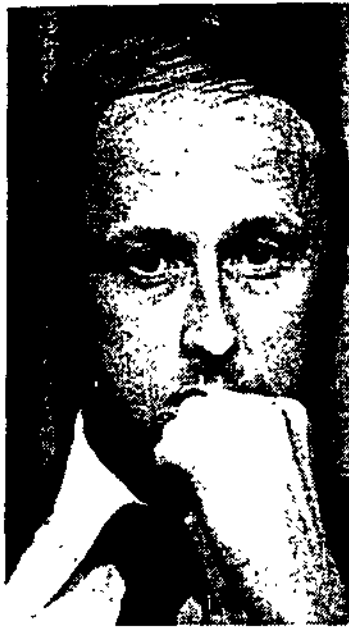

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement."

"This is no more of a ceasefire violation than the provision which requires us to fulfill our obligations. There have been several teams such as this coming in and there will be more," the source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen, of questionable legality at best, underlines how South Vietnam still depends on U.S. military supplies and technical know-how.

CTA funds issue splits RTA board

by STEVE FORSYTH

The rift between city and suburban board members of the Regional Transportation Authority widened Wednesday in a dispute over a move to funnel money directly to the Chicago Transit Authority without RTA board approval.

City board member Nicholas Bosen introduced a resolution that would have allowed himself and new chairman Milton Pikarsky to agree to the terms of a $5 million joint donation from the city and the County Board. His action would have skirted full board approval and allowed the city a $3 million donation to go directly to the CTA.

"You've started to destroy a working relationship between the city and the suburban members," said board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "You've put our chairman on the spot in his first meeting."

THE $5 MILLION donation is required in the RTA law before any money can be given to the CTA, so a $9.3 million grant approved by the board more than a month ago has been held up pending the agreement. The County Board has approved a $2 million contribution and the city will provide the rest, but a formal agreement has not been signed.

Bosen introduced the resolution although the proposed agreement was not

Regulation of airport at issue

High court to decide on Palwaukee case

by JOE FRANZ

The Illinois Supreme Court next May will consider attempts by Wheeling and Cook County to regulate runway length and aircraft weight at Palwaukee Airport, a village official said Wednesday.

A ruling by the high court will decide whether the county and village have the right to place restrictions on airport operations.

The Circuit Court has ruled that the Federal Aviation Administration, not the village or county, has jurisdiction. The ruling was upheld by the Illinois Appellate Court.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said Wednesday the village and county have until Feb. 28 to submit written arguments of its case to the court. After that Palwaukee officials will have 35 days to file a response, he said.

THE VILLAGE and county then will be given 14 days to file a reply before the court sets a date for oral arguments. "I think the Illinois Supreme Court will consider the matter during its May term," Hamer said.

The attorney said the village will attempt to have the lower court decisions overturned because of recent correspondence from the FAA which states the agency has no right to regulate aircraft weights and runways at private airports.

"The lower courts have ruled that the village and county have no jurisdiction over local airports," Hamer said. "The critical consideration is who has jurisdiction, the FAA or the county where the airport is located."

The village and county have maintained since the outset of the legal battle that they have the right to control runways and aircraft weights because of zoning agreements made when the runways were extended in 1963.

WILLIAM ROGERS, chairman of Wheeling's Palwaukee Steering Committee, said Palwaukee was given permission to extend its northwest-southeast runway with the requirement that the airport comply with all FAA and state regulations.

The county permit, he said, restricts the length of the airport's runway and sets a maximum weight for aircraft landing at the airport. The steering committee contends the current length of the runway and the weight of aircraft landing at the airport pose a danger to passengers and to residents living in the path of the runway approach.

Rogers said the airport does not comply with FAA regulations and the appeal to the high court will attempt to force Palwaukee to limit operations on its northwest-southeast runway so it complies with all federal and county regulations.

The lower courts have ruled they do not have the authority to enforce FAA regulations. The previous rulings said that only the FAA can enforce its regulations.

U.S. REP. JACK Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the government activities subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations, recently said Palwaukee apparently fails to meet several FAA standards for runway design. He said, however, FAA officials have told him the standards in question are not a threat to air safety, and they plan no immediate action to make Palwaukee comply.

Rogers said he is hopeful the congressional subcommittee's report will help bolster the village and county's case against Palwaukee Airport. The subcommittee decision was based entirely on information supplied by Rogers.

Palwaukee Airport owner George Priester said Wednesday he will continue to fight the village and county in its attempts to regulate operations at the airport.

"I was really surprised to hear that the Illinois Supreme Court agreed to hear the case after the Appellate Court reached a unanimous decision in the airport's favor," he said. "I just think it's a shame that the people of Wheeling are paying to keep this thing going."

Palwaukee is at the northeast corner of Palatine and Wolf roads, near Wheeling.

Solution to woes caused by bridge closing sought

Closing of the Jeffery Avenue bridge in Wheeling has created some difficulties for students in the Meadowbrook West area who attend Whitman School.

However, the village, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 and Wheeling Park District are working together to remedy the problem.

The bridge has been closed to permit workers to replace the current structure and make flood-control improvements in the Meadowbrook West area. The bridge provided the only access to the area.

WHILE A TEMPORARY road has been provided to the area, students must either walk an additional 18 blocks to school, cut across Heritage Park or use the village bus service.

The walk through the park or use of the bus service has posed problems for students and the school district.

The bus picks students up from Meadowbrook about 8 a.m. and drops them off at school at 8:15 a.m. School does not start until 8:55 a.m., so students are left unsupervised for about a half hour.

Village officials said the bus route could not be changed because people depend on it to get to work. To ease the situation, the school now has someone su-

Wet snow cushioned the walk to the train Wednesday morning.

Snow was fun if you didn't have to work.

'Real' winter may be here

It's been a milder winter than most, but Wednesday's two-inch snowfall and Thursday's prediction of colder weather and more precipitation may change all that.

The slippery and hazardous driving conditions Wednesday will continue as temperatures are expected to remain below freezing today. Snow flurries and northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 m.p.h. and gusting probably will make driving difficult.

The high temperature Thursday will be in the low- or mid-20s, according to the weather bureau, with the low mark expected to be about 5 degrees above zero Thursday night.

Friday also is expected to be cold with temperatures remaining in the 20s.

Sticker deadline wins extensions

Cook County, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have extended deadlines for buying vehicle stickers until March 1 to conform to the new 1975 state license-plate deadline announced by Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

Officials of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove said Wednesday their communities would stick to the Feb. 15 deadline. In Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, no decision had been made Wednesday on extending vehicle license deadlines.

Howlett announced the new mid-March 1 deadline for state license plates because of delays in processing of applications.

Rights-of-way must be obtained

Work on Lake-Cook Road facing legal difficulties

Plans to begin construction in autumn on Lake-Cook Road Improvements in Buffalo Grove are threatened with delay because of difficulties in obtaining rights-of-way, a County Highway Dept. spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman, Francine B. Stuart, Tuesday said officials did not foresee delays in the autumn start of construction despite the right-of-way acquisition difficulties. She said, however, that she "found out differently" Wednesday.

She was unable to say how long condemnation would take if it is required, saying offers have only recently been sent to property owners between Arlington Heights and McHenry roads, the Buffalo Grove boundaries of the project.

Originally, she said officials' only concern was whether delays may have pushed the work back a few months. She said she learned Wednesday from officials that rights agreements could cause delays.

THE COUNTY HIGHWAY department is widening and extending Lake-Cook road from the Edens Expressway, in Highland Park to Ill. Rte. 59 in Barrington. Work is underway on the $3 million project in Northfield Township between the Edens and Waukegan Road.

Improvements are about 9 per cent complete, she said as crews are working their way west.

Essentially, the road will follow the Lake-Cook county line although it will be widened and realigned in some spots.

When finished, Lake-Cook Road will be a major east-west highway through several north and northwest suburbs.

Last year, Buffalo Grove gave the county right-of-way to realign the road around the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Fire district to fight disannexation

The Prospect Heights Rural Fire Protection District is objecting to the annexation of the River Trails Park District's half of the Rob Roy Driving Range by the Village of Mount Prospect.

Fire District Trustee Thomas Harrison said Wednesday the objection was part of a new policy adopted by the fire district to prevent any further disannexations from the fire district. He said the fire district's territory has been whittled away and the board of trustees wants to prevent any further reduction in the size of the district.

persiving students on the playground or in the building once the bus arrives.

STUDENTS WHO WALK through the park must cross a bridge over the Wheeling drainage ditch. The bridge has no guard rails and parents are concerned over the possibility of accidents.

After Wheeling-Edens Dist. 21 officials discussed the problem with the park district and village officials, the village agreed to put a chain-link fence on both sides of the bridge.

One problem yet to be resolved is the schedule of the afternoon bus which is supposed to bring the children home. The bus leaves from Whitman at 3:25 p.m. and school is not dismissed until 3:30 p.m.

Two alternatives have been suggested to resolve this problem. David Burgdorf, Whitman principal, said he would dismiss students who want to use the bus early if parents send a written request.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he also is looking into changing the schedule so students can ride the bus.

MARY NALLEN, a parent in the Meadowbrook West area, said she also is concerned that students crossing the park area are unsupervised.

John Barger, assistant school superintendent, said supervising the area would require an agreement with the park district and that this problem had not been brought to his attention.

"We've all tried to help accommodate a situation which isn't necessarily a good one," he said. "I don't know if we can completely solve it."

The bridge was closed last week and is expected to open in 45 to 60 days.

ESTIMATED RENT for this $100,000 home at 1720 S. Elm Rd., Palatine, is $50 for Forest Preserve employee Richard Morin. The home is one of 105 on district property rented to employees free or at low rates, according to results of an investigation by the Better Government Assn.

BGA hits Forest Preserve for employees' low rents

The Better Government Assn. has criticized Forest Preserve officials for renting houses on forest preserve land to district employees at cut rates.

The BGA, a private watchdog group, disclosed that district employees and supervisors occupy 105 houses on district land at monthly rents of $30 or less. Some pay no rent, the BGA said.

Houses are on property purchased by the district for public use, and are near Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Barrington and several western suburban communities.

The BGA said one employee, Gerald O'Connor, $27,072 head of maintenance and operators for the district, pays only $20 a month to rent a pre-Civil War farmhouse in suburban Westchester.

DISTRICT SUPT. Arthur Janura said the employees, some of whom occupy houses valued at $100,000, are providing a service by maintaining the homes and watching for fires. He said 40 of the houses are near branch headquarters and nature centers, and the other 65 are rented to district personnel so they will be available to fight fires or handle other emergencies.

The BGA charged that the program is "an expensive way to fight fires" since there were only 66 reported last year in the district's more than 24,000 acres. Janura also says he would have to pay $26,000 each for watchmen at the district's 40 isolated headquarters or service areas, if employees were not living near the sites.

Janura said the incentive of low rent is occasionally not enough, because he has two vacant houses he has had difficulty renting to employees.

He said some homes are occupied by former landowners who were allowed to stay as a condition of sale of the properties.

The BGA charges that the district employees who live in houses on district property use local services such as schools, but pay no taxes. A spokesman added that one employee even uses a repainted and remodeled district outhouse as a warming house for his children to wait for the bus.

The girl is 17 years old. She wants to go out on her own, get an apartment, find a job and perhaps go to school.

Like others her age, she needs advice but doesn't want to be told what to do. Unlike most other children, however, she is a ward of the state, and has lived with a succession of foster families. Who does she turn to for help?

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling, is working with the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services in a program called "Transitional Living." It is designed to help foster youths 15 to 18 to live on their own.

THE PROGRAM, to begin March 1, basically provides the foster child a volunteer who will teach him what it is like to live on his own, said Lois Broll, child welfare director for Omni-House.

"The volunteer will be much like a roommate for the ward," Miss Broll said. "The ward will have roommate status, sharing the workload. It's not a mothering situation."

Omni-House will receive about three referrals from the state in March and will eventually work with six to eight wards a year.

The volunteer must be single, at least 21 and living in an apartment. The ward lives with the volunteer, averaging three to six months in length of stay.

During that time, the ward learns all about living on his own. He learns how to budget, carefully parceling money for rent, groceries and other expenditures.

HE ALSO LEARNS to share responsibilities such as cooking, cleaning and maintaining the apartment. He learns the responsibilities of going to work or school, to tailor his schedule so that it would be compatible with his lifestyle.

As a backup service, Omni-House workers provide other services needed, such as counseling or vocational planning.

The "Transitional Living" program is subsidized by the Dept. of Children and Family Services. The foster volunteer will receive financial reimbursement for the care of the ward.

Youths often need to get away from parental domination when they feel they are ready for independence, Miss Broll said, adding that the program is needed because the same holds true for foster youths.

"No matter how old you are, if you're living in a family situation, there will always be somebody telling you what to do," Miss Broll said. Volunteers must be single to avoid a family atmosphere, she added.

BEFORE THE PROGRAM was planned, foster children who wanted to live on their own often were sent without sufficient guidance, Miss Broll said. They tasted independence the hard way.

Omni-House is seeking volunteers for the program. An applicant need not be a college graduate nor have experienced in psychology, Miss Broll said. "We're looking more at the personality of the person."

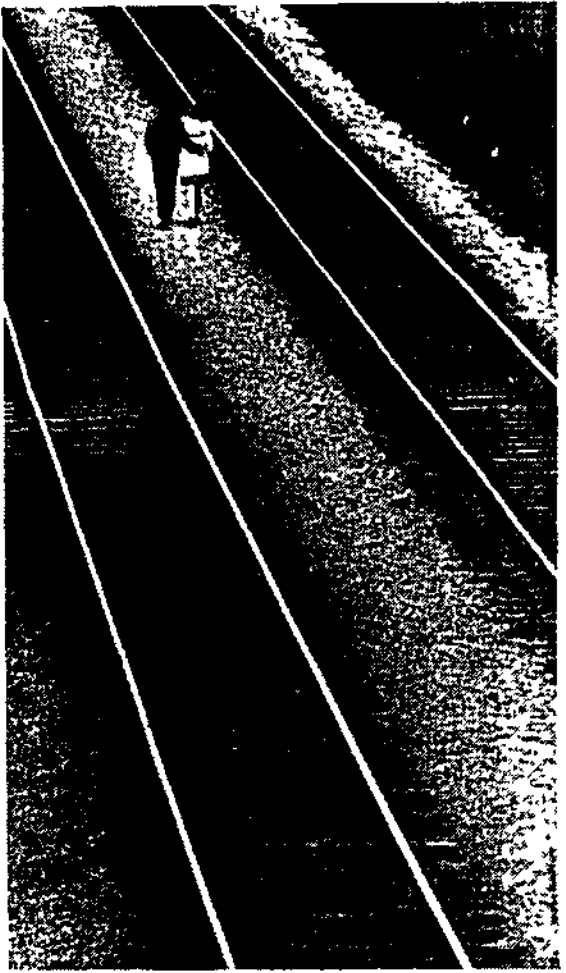

Applicants will be interviewed and screened by the staff at Omni-House. Interviewers will look for such characteristics as maturity, flexibility and others desirable in a volunteer, Miss Broll said.

Foster youths will be referred by the state. Youths wishing to be placed in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships will be referred to Omni-House.

The staff will pair a ward with a volunteer whose personality would be appropriate for the youth, Miss Broll said. The volunteer will undergo training sessions and meet with Omni-House workers and occasionally a state caseworker in weekly meetings.

"The situation has to be looked at all the time," Miss Broll said.

Palatine residents to ask for more police protection

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of three northern Palatine Township subdivisions will meet tonight with Sheriff's Police officials to demand more police protection in their area.

The residents' concerns about police patrol were prompted by the beating-rape of a woman Friday night in the garage of her home in the English Valley subdivision.

Residents of English Valley, as well as the nearby Pepper Tree Farms and Heatherlea subdivisions, will meet with Sheriff's Police officials at 8 p.m. at Lincoln School, 1021 Ridgewood Ln.

Residents of the three subdivisions are charging that more regular police patrol is needed. Many of the residents said they seldom see Sheriff's Police cars patrolling their neighborhoods.

RESIDENTS ALSO said it took about 40 minutes for Sheriff's Police to respond to the Friday night incident. Neighbors first called Palatine police who said they were unable to respond to the call because it was out of their jurisdiction.

Lt. Howard Vanik, Sheriff's Police investigator, said Palatine police then called Sheriff's Police who thought the incident was a domestic disturbance, not a rape.

"We would have responded more quickly to a rape, which is a life-death situation, had we known it was a rape. However, the officers responded as quickly as possible," he said.

Patrolman Fred Braun of the Sheriff's Police said two squad cars are assigned to patrol Palatine Township. Each one-man car patrols the side streets and main roads to either side of Northwest Highway, which divides the township into equal sections, he said.

The squad cars are often required to assist with calls in other areas, leaving one or no Sheriff's Police cars in the unincorporated areas, Braun said.

RESIDENTS FROM the three areas will be discussing ways in which they can provide more protection for themselves "since it is unlikely that the county will be giving more police protection after this whole thing blows over," said Eugene Dorsch, president of the English Valley Homeowners Assn.

Paul Jacobs, president of the Heatherlea Homeowners Assn., said he will propose that residents work toward annexation to the village "as soon as possible" to acquire more regular police protection from Palatine.

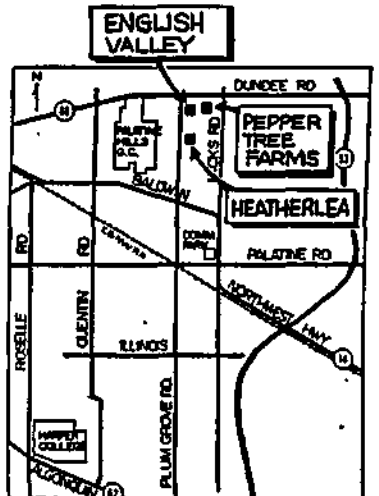

All three homeowners' association presidents said the lack of efficient protection from the Sheriff's Police is prompting residents to support annexation.

"But getting protection from Palatine won't mean that this can't happen again, because rapes occur in the village as well. But just having more police cars driving up and down the streets is liable to scare more criminals away," Dorsch said.

ALICIA MILLER, 1240 Delmar St. in the Pepper Tree Farms subdivision, said she will suggest that homeowners hire an off-duty patrolman to "temporarily patrol the areas."

She also suggested that men in the area could alternate a patrol of the streets by car until the three subdivisions are annexed to the village.

"We pay taxes to the county for police protection and I have never seen a patrol car in my neighborhood. This incident is just giving us more of a reason to annex, even if we aren't crazy about the idea," Mrs. Miller said.

"I don't know what the county will do about improving services for us. But right now, anything is worth a try since the problem is a serious one that affects our safety," Jacobs said.

Wheeling man killed as gas truck explodes

A Wheeling man was killed late Tuesday when the gasoline tanker truck he was driving left the road, rolled over and exploded on U.S. Rte. 14 near Woodstock.

McHenry County Sheriff's Police said Daniel T. Ulrich, 32, of 931 Blaze Tr., apparently was driving west on Rte. 14 near Dunham Road when he lost control of the truck and it rolled into a ditch on the north side of the road. The tanker, carrying 7,800 gallons of gasoline, burst into flames and exploded.

Police are investigating to determine the cause of the crash. There apparently were no witnesses, they said.

Firemen from the Woodstock Rural Fire Dept., Crystal Lake and Harvard fought the blaze for more than two hours before bringing it under control.

The road was closed for six hours early Wednesday while work crews repaired the pavement and cleaned up the remainder of the gasoline. Police said the pavement was damaged by the intense heat and they feared the standing gasoline would pose a hazard to passing motorists.

South Vietnam still relying on U.S. supplies, knowhow

SAIGON (UPI) — Small groups of American airmen in faded green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps are back in South Vietnam, leaving the country only briefly every four days to comply with the letter, if not the spirit, of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

The airmen are reorganizing a supply system for critical spare parts that has lapsed into chaos in the two years since American GIs left. U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a Catch-22 end-run around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C-141 transport jet flies the men to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning, an overnight hop of 2,000 miles.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out. "Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese Air Force) straighten itself out."

American sources in Saigon denied the airmen's presence violated the Paris agreement.

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement."

"This is no more of a ceasefire violation than the provision which requires us to fulfill our obligations. There have been several teams such as this coming in and there will be more," the source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen, of questionable legality at best, underlines how South Vietnam still depends on U.S. military supplies and technical know-how.

CTA funds issue splits RTA board

by STEVE FORSYTH

The rift between city and suburban board members of the Regional Transportation Authority widened Wednesday in a dispute over a move to funnel money directly to the Chicago Transit Authority without RTA board approval.

City board member Nicholas Bosen introduced a resolution that would have allowed himself and new chairman Milton Pikarsky to agree to the terms of a $5 million joint donation from the city and the County Board. His action would have skirted full board approval and allowed the city a $3 million donation to go directly to the CTA.

"You've started to destroy a working relationship between the city and the suburban members," said board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "You've put our chairman on the spot in his first meeting."

THE $5 MILLION donation is required in the RTA law before any money can be given to the CTA, so a $9.3 million grant approved by the board more than a month ago has been held up pending the agreement. The County Board has approved a $2 million contribution and the city will provide the rest, but a formal agreement has not been signed.

Bosen introduced the resolution although the proposed agreement was not

Kenneth Underwood could return 'Book banning' figure may get schools post

by BOB GALLAS

The West Virginia school superintendent who gained national prominence last fall when he became involved in a "Ban-the-book" protest by parents may be considered for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 superintendency. The Herald has learned.

The name of Kenneth S. Underwood was submitted by Judy Zanca, a Dist. 59 board member, to the Illinois Assn. of School Boards to be investigated as a possible candidate for the superintendent position.

Underwood, 46, was superintendent of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 from 1964-66, before taking a job in North Dakota, then in West Virginia.

A SCREENING committee of the state school boards association recently began a nationwide search for candidates for the post, vacated by the forced resignation of James Ertli in December.

The committee is expected to submit a list of five or six final candidates for the job in about two months.

Mrs. Zanca said she submitted Underwood's name to the committee because of the devil," demanded the books be banned permanently.

Underwood was out of town Wednesday and unavailable for comment.

"He hasn't made up his mind yet on what he's going to do," said Underwood's wife, Shirley. When asked if she thought her husband would consider returning to the Northwest suburbs, Mrs. Underwood declined to comment.

Underwood announced his intention to resign last October when one of his supporters on the board resigned, saying he wouldn't "capitulate to mob rule." The member was replaced with a member sympathetic to the protesting parents.

THE WEEKS OF controversy in the school district were marked with violence at times, including threats on Underwood's life.

Underwood left Schaumburg to become superintendent of a Fargo, N.D. school system. He moved to West Virginia in 1971, assuming the post of deputy superintendent because of a one-year residency requirement for superintendents in that state. He became superintendent the following year.

Federal housing funds cause a dilemma

by STEVE BROWN

Federally-subsidized housing. Mix those words together with a dose of apprehension and there are the makings for a dilemma in Des Plaines.

City officials and a specially formed task force have been toiling for two months to prepare an application for federal funds that could bring the city up to $2.5 million under the U. S. Housing and Community Development Act.

In official circles the program already has met opposition. The housing commission and the city council voted narrowly only in favor of forming the task force to develop the detailed application.

SINCE THAT ACTION late last year, however, there has been little reaction or comment on the program. Two public hearings have turned out only a handful of people to comment on the program.

"Our third and final public hearing will be tonight and we would really like to have the public comment on the plan."

said Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning. The session will be at 8 p.m. in the city hall.

Not only has the reaction been minimal at the hearings, the city's aldermen, who are often the public sounding board on controversial issues, indicated in a recent survey that they have not had much reaction to the program.

Generally they believe the lack of reaction means a variety of things. Some believe it represents opposition to the overall program which is aimed at preventing blight and making public improvements that will benefit low-and moderate-income families.

PERHAPS THE strongest feeling offered by the aldermen as an example of reaction from their constituents is the concern being voiced over the possible construction of public housing in Des Plaines.

"They are afraid of another Cabrini-Green being constructed, only this time in Des Plaines," one alderman said.

But another Cabrini-Green is not a realistic fear. This is a message many members of the task force and other city officials have pointed out all along.

The application does call for a housing assistance plan which is supposed to set out a proposal for meeting what the city believes its needs will be for housing for low-and moderate-income families in the future.

RICHARDSON EXPLAINED the city's application will express an interest in the federal rental assistance plan, known as Section 8 Housing. The program provides rent subsidies for low-and moderate-income families.

However the provisions of the program prohibit more than 25 per cent of any

In Illinois Supreme Court

Sanitary district fails to halt city efforts to block plant

A move by the Metropolitan Sanitary District to block further action by Des Plaines officials protesting plans to build a sewage treatment plant in the city has been sidetracked by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Corporation Counsel Robert DiLeonardi of Des Plaines said the Supreme Court rejected a motion by the district to broaden a ruling it won last year preventing the city from exerting its home-rule authority to force the district to adhere to the city's zoning ordinances.

The district's motion was filed about the same time the city filed a new lawsuit in U. S. District Court. The Des Plaines suit seeks to determine if the district must comply with local health ordinances as a condition of seeking federal funding for the project.

DILEONARDI said the Supreme Court ruled the district must file suit in Circuit Court before the Supreme Court could review the matter.

He added that no hearing date has been set on the city's federal action.

Des Plaines and the district have been involved in several court battles over the past nine years. The city has lost two court decisions on appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court challenging various aspects of the proposed plans for the proposed plant, which would be at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

In this latest suit, the city contends that the district must comply with local health regulations in order to qualify for federal funding. The MSD estimates that it would seek about three-fourths of the $94 million cost of the plan from the federal government.

The plant is part of a long-range plan which would provide service for seven area towns.

THE CITY ENACTED a comprehensive health ordinance last year which sets down stringent requirements which must be met by district in order to build the plant.

District officials indicated they have not determined if they will file suit on the matter in Circuit Court. The district has until Feb. 20 to respond to the city's federal suit.

Addition at Apollo

Schools to build administrative center

by LINDA PUNCH

East Maine Dist. 63 will build an administrative service center addition to Apollo Junior High School despite opposition from residents and two board members.

The board approved the center Tuesday night after establishing new boundaries for the four elementary schools west of Milwaukee Avenue. Under the boundary changes, administrative offices at Ballad School must be converted to classrooms for the additional students.

The board said the cost of the center — which will include administrative offices, a storage area and a garage — must not exceed $475,000.

BOARD MEMBERS Larry Reiss and Penny Larson voted against the administrative addition despite other board members' contentions that the district needs a central administrative service center.

Board member Irene Luck termed the present administrative setup in which administrators and consultants are scattered in buildings throughout the district an "inefficient nightmare."

She said the district loses money because supplies can't be bought in bulk due to improper storage facilities. District vehicles also are subject to vandalism and bad weather conditions because there is no garage, she said.

"There's more to adding an educational service center than putting certain personnel in a building," she said. "The

Lunchroom policy change urged

The East Maine Dist. 63 lunchroom committee has completed recommendations for the district's policy on the elementary school lunch program.

The committee presented its recommendations — which alter the current policy — at Tuesday night's meeting of the board. The committee recommends that lunchroom usage be limited to children who:

- Ride a school bus to school.
- Have both parents working and neither can be home for lunch.
- Have a written medical excuse from a physician.
- Have a family crisis.
- Have a lengthy or hazardous work.

Current policy prohibits youngsters from eating lunch at school unless they live more than seven-tenths of a mile from school or have two working parents.

The committee also asked that there be at least one supervisor for each 50 children in the lunchroom. Each school would decide how minimum supervision would be provided, including the use of lunch shifts.

The report suggests that classrooms containing children's belongings not be used as lunchrooms. It also recommends that attendance be taken daily in the lunchroom.

The board asked for the committee to review current policy because of complaints that school lunchrooms are overcrowded and the lunchroom policy is inequitable. Supt. G. Allan Gogo said the overcrowded conditions created health and safety hazards.

money saved could go to educational needs for kids."

REISS SAID THE cost of the center "would far exceed the amount realized." He noted that maintenance costs would be high.

In discussing the storage facility, he said the district "managed quite well without one" when enrollment was larger. When you buy in volume, you're not necessarily getting a better rate."

Reiss and Mrs. Larson said administrative offices could be moved into schools east of Milwaukee Avenue, where enrollment is declining.

The legality of building the administration center without a referendum was also questioned by Mrs. Larson and resident Richard Stone. Dist. 63 officials learned last week that the center could not be built on a district-owned site at Dec Road north of Golf Road without a referendum.

BOARD ATTORNEY Jerome Robbins said the requirement does not apply to the Apollo School site because the administration building would be considered an addition.

Several residents called on the board to hold a referendum to see whether the taxpayers want money spent on an administration building.

Board Pres. Arlene Nidetz said board members didn't want to go through the cost of a referendum when "we know it will fail."

"The only way it would be successful is if we took adequate time to present it to the public," she said. "We have a time factor involved and we have to get the center built by September."

Mrs. Nidetz said $575,000 in a special education fund can be used to build the center and residents' tax rates will not be affected.

Boundaries approved by the board are:

• Ballad School — Starts at the intersection of Golf Road and Greenwood Avenue, east to Milwaukee Avenue, southeast to Dempster Street, west to Cumberland Avenue, south to Main Street, west to Western Avenue, north to Dempster Street, east to Greenwood Avenue, north to Golf Road.

• Shelley Nathanson School — Starts at the intersection of Golf and Potter roads, south to Ballad Road, east to Kennedy Drive, north to Church Street, west to Western Avenue, north to Lyons Street, west to Hamilton Avenue, north to property at 8300 Hamilton Avenue, north to Hamilton Avenue, north to Barbary Lane, west to Dec Road south to Church Street, to Kennedy Drive south to Ballad Road, west to Potter Road south to Dempster Street.

• Mark Twain School — Starts at the intersection of Central Road and Dec Road, east to Milwaukee Avenue, southeast to Golf Road, west to Greenwood Avenue, south to Church Street, west to Parkside Drive, north to Lyons Street, west to Hamilton Avenue, north to property at 8300 Hamilton Avenue, west to Hamilton Avenue, north to Emerson Street, west to Dec Road, north to Central Road, west to Dec Road, north to Central Road.

Mill-River street-link plan revived

by STEVE BROWN

Two Des Plaines aldermen have revived a controversial plan to build a connector street between Mill and River streets downtown.

Oakton gets OK for traffic light at entrance

After nearly four years, officials of Oakton Community College have received permission to install a traffic light on Oakton Street at the entrance to the campus.

David Hilkquist, college vice president, said Wednesday officials of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation have indicated they will give permission for a temporary stoplight at the corner of Oakton and Nagle in Morton Grove. Hilkquist said he and other college officials will meet with Morton Grove officials to discuss funding for the light.

College students and staff members have been complaining for years about the difficulty of turning left onto Oakton Street from the college and of turning toward the college when driving east on Oakton. The state at first refused to grant permission for the light unless the college installed left-turn lanes at the intersection, but has now changed its mind, Hilkquist said.

HILQUIST SAID that once college and Morton Grove officials arrange financing, it will take more than 18 weeks to obtain and install the signal. He said he hopes to have the light in place by the time the next college year starts in August.

"That sounds like a long time," Hilkquist said, "but when you consider all the years we've been working on it, it isn't long at all."

In another issue, Hilkquist said college officials are preparing a reply to the Niles Township High School District Board which has asked if the college might be interested in leasing one of the district's three schools.

Hilkquist said college officials have not yet decided whether they will accept the offer. The Niles board has received a report saying that enrollment projections indicate the district will need only two of its three high schools in 1980.

Aldermen Joseph Szabo and Thomas Koplos, both of the 1st Ward, have ordered the city to develop cost estimates for building the street, which is a key part of a larger plan to build an overpass for Miller Street at River Road.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel decided last October that such a move would be too costly, but apparently a letter he wrote on the topic got lost in the bureaucratic shuffle and no action was taken by the city council.

The issue of the connector street is complicated by plans to build a new condominium development at 1702 Mill St. by Harmony Builders.

EARLIER DEMANDS by the city for a right-of-way for the street have caused the developer, Paul Kron, to change the planned location of the 45-unit structure several times.

When Kron sought a building permit last week, Behrel said Koplos ordered Building Comr. William Baldaccini to delay issuing the document.

Behrel said Koplos does not have the authority to order such a move and said he may let Koplos know about it.

The city had considered a midblock connector street, but Koplos and Szabo contended that the residents of the area did not want a street there. They have pushed for a street at the east end of the block, along land owned by the Forest Preserve District. The city made an effort to obtain enough land for the street from the district, but the district balked at the proposal.

Behrel hinted that the cost of acquiring the right-of-way and building the street could be substantial.

He added that while Kron has offered to give the city the necessary right-of-way, while still be allowed the square footage in his total lot size (one of the factors used to determine how many units may be built on the property) the city might have to purchase land for the north portion of the road that will run to River Street. He said that property has an appraised value of about $90,000.

BEHREL SAID that the city might

River Trails school district to offer added bus service

River Trails Dist. 26 will offer bus service to children attending school outside of their neighborhood under the open-transfer policy.

Previous policy required parents to assume responsibility for transportation if their youngsters transferred to a school outside their home attendance area. Under the policy approved by the board

Tuesday night, parents may contract for bus service.

Supt. John Fridlund said bus service will be provided only if the child can be transported with existing bus routes.

"We are not going to organize special routes for them," he said.

Fridlund said the board decided to revise the policy after a parent asked if the district could extend bus service to youngsters attending schools under the open-transfer policy.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board discussed asking the Mount Prospect Village Board to draw up an ordinance requiring builders of large developments to donate land to the school district.

Fridlund said the board wants an ordinance so that developers must "automatically" donate land to the district so we don't have to keep negotiating."

Dist. 26 officials recently reached an agreement with Kenroy Inc., for the cost of educating youngsters who will live in the proposed 2,350 townhouse and apartment development.

Fridlund noted that the negotiations were time-consuming and that the board "doesn't want to have to do it over and over again."

development to consist of units where the residents receive rent subsidies, he said.

Richardson said that the program is part of the federal government's approach to scattered site housing for low- and moderate-income families rather than massive high rise developments.

HE ADDED THAT the city is interested in hearing from the public on the plan because they are interested in incorporating their views.

Center asks townships for mental health survey

by JILL BETTNER

A township tax levy for mental health is being requested by officials of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center in Elk Grove Village.

Paul Rettberg, president of the center's board of directors, said the center has asked Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships to include a levy in their 1975-76 budgets to provide about $50,000 each for mental health.

Rettberg said the townships have the authority to adopt the levy without referendum under a state law passed about two years ago, but until now have not used the power.

"What we're talking about in terms of a tax would be a very minimal amount to come up with $50,000 spread over the whole township," Rettberg said.

OFFICIALS of both townships have not yet agreed to the tax request, but are expected to take action soon. Budgets for fiscal 1975-76 are being prepared.

In addition to the new tax, officials of the mental health center are seeking continued funding from the townships through federal revenue sharing.

Rettberg said about $63,000 in revenue-sharing funds will be given to the center by Elk Grove Township this year and about $65,000 is to be contributed by Schaumburg Township.

Increased township financial support of the mental health center is an important factor in plans to build a $660,000 center in the next three years.

THE NEW CENTER would replace the current offices in "The Farmhouse" in front of Alexian Brothers Medical Center on Blesterfield Road.

Center officials last month asked the Elk Grove Village Board for a two-acre donation for the new building. Rettberg said three possible sites were suggested to the board last week, all of them in the vicinity of Ill. Rte. 53.

"As soon as we get the thing on the land donation resolved, we'll determine the method of financing the building," Rettberg said. He said the new offices will have to be completed by 1978, when the lease on "The Farmhouse" expires.

Greco Avenue home looted by burglars

A burglary early Wednesday at the home of Keith Wilson, 45, of 2691 Greco Ave., netted thieves more than $400 in appliances, silverware and jewelry, police said.

Wilson told police he discovered the missing items Wednesday morning. Police said entry to the house was apparently gained through a sliding kitchen window although no force was used. An alarm system in the house, which was on when Wilson left the house, was turned off when he arrived home, police said.

Reported missing were two portable black-and-white television sets, three radios, jewelry, two electric razors, a sterling silver tray, coffee urn, candle holders, napkin holders, and silverware, candleabra, coffee pot, electric can opener, typewriter, electric shoe buffer and movie projector.

South Vietnam still relying on U.S. supplies, knowhow

SAIGON (UPI) — Small groups of American airmen in faded green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps are back in South Vietnam, leaving the country only briefly every four days to comply with the letter, if not the spirit, of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

The airmen are reorganizing a supply system for critical spare parts that has lapsed into chaos in the two years since American GIs left. U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a Catch-22 end-run around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C-141 transport jet flies the men to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning, an overnight hop of 2,000 miles.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out. "Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese Air Force) straighten itself out."

American sources in Saigon denied the airmen's presence violated the Paris agreement.

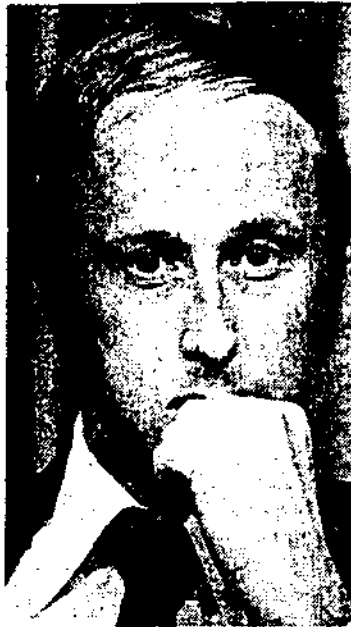

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement."

"This is no more of a ceasefire violation than the provision which requires us to fulfill our obligations. There have been several teams such as this coming in and there will be more," the source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen, of questionable legality at best, underlines how South Vietnam still depends on U.S. military supplies and technical know-how.

CTA funds issue splits RTA board

by STEVE FORSYTH

The rift between city and suburban board members of the Regional Transportation Authority widened Wednesday in a dispute over a move to funnel money directly to the Chicago Transit Authority without RTA board approval.

City board member Nicholas Bosen introduced a resolution that would have allowed himself and new chairman Milton Pikarsky to agree to the terms of a $5 million joint donation from the city and the County Board. His action would have skirted full board approval and allowed the city a $3 million donation to go directly to the CTA.

"You've started to destroy a working relationship between the city and the suburban members," said board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "You've put our chairman on the spot in his first meeting."

THE $5 MILLION donation is required in the RTA law before any money can be given to the CTA, so a $9.3 million grant approved by the board more than a month ago has been held up pending the agreement. The County Board has approved a $2 million contribution and the city will provide the rest, but a formal agreement has not been signed.

Bosen introduced the resolution although the proposed agreement was not

Kenneth Underwood could return

'Book banning' figure may get schools post

by BOB GALLAS

The West Virginia school superintendent who gained national prominence last fall when he became involved in a "Ban-the-book" protest by parents may be considered for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 superintendency. The Herald has learned.

The name of Kenneth S. Underwood was submitted by Judy Zanca, a Dist. 59 board member, to the Illinois Assn. of School Boards to be investigated as a possible candidate for the superintendency position.

Underwood, 46, was superintendent of Schaumburg Township Dist. 34 from 1964-66, before taking a job in North Dakota, then in West Virginia.

A SCREENING committee of the state school boards association recently began a nationwide search for candidates for the post, vacated by the forced resignation of James Erviti in December.

The committee is expected to submit a list of five or six final candidates for the job in about two months.

Mrs. Zanca said she submitted Underwood's name to the committee because

Kenneth Underwood

"I've heard a lot of good things about him. I'd like to see him considered for the job."

Underwood resigned his post as superintendent of the Kanawha County (W. Va.) school system Jan. 31, after a stormy battle with parents. Underwood defended the use of about 300 textbooks that protesting parents called obscene and immoral.

LOCAL CLERGY, saying "God is on our side," and the books are "the work of the devil," demanded the books be banned permanently.

Underwood was out of town Wednesday and unavailable for comment.

"He hasn't made up his mind yet on what he's going to do," said Underwood's wife, Shirley. When asked if she thought her husband would consider returning to the Northwest suburbs, Mrs. Underwood declined to comment.

Underwood announced his intention to resign last October when one of his supporters on the board resigned, saying he wouldn't "capitulate to mob rule." The member was replaced with a member sympathetic to the protesting parents.

THE WEEKS OF controversy in the school district were marked with violence at times, including threats on Underwood's life.

Underwood left Schaumburg to become superintendent of a Fargo, N.D. school system. He moved to West Virginia in 1971, assuming the post of deputy superintendent because of a one-year residency requirement for superintendents in that state. He became superintendent the following year.

To come from townships

Center asks tax levy for mental health

by JILL BETTNER

A township tax levy for mental health is being requested by officials of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center in Elk Grove Village.

Paul Rettberg, president of the center's board of directors, said the center has asked Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships to include a levy in their 1975-76 budgets to provide about $30,000 each for mental health.

Rettberg said the townships have the authority to adopt the levy without referendum under a state law passed about two years ago, but until now have not used the power.

"What we're talking about in terms of a tax would be a very minimal amount to come up with $30,000 spread over the whole township," Rettberg said.

OFFICIALS of both townships have not yet agreed to the tax request, but are expected to take action soon. Budgets for fiscal 1975-76 are being prepared.

In addition to the new tax, officials of the mental health center are seeking continued funding from the townships through federal revenue sharing.

Rettberg said about $93,000 in revenue-sharing funds will be given to the center by Elk Grove Township this year and about $85,000 is to be contributed by Schaumburg Township.

Increased township financial support of the mental health center is an important factor in plans to build a $660,000 center in the next three years.

THE NEW CENTER would replace the current offices in "The Farmhouse" in front of Alexian Brothers Medical Center on Biesterfeld Road.

Center officials last month asked the Elk Grove Village Board for a two-acre donation for the new building. Rettberg said three possible sites were suggested to the board last week, all of them in the vicinity of Ill. Rte. 53.

"As soon as we get the thing on the land donation resolved, we'll determine the method of financing the building," Rettberg said. He said the new offices will have to be completed by 1978, when the lease on "The Farmhouse" expires.

Rotary elects officers

Larry Johnson was recently elected president of the Elk Grove Village Rotary Club for 1975-76. Other newly-elected officers are Roger Baum, secretary, and Larry DeChamps, treasurer.

Wet snow cushioned the walk to the train Wednesday morning.

Snow was fun if you didn't have to work.

'Real' winter may be here

It's been a milder winter than most, but Wednesday's two-inch snowfall and Thursday's prediction of colder weather and more precipitation may change all that.

The slippery and hazardous driving conditions Wednesday will continue as temperatures are expected to remain below freezing today. Snow flurries and northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 m.p.h. and gusting probably will make driving difficult.

The high temperature Thursday will be in the low- or mid-20s, according to the weather bureau, with the low mark expected to be about 5 degrees above zero Thursday night.

Friday also is expected to be cold with temperatures remaining in the 20s.

Sticker deadline wins extensions

Cook County, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have extended deadlines for buying vehicle stickers until March 1 to conform to the new 1975 state license-plate deadline announced by Sec. of State Michael Hawlett.

Officials of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove said Wednesday their communities would stick to the Feb. 15 deadline. In Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, no decision had been made Wednesday on extending vehicle license deadlines.

Hawlett announced the new mid-night March 1 deadline for state license plates because of delays in processing of applications.

Yep, if anything can go rong, it sure as heck will

by JILL BETTNER
An old axiom commonly known as Murphy's Law says, "If anything can possibly go wrong, it will." Elk Grove librarian Janet Steiner recently found out to her dismay just how true that really is.

A library patron who gave her name as Dawn Conway called Miss Steiner in

Village board wrapup

Emergency 911 call study to continue

The Elk Grove Village Board will continue to study the merits of adopting the emergency 911 calling number for police and fire calls.

Trustee Ronald Chernick said Tuesday he was involved in a situation over the weekend in which the emergency number could have been of value. Chernick said he was present at Elk Grove High School early Saturday when an accident occurred in the parking lot and he was asked to call police.

Chernick said he momentarily confused the numbers of the fire and police departments and cited the situation as an example of how the 911 number could have been of use.

The concept of the emergency number is being studied by the judiciary, planning and zoning committee.

Chernick suggested that in its study of implementing the emergency number, the committee also study whether all public phones in the village can be equipped with a listing of emergency numbers including the police and fire departments.

Permit measure OKd

The board approved a resolution calling for any work performed by the village or its contractor on state right-of-ways to have a permit from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

The resolution is adopted annually by the village at the request of the state.

November, asking for information on the origin of Murphy's Law. It took a lot of research, but Miss Steiner looked into the history of the saying and came up with a number of possibilities.

One story said the axiom originated with a bumbling World War II Army private named Murphy who never seemed to do anything right. Constantly bawled out for his mistakes, the poor guy probably said he was the innocent victim of a universal principle and did not have a chance.

OTHER THEORIES make it a part of the folklore of the American theater or have it first put forth by a political writer for Harper's Magazine many years ago, Miss Steinger said.

After gathering all this information, Miss Steiner said, she tried to call Dawn Conway back, but alas, her telephone had been disconnected.

"I guess Murphy's Law must be right," Miss Steiner said, adding that all efforts to track down the elusive Dawn Conway have been unsuccessful. "Now we're sitting here with the answer to her question and we don't have anybody to give it to."

Fire losses down, calls increase 6.6% in village

Fire losses in Elk Grove Village decreased greatly in 1974 although fire calls increased 6.6 per cent, year-end fire department statistics show.

Residential fires were responsible for the greatest fire losses in 1974 and accounted for $91,005 worth of damage, the figures show. The fire-loss total for homes in 1973 was about six times greater and accounted for a $615,995 loss.

Industrial and commercial fire losses for 1974 also declined — from an estimated $480,000 loss in 1973 to a $33,320 loss in 1974.

In contrast to former years, the department answered more industrial and commercial fire calls, but they were less severe.

One major fire in July, at the O'Hare Sheet Metal Co., 930 E. Higgins Rd., was responsible for $100,000 damage.

Another fire in April destroyed Ace King of Clubs, 1100 E. Higgins Rd., with an estimated $70,000 in damages.

The dramatic drops in fire losses are credited to the work of fire prevention and fire preplanning bureaus, said Fire Chief Allen Hulett.

There were no injuries or deaths reported in 1974 due to fires.

Ambulance alarms increased a total of 6.6 per cent with the department handling 2,096 alarms.

Inhalator calls dropped 42 per cent and accident calls increased 65 per cent.

by BETTY LEE

The girl is 17 years old. She wants to go out on her own, get an apartment, find a job and perhaps go to school.

Like others her age, she needs advice but doesn't want to be told what to do. Unlike most other children, however, she is a ward of the state, and has lived with a succession of foster families. Who does she turn to for help?

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling, is working with the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services in a program called "Transitional Living." It is designed to help foster youths 15 to 18 to live on their own.

THE PROGRAM, to begin March 1, basically provides the foster child a volunteer who will teach him what it is like to live on his own, said Lois Broll, child welfare director for Omni-House.

"The volunteer will be much like a roommate for the ward," Miss Broll said. "The ward will have roommate status, sharing the workload. It's not a mothering situation."

Omni-House will receive about three referrals from the state in March and will eventually work with six to eight wards a year.

The volunteer must be single, at least 21 and living in an apartment. The ward lives with the volunteer, averaging three to six months in length of stay.

During that time, the ward learns all about living on his own. He learns how to budget, carefully parceling money for rent, groceries and other expenditures.

HE ALSO LEARNS to share responsibilities such as cooking, cleaning and maintaining the apartment. He learns the responsibilities of going to work or school, to tailor his schedule so that it would be compatible with his lifestyle.

As a backup service, Omni-House workers provide other services needed, such as counseling or vocational planning.

The "Transitional Living" program is subsidized by the Dept. of Children and Family Services. The foster volunteer will receive financial reimbursement for the care of the ward.

Youths often need to get away from parental domination when they feel they are ready for independence, Miss Broll said, adding that the program is needed because the same holds true for foster youths.

"No matter how old you are, if you're living in a family situation, there will always be somebody telling you what to do," Miss Broll said. Volunteers must be single to avoid a family atmosphere, she added.

BEFORE THE PROGRAM was planned, foster children who wanted to live on their own often were sent without sufficient guidance, Miss Broll said. They tasted independence the hard way.

Omni-House is seeking volunteers for the program. An applicant need not be a college graduate nor have experienced in psychology, Miss Broll said. "We're looking more at the personality of the person."

Applicants will be interviewed and screened by the staff at Omni-House. Interviewers will look for such characteristics as maturity, flexibility and others desirable in a volunteer, Miss Broll said.

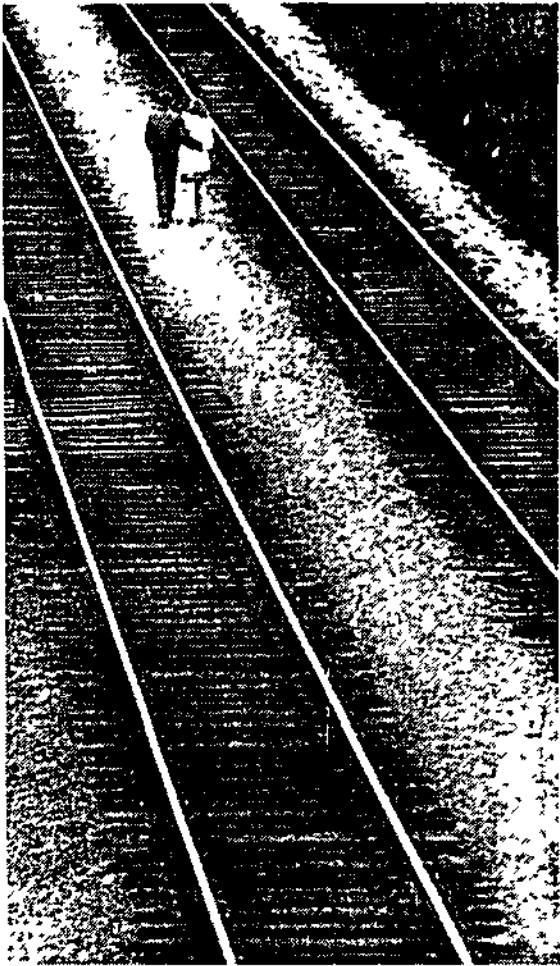

Foster youths will be referred by the state. Youths wishing to be placed in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships will be referred to Omni-House.

The staff will pair a ward with a volunteer whose personality would be appropriate for the youth, Miss Broll said. The volunteer will undergo training sessions and meet with Omni-House workers and occasionally a state caseworker in weekly meetings.

"The situation has to be looked at all the time," Miss Broll said.

Omni-House shows way

Teens need independence — but with a helping hand

To make room for parkways

Village to seek bids on sidewalks

Elk Grove Village officials will seek bids in March on a $225,000 project to relocate two miles of sidewalks to make room for parkways on Elk Grove Boulevard.

Residents will be asked to discuss the project with the capital improvements committee this month.

Construction of the walkways, installation of barrier-type curbs, removal of the walk adjacent to the boulevard and landscaping of newly created parkways will be paid by the village. Board members earmarked $225,000 of federal revenue-sharing funds for the project in 1974.

Trustee Ronald Chernick, chairman of the committee, said every Elk Grove Boulevard homeowner will be notified by letter when the meeting date is set and will be asked to attend the session.

He said landscape relocation will be required on only about 20 of the lots in the two-mile stretch of the boulevard involved in the project.

In most cases, small bushes and plantings will be moved at village expense and replanted by homeowners. Mature trees and plantings will be moved and replanted at village expense by a landscaping contractor or in some cases the sidewalk can be routed around them, Chernick said.

He said the committee has several alternative plans. During a previous committee meeting more than a dozen curves were eliminated and the members decided only mature plantings would be routed around.

The project is expected to take about three months to complete.

ESTIMATED RENT for this $100,000 home at 1720 S. Elm Rd., Palatine, is $50 for Forest Preserve employee Richard Morin. The home is one of 105 on district property rented to employees free or at low rates, according to results of an investigation by the Better Government Assn.

BGA hits Forest Preserve for employes' low rents

The Better Government Assn. has criticized Forest Preserve officials for renting houses on forest preserve land to district employees at cut rates.

The BGA, a private watchdog group, disclosed that district employees and supervisors occupy 106 houses on district land at monthly rents of $50 or less. Some pay no rent, the BGA said.

Houses are on property purchased by the district for public use, and are near Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Barrington and several western suburban communities.

The BGA said one employee, Gerald O'Connor, $27,072 head of maintenance and operators for the district, pays only $20 a month to rent a pre-

Civil War farmhouse in suburban Westchester.

DISTRICT SUPT. Arthur Janura said the employees, some of whom occupy houses valued at $100,000, are providing a service by maintaining the homes and watching for fires. He said 40 of the houses are near branch headquarters and nature centers, and the other 65 are rented to district personnel so they will be available to fight fires or handle other emergencies.

The BGA charged that the program is "an expensive way to fight fires" since there were only 66 reported last year in the district's more than 24,000 acres. Janura also says he would have to pay $26,000 each for watchmen at the district's 40 isolated headquarters or service areas, if employees were not living near the sites.

Janura said the incentive of low rent is occasionally not enough, because he has two vacant houses he has had difficulty renting to employees.

He said some homes are occupied by former landowners who were allowed to stay as a condition of sale of the properties.

The BGA charges that the district employees who live in houses on district property use local services such as schools, but pay no taxes. A spokesman added that one employee even uses a repainted and remodeled district outhouse as a warming house for his children to wait for the bus.

South Vietnam still relying on U.S. supplies, knowhow

SAIGON (UPI) — Small groups of American airmen in faded green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps are back in South Vietnam, leaving the country only briefly every four days to comply with the letter, if not the spirit, of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

The airmen are reorganizing a supply system for critical spare parts that has lapsed into chaos in the two years since American GIs left. U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a Catch-22 end-run around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C-141 transport jet flies the men to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning, an overnight hop of 2,000 miles.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out. "Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese Air Force) straighten itself out."

American sources in Saigon denied the airmen's presence violated the Paris agreement.

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement."

"This is no more of a ceasefire violation than the provision which requires us to fulfill our obligations. There have been several teams such as this coming in and there will be more," the source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen, of questionable legality at best, underlines how South Vietnam still depends on U.S. military supplies and technical know-how.

The United States provides all of South Vietnam's military needs, from items that cost thousands of dollars to 35-cent washers needed to keep helicopters flying. Recent figures showed the economically strapped Saigon government had

by STEVE FORSYTH

The rift between city and suburban board members of the Regional Transportation Authority widened Wednesday in a dispute over a move to funnel money directly to the Chicago Transit Authority without RTA board approval.

City board member Nicholas Bosen introduced a resolution that would have allowed himself and new chairman Milton Pikarsky to agree to the terms of a $3 million joint donation from the city and the County Board. His action would have skirted full board approval and allowed the city a $3 million donation to go directly to the CTA.

"You've started to destroy a working relationship between the city and the suburban members," said board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "You've put our chairman on the spot in his first meeting."

THE $3 MILLION donation is required in the RTA law before any money can be given to the CTA, so a $9.3 million grant approved by the board more than a month ago has been held up pending the agreement. The County Board has approved a $2 million contribution and the city will provide the rest, but a formal agreement has not been signed.

Bosen introduced the resolution although the proposed agreement was not

Final approval of state sought

Hospital site gains OK of zoning board

by STILLING MORITA

The Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals gave the go-ahead Wednesday night for the 160-bed Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's hospital.

The zoning board, in an unusually short hearing, approved annexation of the 40-acre hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads, the necessary zoning change and a building-height variation from 33 to 110 feet.

"Because we're in such a hurry to get this hospital built, we're going to present it to the village board next Tuesday," Russell Parker, zoning board chairman, said.

There is currently no hospital in the Schaumburg area, though plans have been submitted for a hospital in Hoffman Estates.

PLANS FOR THE $16-million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but the hospital plans have not received final approval from the state. Henry Burmann, the branch hospital's administrator, said he expected to file for final approval soon from the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, but said it is not known if the hospital would have to get the nod from the new planning board set up under certificate-of-need legislation.

Burmann told the board construction may start sometime this year. John Reiner, attorney for the Chicago hospital, said the first phase is for 160 beds and that in later phases, when the need arises, the hospital will be expanded 80 beds at a time to the maximum of 400.

Hospital officials must submit a letter stipulating dedication of 50-foot rights-of-way along Barrington and Schaumburg roads, a more intensive traffic study and possible dedication of some land for a well or reservoir.

Kenneth Mullin, a member of the hospital's architectural firm, said the building site and parking were developed along a "loop road" system with parking areas resembling large slices of a pie.

PLANNED ALONG with the hospital is a 20-suite professional office building and a helicopter pad. The main building will have a 220 foot square, two-floor base, upon which two floors for hospital rooms will be built.

Each floor would have 80 beds and four wings, which would cross like an X. If additional beds are required, more floors will be constructed on top of the two-floor, X-pattern. Plans for expansion of the professional building would call for an extension on stilts over a water retention pond at the northwest corner of the site, which is the southeast corner of the intersection. Diagnostic and treatment areas would be in the two-story base.

Planned so far are 474 parking spaces: 157 for visitors, 176 for staff, 131 for outpatients and 10 for emergency. Additional parking would be made by adding decks to existing lots.

Two 4-lane, divided access roads will be provided, one each on Schaumburg and Barrington roads. They will flow into a large loop drive, which will encircle the parking area.

Frank Gagarin, another member of the architectural firm, told the board mercury-vapor lamps would be located and staggered in height so not to disturb patients. Gagarin said the main building is set back more than 400 feet from both roads.

Purchase of the 40-acre tract by Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's was contingent upon successful requests for zoning and annexation to the village. Annexation was made possible by strip annexation of the nearby-Volkering property.

The branch hospital was originally planned for a 20-acre site northeast of Illinois Boulevard and Schaumburg Road. But it was abandoned after it was learned that prices were too high for an adjacent piece of property considered for expansion.

Wet snow cushioned the walk to the train Wednesday morning.

'Book-ban' figure may get school post

by BOB GALLAS

The West Virginia school superintendent who gained national prominence last fall when he became involved in a "Ban-the-book" protest by parents may be considered for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 superintendency. The Herald has learned.

The name of Kenneth S. Underwood was submitted by Judy Zanca, a Dist. 59 board member, to the Illinois Assn. of School Boards to be investigated as a possible candidate for the superintendent position.

Underwood, 46, was superintendent of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 from 1964-66, before taking a job in North Dakota, then in West Virginia.

A SCREENING committee of the state school boards association recently began a nationwide search for candidates for the post, vacated by the forced resignation of James Ertell in December.

The committee is expected to submit a list of five or six final candidates for the job in about two months.

Mrs. Zanca said she submitted Underwood's name to the committee because

"I've heard a lot of good things about him. I'd like to see him considered for the job."

Underwood resigned his post as superintendent of the Kanawha County (W. Va.) school system Jan. 31, after a stormy battle with parents. Underwood defended the use of about 300 textbooks that protesting parents called obscene and immoral.

LOCAL CLERGY, saying "God is on our side," and the books are "the work of the devil," demanded the books be banned permanently.

Underwood was out of town Wednesday and unavailable for comment.

"He hasn't made up his mind yet on what he's going to do," said Underwood's wife, Shirley. When asked if she thought her husband would consider returning to the Northwest suburbs, Mrs. Underwood declined to comment.

Underwood announced his intention to resign last October when one of his supporters on the board resigned, saying he wouldn't "capitulate to mob rule." The member was replaced with a member sympathetic to the protesting parents.

THE WEEKS OF controversy in the school district were marked with violence at times, including threats on Underwood's life.

Underwood left Schaumburg to become superintendent of a Fargo, N.D. school system. He moved to West Virginia in 1971, assuming the post of deputy superintendent because of a one-year residency requirement for superintendents in that state. He became superintendent the following year.

Sticker deadline wins extensions

Cook County, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have extended deadlines for buying vehicle stickers until March 1 to conform to the new 1975 state license-plate deadline announced by Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

Officials of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove said Wednesday their communities would stick to the Feb. 15 deadline. In Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, no decision had been made Wednesday on extending vehicle license deadlines.

Howlett announced the new midnight March 1 deadline for state license plates because of delays in processing of applications.

'Real' winter may be here

It's been a milder winter than most, but Wednesday's two-inch snowfall and Thursday's prediction of colder weather and more precipitation may change all that.

The slippery and hazardous driving conditions Wednesday will continue as temperatures are expected to remain below freezing today. Snow flurries and northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 m.p.h. and gusting probably will make driving difficult.

The high temperature Thursday will be in the low- or mid-20s, according to the weather bureau, with the low mark expected to be about 5 degrees above zero Thursday night.

Friday also is expected to be cold with temperatures remaining in the 20s.

Snow was fun if you didn't have to work.

Jaycees open two-village transit study

How did you travel to this shopping center today?
Would you ride a bus going to or from this shopping center?
What's the highest one-way fare you'd be willing to pay?
Did you come to this railroad station directly from home?

These are examples of questions residents of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are being asked to answer in the first phase of a state and federally funded study to determine local public transportation needs.

Jaycees from both villages are distributing questionnaires this week at Schaumburg's Woodfield and Town Square shopping centers and at Hoffman Plaza, Hoffman Estates. Forms were passed out last week at Palatine, Arlington Park, Roselle and Hanover Park commuter stations.

When completed, the postage paid, self-addressed questionnaire can be dropped in a mailbox for return to the Transit Study Committee, a joint venture by the two villages.

The survey is to estimate potential community use of public bus transportation. It is being done by Jack E. Leisch Associates, Evanston consultants affiliated with Northwestern University Transportation Center.

The cost of the project is $28,000, with about two-thirds of the money coming from a federal grant. Hoffman Estates has agreed to contribute $2,000 and remaining funds will be paid by the Village of Schaumburg, as project sponsor.

Burglars ransack 2 mobile classrooms

Burglars ransacked two mobile classrooms at Hillcrest School in Hoffman Estates and took fire extinguishers and a tape recorder, police said Wednesday.

Tables were overturned, and items strewn across the rooms at the school, 201 Hillcrest Blvd. The crime occurred between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 9 a.m. Wednesday. There were no signs of forced entry, police said.

Township to borrow $20,000 for welfare

The Schaumburg Township Board has approved borrowing $20,000 in tax anticipation warrants from Woodfield Bank to bolster the sagging general assistance fund.

Interest on the warrants is 5.1 percent. The temporary welfare fund has decreased dramatically because of the large number of persons in financial need due to the economy.

ESTIMATED RENT for this $100,000 home at 1720 S. Elia Rd., Palatine, is $50 for Forest Preserve employee Richard Morin. The home is one of 105 on district property rented to employees free or at low rates, according to results of an investigation by the Better Government Assn.

BGA hits Forest Preserve for employees' low rents

The Better Government Assn. has criticized Forest Preserve officials for renting houses on forest preserve land to district employees at cut rates.

The BGA, a private watchdog group, disclosed that district employees and supervisors occupy 103 houses on district land at monthly rents of $30 or less. Some pay no rent, the BGA said.

Houses are on property purchased by the district for public use, and are near Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Barrington and several western suburban communities.

The BGA said one employee, Gerald O'Connor, $27,072 head of maintenance and operators for the district, pays only $20 a month to rent a pre-

Civil War farmhouse in suburban Westchester.

DISTRICT SUPT. Arthur Janura said the employees, some of whom occupy houses valued at $100,000, are providing a service by maintaining the homes and watching for fires. He said 40 of the houses are near branch headquarters and nature centers, and the other 63 are rented to district personnel so they will be available to fight fires or handle other emergencies.

The BGA charged that the program is "an expensive way to fight fires" since there were only 68 reported last year in the district's more than 24,000 acres. Janura also says he would have to pay $20,000 each for watchmen at the district's 40 isolated headquarters or service areas. If employees were not living near the sites.

Janura said the incentive of low rent is occasionally not enough, because he has two vacant houses he has had difficulty renting to employees.

He said some homes are occupied by former landowners who were allowed to stay as a condition of sale of the properties.

The BGA charges that the district employees who live in houses on district property use local services such as schools, but pay no taxes. A spokesman added that one employee even uses a repainted and remodeled district outhouse as a warming house for his children to wait for the bus.

Following beating-rape

Better protection sought in Palatine.

Residents of three northern Palatine Township subdivisions will meet tonight with Sheriff's Police officials to demand more police protection in their area.

The residents' concerns about police patrol were prompted by the beating-rape of a woman Friday night in the garage of her home in the English Valley subdivision.

Residents of English Valley, as well as the nearby Pepper Tree Farms and Heatherlea subdivisions, will meet with Sheriff's Police officials at 8 p.m. at Lincoln School, 1021 Ridgewood Ln.

Residents of the three subdivisions are charging that more regular police patrol is needed. Many of the residents said they seldom see Sheriff's Police cars patrolling their neighborhoods.

RESIDENTS ALSO said it took about 40 minutes for Sheriff's Police to respond to the Friday night incident. Neighbors first called Palatine police who said they were unable to respond to the call because it was out of their jurisdiction.

Lt. Howard Vanik, Sheriff's Police investigator, said Palatine police then called Sheriff's Police who thought the incident was a domestic disturbance, not a rape.

"We would have responded more quickly to a rape, which is a life-death situation, had we known it was a rape. However, the officers responded as quickly as possible," he said.

Patrolman Fred Braun of the Sheriff's Police said two squad cars are assigned to patrol Palatine Township. Each one-man car patrols the side streets and main roads to either side of Northwest Highway, which divides the township into equal sections, he said.

The squad cars are often required to assist with calls in other areas, leaving one or no Sheriff's Police cars in the unincorporated areas, Braun said.

RESIDENTS FROM the three areas will be discussing ways in which they can provide more protection for themselves "since it is unlikely that the county will be giving more police protection after this whole thing blows over," said Eugene Dorsch, president of the English Valley Homeowners Assn.

Paul Jacobs, president of the Heatherlea Homeowners Assn., said he will propose that residents work toward annexation to the village "as soon as possible" to acquire more regular police protection from Palatine.

All three homeowners' association presidents said the lack of efficient protection from the Sheriff's Police is prompting residents to support annexation.

"But getting protection from Palatine won't mean that this can't happen again, because rapes occur in the village as well. But just having more police cars driving up and down the streets is liable to scare more criminals away," Dorsch said.

ALICIA MILLER, 1240 Delmar St. in the Pepper Tree Farms subdivision, said she will suggest that homeowners hire an off-duty patrolman to "temporarily patrol the areas."

She also suggested that men in the area could alternate a patrol of the streets by car until the three subdivisions are annexed to the village.

"We pay taxes to the county for police protection and I have never seen a patrol car in my neighborhood. This incident is just giving us more of a reason to annex, even if we aren't crazy about the idea," Mrs. Miller said.

"I don't know what the county will do about improving services for us. But right now, anything is worth a try since the problem is a serious one that affects our safety," Jacobs said.

Sunday final day to enter Valentine event

Sunday is the deadline for youngsters to enter their homemade Valentines in a contest at the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 W. Library Ln.

Children in Grades 1 through 4 should submit their homemade card with their names, telephone numbers and grades on the back. The Valentines will also serve as registration for the library's Valentine Day party from 1 to 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Registration for various children's programs begins Feb. 17. The programs start the week of Feb. 24 and last for five weeks.

Youngsters in Grades 1 through 3 are invited to sign up for Merry-Go-Round, which includes songs, stories, puppets, games and films. Children in Grades 4 through 6 are eligible for Swing Your Partner, an hour of folk and square dancing. There also are eight preschool story sessions.

Free movies are shown each Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. A free puppet show is the second Saturday of the month at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. at the library.

For information call the library, 825-3371.

Too late to get on April ballot

Vote on home rule ruled out by officials

The possibility of a referendum to gain home-rule powers for Rolling Meadows has been ruled out for the April 15 municipal election, but the idea may be renewed in the next two years.

City officials said Wednesday it is now too late to put home rule on the city election ballot.

Even if the council approved the proposal when it meets next Tuesday, there is not enough time to satisfy legal requirements before April 15, officials said.

CITY ATTY. Donald M. Rose said there must be at least 78 days between the time the council approves the referendum and the election. There are only 64 days from Tuesday's council meeting until the election.

The time requirements are to allow for legal advertisements notifying the public of the referendum and informing voters of the pros and cons, and to print ballots.

Holding a referendum separate from a general city election would cost about $5,000, City Mgr. James Watson estimated. Members of the council's finance, ordinance and judiciary committee agreed the referendum proposal is "academic" for the present because of the cost factor. But Ald. Daniel E. Weber, 4th, said he may promote the referendum again, in time for the next general city election in 1977.

Weber said he favors gaining home-rule status to enable the city to require city inspection of apartments before each new tenant moves in.

THE CITY HAS been under the impression it could not pass such a requirement without home-rule authority. But Rose now is studying a sample ordinance in effect in Milwaukee, Weber said, that might be usable by a non home-rule town under Illinois law. It would include the inspection authority, with other provisions, based on the city's responsibility for public health.

If Rolling Meadows cannot legally approve an ordinance similar to Milwaukee's, it "might have no alternative" but to reconsider a referendum for 1977, Weber said.

Home rule was created under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, giving qualifying municipalities increased taxing and bonding power and authority in other areas, not all of which have been defined. Municipalities without home-rule status are limited in taxing and bonding power, and cannot exceed state law in other areas, such as ethics legislation. The city also has considered local ethics laws, but has been unable to enact them.

Municipalities with 25,000 or more populations automatically become home-rule. Municipalities with lower populations can obtain the same authority by referendum. Rolling Meadows has just under 20,000 residents.

Most council members have expressed opposition to home rule, or indifference, saying the city does not need increased taxing authority and they see no real advantages other than the tax potential.

Some have said a referendum would probably fail because residents would not look favorable on granting unlimited bonding power and expanded taxing options.

City council to 'bug' its own meetings

The Rolling Meadows City Council is going to "bug" its own meetings as a result of a recommendation Wednesday from the council's finance, ordinance and judiciary committee.

The committee will seek a council resolution Feb. 11 authorizing installation of tape-recording equipment in the council chambers, at a cost estimated at about $300. The equipment would be connected to the public address system in the chambers.

City Mgr. James Watson said he obtained the cost estimate at the request of a number of aldermen, who occasionally wonder what it was they said about a particular issue at previous meetings. Council minutes are summaries and not verbatim records.

Watson also said the tapes could be useful in lawsuits, serving as a complete transcript of meetings and being admissible as court evidence to support council actions.

'Real' winter may be here

It's been a milder winter than most, but Wednesday's two-inch snowfall and Thursday's prediction of colder weather and more precipitation may change all that.

The slippery and hazardous driving conditions Wednesday will continue as temperatures are expected to remain below freezing today. Snow flurries and northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 m.p.h. and gusting probably will make driving difficult.

The high temperature Thursday will be in the low- or mid-20s, according to the weather bureau, with the low mark expected to be about 5 degrees above zero Thursday night.

Friday also is expected to be cold with temperatures remaining in the 20s.

Snow was fun if you didn't have to work.

ESTIMATED RENT for this $100,000 home at 1720 S. Elia Rd., Palatine, is $50 for Forest Preserve employee Richard Morin. The home is one of 105 on district property rented to employees free or at low rates, according to results of an investigation by the Better Government Assn.

BGA hits Forest Preserve for employees' low rents

The Better Government Assn. has criticized Forest Preserve officials for renting houses on forest preserve land to district employees at cut rates.

The BGA, a private watchdog group, disclosed that district employees and supervisors occupy 105 houses on district land at monthly rents of $50 or less. Some pay no rent, the BGA said.

Houses are on property purchased by the district for public use, and are near Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Barrington and several western suburban communities.

The BGA said one employee, Gerald O'Connor, $27,072 head of maintenance and operators for the district, pays only $20 a month to rent a pre-

Civil War farmhouse in suburban Westchester.

DISTRICT SUPT. Arthur Janura said the employees, some of whom occupy houses valued at $100,000, are providing a service by maintaining the homes and watching for fires. He said 40 of the houses are near branch headquarters and nature centers, and the other 65 are rented to district personnel so they will be available to fight fires or handle other emergencies.

The BGA charged that the program is "an expensive way to fight fires" since there were only 68 reported last year in the district's more than 24,000 acres. Janura also says he would have to pay $26,000 each for watchmen at the district's 40 isolated headquarters or service areas, if employees were not living near the sites.

Janura said the incentive of low rent is occasionally not enough, because he has two vacant houses he has had difficulty renting to employees.

He said some homes are occupied by former landowners who were allowed to stay as a condition of sale of the properties.

The BGA charges that the district employees who live in houses on district property use local services such as schools, but pay no taxes. A spokesman added that one employee even uses a repainted and remodeled district outhouse as a warming house for his children to wait for the bus.

City to study high-rise code changes

Amendments to the Rolling Meadows high-rise building code and relaxation of fire safety requirements will be discussed by the city council's license, police, health and fire committee today.

The changes were requested by members of the city council after they reviewed a number of requests for variances by builders of high-rise office buildings. Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty supported the variance requests, noting other code provisions or building design factors compensated for the requirements to be waived.

Fogarty said his only objection to the variances is a fear the basic codes would be weakened and the city would risk losing enforcement ability.

By amending the code to eliminate or change some provisions to allow for specific circumstances, the strength of the code will remain intact, officials said.

Other amendments were requested because of conflicting requirements in the codes which developed when the code was strengthened and earlier provisions were not repealed.

Fogarty also is to begin preparation of specifications for a new fire pumper truck, and will be asked to report on progress in the plans. The pumper would be purchased in fiscal 1975-76 and would replace one of two 1958 pumpers being used as front line fire emergency vehicles, City Mgr. James Watson said.

Residents to ask for more protection

Highway, which divides the township into equal sections, he said.

The squad cars are often required to assist with calls in other areas, leaving one or no Sheriff's Police cars in the unincorporated areas, Braun said.

RESIDENTS FROM the three areas will be discussing ways in which they can provide more protection for themselves "since it is unlikely that the county will be giving more police protection after this whole thing blows over," said Eugene Dorsch, president of the English Valley Homeowners Assn.

Paul Jacobs, president of the Heatherlea Homeowners Assn., said he will propose that residents work toward annexation to the village "as soon as possible" to acquire more regular police protection from Palatine.

All three homeowners' association presidents said the lack of efficient protection from the Sheriff's Police is prompting residents to support annexation.

"But getting protection from Palatine won't mean that this can't happen again, because rapes occur in the village as well. But just having more police cars driving up and down the streets is liable to scare more criminals away," Dorsch said.

ALICIA MILLER, 1240 Delmar St. in the Pepper Tree Farms subdivision, said she will suggest that homeowners hire an off-duty patrolman to "temporarily patrol the areas."

She also suggested that men in the area could alternate a patrol of the streets by car until the three subdivisions are annexed to the village.

"We pay taxes to the county for police protection and I have never seen a patrol car in my neighborhood. This incident is just giving us more of a reason to annex, even if we aren't crazy about the idea," Mrs. Miller said.

Center asks tax levy for mental health

By JILL BETTNER

A township tax levy for mental health is being requested by officials of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center in Elk Grove Village.

Paul Rettberg, president of the center's board of directors, said the center has asked Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships to include a levy in their 1975-76 budgets to provide about $30,000 each for mental health.

Rettberg said the townships have the authority to adopt the levy without referendum under a state law passed about two years ago, but until now have not used the power.

"What we're talking about in terms of a tax would be a very minimal amount to come up with $50,000 spread over the whole township," Rettberg said.

OFFICIALS of both townships have not yet agreed to the tax request, but are expected to take action soon. Budgets for fiscal 1975-76 are being prepared.

In addition to the new tax, officials of the mental health center are seeking continued funding from the townships through federal revenue sharing.

Rettberg said about $83,000 in revenue-sharing funds will be given to the center by Elk Grove Township this year and about $65,000 is to be contributed by Schaumburg Township.

Increased township financial support of the mental health center is an important factor in plans to build a $600,000 center in the next three years.

THE NEW CENTER would replace the current offices in "The Farmhouse" in front of Alexian Brothers Medical Center on Bluestield Road.

Center officials last month asked the Elk Grove Village Board for a two-acre donation for the new building. Rettberg said three possible sites were suggested to the board last week, all of them in the vicinity of Ill. Rte. 53.

"As soon as we get the thing on the land donation resolved, we'll determine the method of financing the building," Rettberg said. He said the new offices will have to be completed by 1978, when the lease on "The Farmhouse" expires.

Builder giving parks 42 acres

The donation of 42 acres to the Palatine Park District has been agreed to by the developers of the proposed 365-acre Plum Grove Hills development near Harper College.

Representatives of developer L. F. Draper and Associates told the plan commission Tuesday the land donation would include 10.6 acres immediately adjacent to Birchwood Park on the south.

The other parcels include four acres in the southwest corner of the development and 27 acres including Peregrine Park and surrounding property. Most of this land is within the flood plain.

"The park board is pleased with the agreement that was reached," said Fred Hall, director Palatine Park District. "We are going to have to continue to stay close to the situation as each development is built to make sure the grading is done properly and locations are accessible."

AGREEMENT ON THE donation of land to the park district was one of the final obstacles to approval of the project by the plan commission.

The plan commission has directed Steven Lenet, Palatine administrative assistant, to redraft the preannexation agreement for the 365-acre parcel with all the modifications that have been made since the commission started reviewing the project.

These modifications include a reduction in the number of dwelling units from 2,800 to 1,874, a reduction in the density of several parcels, the donation of a 10-acre school site to Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and the park land. The new annexation agreement will not be presented to the plan commission for approval until next month. The plan commission's recommendation goes to the village board for a final decision.

The plan commission also has asked Lenet to make several studies. These include the overall impact of the devel-

South Vietnam still relying on U.S. supplies, knowhow

SAIGON (UPI) — Small groups of American airmen in faded green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps are back in South Vietnam, leaving the country only briefly every four days to comply with the letter, if not the spirit, of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

The airmen are reorganizing a supply system for critical spare parts that has lapsed into chaos in the two years since American GIs left. U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a Catch-22 end-run around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C-141 transport jet flies the men to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning, an overnight hop of 2,000 miles.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out. "Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese Air Force) straighten itself out."

American sources in Saigon denied the airmen's presence violated the Paris agreement.

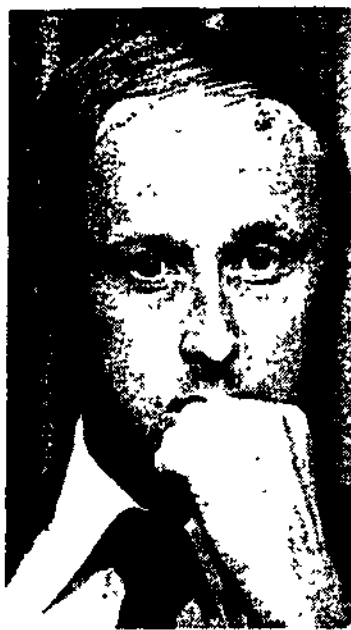

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement."

"This is no more of a ceasefire violation than the provision which requires us to fulfill our obligations. There have been several teams such as this coming in and there will be more," the source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen, of questionable legality at best, underlines how South Vietnam still depends on U.S. military supplies and technical know-how.

CTA funds issue splits RTA board

by STEVE FORSYTH

The rift between city and suburban board members of the Regional Transportation Authority widened Wednesday in a dispute over a move to funnel money directly to the Chicago Transit Authority without RTA board approval.

City board member Nicholas Bosen introduced a resolution that would have allowed himself and new chairman Milton Pikarsky to agree to the terms of a $5 million joint donation from the city and the County Board. His action would have skirted full board approval and allowed the city a $3 million donation to go directly to the CTA.

"You've started to destroy a working relationship between the city and the suburban members," said board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "You've put our chairman on the spot in his first meeting."

THE $5 MILLION donation is required in the RTA law before any money can be given to the CTA, so a $9.3 million grant approved by the board more than a month ago has been held up pending the agreement. The County Board has approved a $2 million contribution and the city will provide the rest, but a formal agreement has not been signed.

Bosen introduced the resolution although the proposed agreement was not

Following beating, rape

Residents to demand more police coverage

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of three northern Palatine Township subdivisions will meet tonight with Sheriff's Police officials to demand more police protection in their area.

The residents' concerns about police patrol were prompted by the beating-rape of a woman Friday night in the garage of her home in the English Valley subdivision.

Residents of English Valley, as well as the nearby Pepper Tree Farms and Heatherlea subdivisions, will meet with Sheriff's Police officials at 8 p.m. at Lincoln School, 1021 Ridgewood Ln.

Residents of the three subdivisions are charging that more regular police patrol is needed. Many of the residents said they seldom see Sheriff's Police cars patrolling their neighborhoods.

RESIDENTS ALSO said it took about 40 minutes for Sheriff's Police to respond to the Friday night incident. Neighbors first called Palatine police who said they were unable to respond to the call because it was out of their jurisdiction.

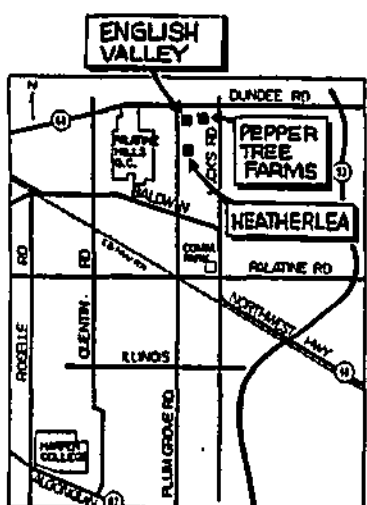

Lt. Howard Vanik, Sheriff's Police investigator, said Palatine police then called Sheriff's Police who thought the incident was a domestic disturbance, not a rape.

"We would have responded more quickly to a rape, which is a life-death situation, had we known it was a rape. However, the officers responded as quickly as possible," he said.

Patrolman Fred Braun of the Sheriff's Police said two squad cars are assigned to patrol Palatine Township. Each one-man car patrols the side streets and main roads to either side of Northwest Highway, which divides the township into equal sections, he said.

The squad cars are often required to assist with calls in other areas, leaving one or no Sheriff's Police cars in the unincorporated areas, Braun said.

RESIDENTS FROM the three areas will be discussing ways in which they can provide more protection for themselves "since it is unlikely that the coun-

All three homeowners' association presidents said the lack of efficient protection from the Sheriff's Police is prompting residents to support annexation.

She also suggested that men in the area could alternate a patrol of the streets by car until the three subdivisions are annexed to the village.

"We pay taxes to the county for police protection and I have never seen a patrol car in my neighborhood. This incident is just giving us more of a reason to annex, even if we aren't crazy about the idea," Mrs. Miller said.

"I don't know what the county will do about improving services for us. But right now, anything is worth a try since the problem is a serious one that affects our safety," Jacobs said.

Builder giving parks 42 acres

The donation of 42 acres to the Palatine Park District has been agreed to by the developers of the proposed 365-acre Plum Grove Hills development near Harper College.

Representatives of developer L. F. Draper and Associates told the plan commission Tuesday the land donation would include 10.6 acres immediately adjacent to Birchwood Park on the south.

The other parcels include four acres in the southwest corner of the development and 27 acres including Peregrine Park and surrounding property. Most of this land is within the flood plain.

These modifications include a reduction in the number of dwelling units from 2,800 to 1,874, a reduction in the density of several parcels, the donation of a 10-acre school site to Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and the park land. The new annexation agreement will not be presented to the plan commission for approval until next month. The plan commission's recommendation goes to the village board for a final decision.

The plan commission also has asked Lenet to make several studies. These include the overall impact of the development, a water study to determine if a well and reservoir would be necessary on the property and an analysis if land on the development should be set aside for a new fire station.

Wet snow cushioned the walk to the train Wednesday morning.

Sticker deadline wins extensions

Cook County, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have extended deadlines for buying vehicle stickers until March 1 to conform to the new 1975 state license-plate deadline announced by Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

Officials of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove said Wednesday their communities would stick to the Feb. 15 deadline. In Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, no decision had been made Wednesday on extending vehicle license deadlines.

Howlett announced the new midnight March 1 deadline for state license plates because of delays in processing of applications.

Snow was fun if you didn't have to work.

'Real' winter may be here

It's been a milder winter than most, but Wednesday's two-inch snowfall and Thursday's prediction of colder weather and more precipitation may change all that.

The slippery and hazardous driving conditions Wednesday will continue as temperatures are expected to remain below freezing today. Snow flurries and northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 m.p.h. and gusting probably will make driving difficult.

The high temperature Thursday will be in the low or mid-20s, according to the weather bureau, with the low mark expected to be about 5 degrees above zero Thursday night.

Friday also is expected to be cold with temperatures remaining in the 20s.

ESTIMATED RENT for this $100,000 home at 1720 S. Ela Rd., Palatine, is $50 for Forest Preserve employee Richard Morin. The home is one of 105 on district property rented to employees free or at low rates, according to results of an investigation by the Better Government Assn.

BGA hits Forest Preserve for employees' low rents

The Better Government Assn. has criticized Forest Preserve officials for renting houses on forest preserve land to district employees at cut rates.

The BGA, a private watchdog group, disclosed that district employees and supervisors occupy 105 houses on district land at monthly rents of $30 or less. Some pay no rent, the BGA said.

Houses are on property purchased by the district for public use, and are near Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Barrington and several western suburban communities.

The BGA said one employee, Gerald O'Connor, $27,072 head of maintenance and operators for a district, pays only $20 a month to rent a pre-

Civil War farmhouse in suburban Westchester.

DISTRICT SUPT. Arthur Janura said the employees, some of whom occupy houses valued at $100,000, are providing a service by maintaining the homes and watching for fires. He said 40 of the houses are near branch headquarters and nature centers, and the other 65 are rented to district personnel so they will be available to fight fires or handle other emergencies.

The BGA charged that the program is "an expensive way to fight fires" since there were only 66 reported last year in the district's more than 24,000 acres. Janura also says he would have to pay $26,000 each for watchmen at the district's 40 isolated headquarters or service areas, if employees were not living near the sites.

Janura said the incentive of low rent is occasionally not enough, because he has two vacant houses he has had difficulty renting to employees.

He said some homes are occupied by former landowners who were allowed to stay as a condition of sale of the properties.

The BGA charges that the district employees who live in houses on district property use local services such as schools, but pay no taxes. A spokesman added that one employee even uses a repainted and remodeled district outhouse as a warming house for his children to wait for the bus.

Garrett runs for Inverness board post

William B. Garrett will run as an independent candidate for the April 15 Inverness Village Board election along with two incumbents for three open seats.

Garrett, 418 Cummock Dr., is a retired lawyer and vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust Co. He and his wife, Grace, have lived in Inverness for 26 years.

A. James Valliere and Walter D. Pugh are incumbents who have filed for reelection to retain their six-year seats on the village board. George Guderley, also a village board member up for reelection, has not filed his petitions and will not comment on whether he plans to run again.

The last day petitions can be filed with the village clerk is Feb. 10.

Garrett has served on the Inverness Plan Commission for six years and has been the chairman of the village's zoning board of appeals.

Garrett said he has "free time to devote to the problems of the village" which he says include the development of vacant property and developing adequate police protection.

Garrett said that he would like to see the village's two-year-old master plan followed more closely, "assuring that the development of vacant property will be within the established residential character of the village," he said.

Village turned down for U.S. funds

Palatine's request for federal funds to hire temporary employees to start a village beautification program has been turned down because the Public Service Employment Funds have run out.

Palatine officials were notified by Cook County officials that all the federal money allocated to the county to create public service jobs for the unemployed has been expended.

Under law the funds were allocated to municipalities with a population of more than 50,000 and areas experiencing a 6.5 per cent unemployment rate. The remainder of the funds were used by Cook County to provide jobs countywide.

Arlington Heights was the only municipality in the Northwest suburbs receiving the emergency employment money. Arlington Heights received $67,017 and has already hired seven employees.

Des Plaines officials turned down the $76,158 they qualified for because they did not want to get involved in a program in which the funds eventually would be cut off.

Thompson will speak at Chamber dinner

U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson will speak at the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry's annual dinner dance Saturday at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Algonquin and Meacham roads, Schaumburg.

The cost is $12 per person. Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., with dinner at 7:45 p.m. Dancing will follow.

The new officers and directors of the organization will be installed at the dinner.

Reservations must be made by Friday, by calling the Chamber at 358-3327.

Seeks to unseat village trustee

Serio criticizes Zajonc voting record

John V. Serio is districting in the voting record of Trustee Fred H. Zajonc in an attempt to capture his village board seat in the April 15 election.

In a prepared statement released this week, Serio charged Zajonc with voting against flood-control measures, calling for higher real estate taxes and demanding the layoff of village personnel. Zajonc said his position on the issues is being misrepresented by Serio.

Zajonc said he was not for higher taxes but said he felt it was "decisive" for the Republican administration to contend it was lowering taxes while it was raising the cost of business licenses and studying new taxes. He suggested if the Republicans were going to raise revenue they should just raise taxes.

SERIO, A REPUBLICAN-backed candidate for Zajonc's seat, said "Zajonc's suggestion to refuse to fill vacancies could leave dangerous gaps in police and fire service. Personnel is the last, not the first, thing that should be reduced."

Zajonc said he was not calling for cuts in essential personnel but saying if some positions become vacant the village should seriously evaluate if it can afford to fill them. He pointed to the engineering department as a department the village might be able to afford cuts.

Serio's statement said Zajonc "stands condemned in the court of public opinion." He pointed to Zajonc's vote against an ordinance banning construction in the flood plain and his vote in favor of the Colfax Street improvement project, which Serio alleges would have flooded homes in the Pleasant Hills area.

But Zajonc countered that since Serio was appointed to the Clean Streams and Flood Committee in September he has a poor attendance record.

Zajonc continues to stand behind his vote in favor of the special assessment project for the improvement of Colfax Street.

Film to feature center for disturbed children

The Palatine District Library will present the film, "Warrendale," Feb. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the library, 149 N. Brockway St.

"Warrendale" is a documentary film about a treatment center for emotionally disturbed children in Toronto, Ont., Canada. The film is one in a monthly series presented by the film discussion group of the library. There is no admission charge.

The film received the Cannes Film Festival Award, and was produced and directed by Allen King Associates for the Canadian Broadcasting Systems.

The local scene

Family night concert

The Gauger Brass, a musical group specializing in religious music, will present a family night concert Sunday at 5 p.m. at the First Methodist Church of Palatine, 123 N. Plum Grove Rd.

The Gauger's consist of a family of two parents and their six children who play a variety of brass and string instruments.

A soup and sandwich banquet will follow the free presentation.

Aid for vets available

South Vietnam still relying on U.S. supplies, knowhow

SAIGON (UPI) — Small groups of American airmen in faded green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps are back in South Vietnam, leaving the country only briefly every four days to comply with the letter, if not the spirit, of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

The airmen are reorganizing a supply system for critical spare parts that has lapsed into chaos in the two years since American GIs left. U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a Catch-22 end-run around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C-141 transport jet flies the men to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning, an overnight hop of 2,000 miles.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out. "Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese Air Force) straighten itself out."

American sources in Saigon denied the airmen's presence violated the Paris agreement.

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement."

"This is no more of a ceasefire violation than the provision which requires us to fulfill our obligations. There have been several teams such as this coming in and there will be more," the source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen, of questionable legality at best, underlines how South Vietnam still depends on U.S. military supplies and technical know-how.

CTA funds issue splits RTA board

by STEVE FORSYTH

The rift between city and suburban board members of the Regional Transportation Authority widened Wednesday in a dispute over a move to funnel money directly to the Chicago Transit Authority without RTA board approval.

City board member Nicholas Bosen introduced a resolution that would have allowed himself and new chairman Milton Pitarsky to agree to the terms of a $5 million joint donation from the city and the County Board. His action would have skirted full board approval and allowed the city a $3 million donation to go directly to the CTA.

"You've started to destroy a working relationship between the city and the suburban members," said board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "You've put our chairman on the spot in his first meeting."

THE $5 MILLION donation is required in the RTA law before any money can be given to the CTA, so a $9.3 million grant approved by the board more than a month ago has been held up pending the agreement. The County Board has approved a $2 million contribution and the city will provide the rest, but a formal agreement has not been signed.

Bosen introduced the resolution although the proposed agreement was not

Kenneth Underwood could return 'Book banning' figure may get schools post

by BOB GALLAS

The West Virginia school superintendent who gained national prominence last fall when he became involved in a "Ban-the-book" protest by parents may be considered for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 superintendency, The Herald has learned.

The name of Kenneth S. Underwood was submitted by Judy Zanca, a Dist. 59 board member, to the Illinois Assn. of School Boards to be investigated as a possible candidate for the superintendent position.

Underwood, 46, was superintendent of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 from 1964-68, before taking a job in North Dakota, then in West Virginia.

A SCREENING committee of the state school boards association recently began a nationwide search for candidates for the post, vacated by the forced resignation of James Ervli in December.

The committee is expected to submit a list of five or six final candidates for the job in about two months.

Mrs. Zanca said she submitted Underwood's name to the committee because

Kenneth Underwood

"I've heard a lot of good things about him. I'd like to see him considered for the job."

Underwood resigned his post as superintendent of the Kanawha County (W. Va.) school system Jan. 31, after a stormy battle with parents. Underwood defended the use of about 300 textbooks that protesting parents called obscene and immoral.

LOCAL CLERGY, saying "God is on our side," and the books are "the work of the devil," demanded the books be banned permanently.

Underwood was out of town Wednesday and unavailable for comment.

"He hasn't made up his mind yet on what he's going to do," said Underwood's wife, Shirley. When asked if she thought her husband would consider returning to the Northwest suburbs, Mrs. Underwood declined to comment.

Underwood announced his intention to resign last October when one of his supporters on the board resigned, saying he wouldn't "capitulate to mob rule." The member was replaced with a member sympathetic to the protesting parents.

THE WEEKS OF controversy in the school district were marked with violence at times, including threats on Underwood's life.

Underwood left Schaumburg to become superintendent of a Fargo, N.D. school system. He moved to West Virginia in 1971, assuming the post of deputy superintendent because of a one-year residency requirement for superintendents in that state. He became superintendent the following year.

Wet snow cushioned the walk to the train Wednesday morning.

Complaints prompt ICC action

State studies Citizens Utilities service

by TOM VON MALDER

Complaints about the quality of water and sewer service provided by Citizens Utilities Co. have prompted a study by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The ICC is looking into the quality of service in addition to considering the Addison firm's request for a 30 per cent rate hike for sewer service. Hearings into water and sewer quality were scheduled because numerous complaints were received from throughout the state, officials said.

Citizens Utilities services 2,350 homes in Mount Prospect and another 500 in unincorporated Waycinden Park near Des Plaines.

Mark Goldstein of the ICC said two quality-of-service hearings have been held downstate. A third hearing is scheduled March 19 in Chicago, but probably will be held sooner, he said.

MOUNT PROSPECT village officials Tuesday night considered whether to hire an attorney to represent village residents in the quality-of-service hearings. The village already has engaged an attorney for the rate-hike hearings.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said the village board should consider the cost of legal representation, which he estimated at $30,000 or $35,000.

Teichert said the village spent more than $9,000 in unsuccessfully fighting the 16.5 per cent hike in water rates and 100 per cent increase in sewer charges granted to Citizens Utilities by the ICC last August. He said the village's fight of the current rate-increase proposal may cost as much as $12,000.

The mayor said the board must decide if it wants to spend that much money contesting rate hikes that affect a small portion of the village. Teichert said the board could "take a survey of 200 people throughout the village, ask for a show of hands or even hold a referendum," but suggested the board members instead rely "on their own abilities" in making the decision.

Teichert's remark was an obvious slam at recent critics of the village

Sticker deadline wins extensions

Cook County, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have extended deadlines for buying vehicle stickers until March 1 to conform to the new 1975 state license-plate deadline announced by Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

Officials of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove said Wednesday their communities would stick to the Feb. 15 deadline. In Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, no decision had been made Wednesday on extending vehicle license deadlines.

Howlett announced the new mid-night March 1 deadline for state license plates because of delays in processing of applications.

Prospects Hts. still an 'orphan'

Snow was fun if you didn't have to work.

'Real' winter may be here

It's been a milder winter than most, but Wednesday's two-inch snowfall and Thursday's prediction of colder weather and more precipitation may change all that.

The slippery and hazardous driving conditions Wednesday will continue as temperatures are expected to remain below freezing today. Snow flurries and northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 m.p.h. and gusting probably will make driving difficult.

The high temperature Thursday will be in the low- or mid-20s, according to the weather bureau, with the low mark expected to be about 5 degrees above zero Thursday night.

Friday also is expected to be cold with temperatures remaining in the 20s.

Citizens Party endorses current government setup

by LYNN ASINOF

The United Citizens Party slate, which includes three Mount Prospect trustees, Wednesday announced a tentative platform including the preservation of the present form of village government.

The tentative platform was released when the five slate members filed their nominating petitions with the village clerk.

At least two independent candidates for the village board have endorsed a change to district representation instead of electing trustees at-large. Edward B. Althea Jr. and Norma Murawski, both seeking two-year board seats, have said district representation will increase board members' accountability to residents.

IN ADDITION to rejecting the concept of district representation, United Citizens Party candidates said they also will work for the extension of the Elk Grove Township senior citizen bus service and subsidized car services. They said they also hope Wheeling Township will introduce a similar service.

The candidates endorsed conversion of the present public library to a recreational and cultural center for senior citizens once a new library is built.

Who's who behind UCP campaign

The campaign organization of the United Citizens Party includes members of the village board's commissions and civic organizations.

Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten, whose term will expire this year, is in charge of campaign finances. The head of the village board's finance committee, Scholten is not seeking reelection.

Campaign chairman James P. Grier Jr. is also a member of the planning commission and headed the group which developed the proposed village comprehensive plan.

One of the co-chairmen for the party is Lennart Lorenson, a recent appointee to the planning commission. Publicity and advertising are being handled by Tom Leo, member of the police and fire commission.

Coffee chairmen include Lynne Bennett, member of the drainage and clean streams commission. Edie Eirich, member of the Parkview Homeowners Assn., is also a coffee chairman.

trustees George B. Anderson, Marie L. Caylor and O.T. Gustus, zoning board chairman Carolyn H. Krause, and newcomer Edward G. Wells, an attorney. Gustus and Mrs. Caylor are seeking two-year terms.

Independents seeking four year board terms include incumbent Trustee Richard N. Hendricks and Theodore Watenberg, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education. Those seeking two-year terms include Leo Floros, Rhea and Mrs. Murawski.

waukee officials will have 35 days to file a response, he said.

THE VILLAGE and county then will be given 14 days to file a reply before the court sets a date for oral arguments. "I think the Illinois Supreme Court will consider the matter during its May term," Hamer said.

The attorney said the village will attempt to have the lower court decisions overturned because of recent correspondence from the FAA which states the agency has no right to regulate aircraft weights and runways at private airports.

"The lower courts have ruled that the village and county have no jurisdiction over local airports," Hamer said. "The critical consideration is who has jurisdiction, the FAA or the county where the airport is located."

The village and county have maintained since the outset of the legal battle that they have the right to control runways and aircraft weights because of zoning agreements made when the runways were extended in 1963.

WILLIAM ROGERS, chairman of Wheeling's Palwaukee Steering Committee, said Palwaukee was given permission to extend its northwest-southeast runway with the requirement that the airport comply with all FAA and state regulations.

The county permit, he said, restricts the length of the airport's runway and sets a maximum weight for aircraft landing at the airport. The steering committee contends the current length of the runway and the weight of aircraft landing at the airport pose a danger to passengers and to residents living in the path of the runway approach.

Rogers said the airport does not comply with FAA regulations and the appeal to the high court will attempt to force Palwaukee to limit operations on its northwest-southeast runway so it complies with all federal and county regulations.

The lower courts have ruled they do not have the authority to enforce FAA regulations. The previous rulings said that only the FAA can enforce its regulations.

U.S. REP. JACK Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the government activities subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations, recently said Palwaukee apparently fails to meet several FAA standards for runway design. He said, however, FAA officials have told him the standards in question are not a threat to air safety, and they plan no immediate action to make Palwaukee comply.

routes for them," he said.

Fridlund said the board decided to revise the policy after a parent asked if the district could extend bus service to youngsters attending schools under the open-transfer policy.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board discussed asking the Mount Prospect Village Board to draw up an ordinance requiring builders of large developments to donate land to the school district.

Fridlund said the board wants an ordinance so that developers must "automatically donate land to the district so we don't have to keep negotiating."

Supreme Court to decide on Palwaukee Airport case

by JOE FRANZ

The Illinois Supreme Court next May will consider attempts by Wheeling and Cook County to regulate runway length and aircraft weight at Palwaukee Airport, a village official said Wednesday.

A ruling by the high court will decide whether the county and village have the right to place restrictions on airport operations.

The Circuit Court has ruled that the Federal Aviation Administration, not the village or county, has jurisdiction. The ruling was upheld by the Illinois Appellate Court.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said Wednesday the village and county have until Feb. 23 to submit written arguments of its case to the court. After that Pal-

River Trails school district to offer added bus service

River Trails Dist. 26 will offer bus service to children attending school outside of their neighborhood under the open-transfer policy.

Previous policy required parents to assume responsibility for transportation if their youngster transferred to a school outside their home attendance area. Under the policy approved by the board Tuesday night, parents may contract for bus service.

Supt. John Fridlund said bus service will be provided only if the child can be transported with existing bus routes. "We are not going to organize special

by BETTY LEE

The girl is 17 years old. She wants to go out on her own, get an apartment, find a job and perhaps go to school.

Like others her age, she needs advice but doesn't want to be told what to do. Unlike most other children, however, she is a ward of the state, and has lived with a succession of foster families. Who does she turn to for help?

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling, is working with the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services in a program called "Transitional Living." It is designed to help foster youths 15 to 18 to live on their own.

THE PROGRAM, to begin March 1, basically provides the foster child a volunteer who will teach him what it is like to live on his own, said Lois Broll, child welfare director for Omni-House.

"The volunteer will be much like a roommate for the ward," Miss Broll said. "The ward will have roommate status, sharing the workload. It's not a mothering situation."

Omni-House will receive about three referrals from the state in March and will eventually work with six to eight wards a year.

The volunteer must be single, at least 21 and living in an apartment. The ward lives with the volunteer, averaging three to six months in length of stay.

During that time, the ward learns all about living on his own. He learns how to budget, carefully parceling money for rent, groceries and other expenditures.

HE ALSO LEARNS to share responsibilities such as cooking, cleaning and maintaining the apartment. He learns the responsibilities of going to work or school, to tailor his schedule so that it would be compatible with his lifestyle.

As a backup service, Omni-House workers provide other services needed, such as counseling or vocational planning.

The "Transitional Living" program is subsidized by the Dept. of Children and Family Services. The foster volunteer will receive financial reimbursement for the care of the ward.

Youths often need to get away from parental domination when they feel they are ready for independence, Miss Broll said, adding that the program is needed because the same holds true for foster youths.

"No matter how old you are, if you're living in a family situation, there will always be somebody telling you what to do," Miss Broll said. Volunteers must be single to avoid a family atmosphere, she added.

BEFORE THE PROGRAM was planned, foster children who wanted to live on their own often were sent without sufficient guidance, Miss Broll said. They tasted independence the hard way.

Omni-House is seeking volunteers for the program. An applicant need not be a college graduate nor have experienced in psychology, Miss Broll said. "We're looking more at the personality of the person."

Applicants will be interviewed and screened by the staff at Omni-House. Interviewers will look for such characteristics as maturity, flexibility and others desirable in a volunteer, Miss Broll said.

Foster youths will be referred by the state. Youths wishing to be placed in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships will be referred to Omni-House.

The staff will pair a ward with a volunteer whose personality would be appropriate for the youth, Miss Broll said. The volunteer will undergo training sessions and meet with Omni-House workers and occasionally a state caseworker in weekly meetings.

"The situation has to be looked at all the time," Miss Broll said.

Center asks tax levy for mental health

by JILL BETTNER

A township tax levy for mental health is being requested by officials of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center in Elk Grove Village.

Paul Rettberg, president of the center's board of directors, said the center has asked Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships to include a levy in their 1975-76 budgets to provide about $30,000 each for mental health.

Rettberg said the townships have the authority to adopt the levy without referendum under a state law passed about two years ago, but until now have not used the power.

"What we're talking about in terms of a tax would be a very minimal amount to come up with $50,000 spread over the whole township," Rettberg said.

OFFICIALS of both townships have not yet agreed to the tax request, but are expected to take action soon. Budgets for fiscal 1975-76 are being prepared.

In addition to the new tax, officials of the mental health center are seeking continued funding from the townships through federal revenue sharing.

Rettberg said about $33,000 in revenue-sharing funds will be given to the center by Elk Grove Township this year and about $65,000 is to be contributed by Schaumburg Township.

Increased township financial support of the mental health center is an important factor in plans to build a $650,000 center in the next three years.

THE NEW CENTER would replace the current offices in "The Farmhouse" in front of Alexian Brothers Medical Center on Blesterfield Road.

Center officials last month asked the Elk Grove Village Board for a two-acre donation for the new building. Rettberg said three possible sites were suggested to the board last week, all of them in the vicinity of Ill. Rte. 53.

"As soon as we get the thing on the land donation resolved, we'll determine the method of financing the building," Rettberg said. He said the new offices will have to be completed by 1978, when the lease on "The Farmhouse" expires.

Linneman Rd. traffic on committee agenda

The fire and police committee of the Mount Prospect Village Board tonight will review proposed traffic improvements for the Linneman Road area.

Trustee George B. Anderson said residents in the area have requested changes to improve traffic conditions, and said the village will make known its plans for the area.

Anderson said the meeting was specifically requested by residents from the Linneman Road area. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at Village Hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

The rift between city and suburban board members of the Regional Transportation Authority widened Wednesday in a dispute over a move to funnel money directly to the Chicago Transit Authority without RTA board approval.

City board member Nicholas Bosen introduced a resolution that would have allowed himself and new chairman Milton Pikarsky to agree to the terms of a $5 million joint donation from the city and the County Board. His action would have skirted full board approval and allowed the city a $3 million donation to go directly to the CTA.

"You've started to destroy a working relationship between the city and the suburban members," said board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "You've put our chairman on the spot in his first meeting."

THE $5 MILLION donation is required in the RTA law before any money can be given to the CTA, so a $9.3 million grant approved by the board more than a month ago has been held up pending the agreement. The County Board has approved a $2 million contribution and the city will provide the rest, but a formal agreement has not been signed.

Bosen introduced the resolution although the proposed agreement was not

'Too big, too expensive'

Trustees attack need for $1 million garage

by KURT BAER

A simmering controversy over spending nearly $1 million for a new Arlington Heights public works garage boiled over Wednesday night with the opening of hearings on the 1975-76 village budget.

Trustee Alice Harms attacked the plan to build a vehicle maintenance garage charging that the garage was too big and too expensive.

"If we had to go to referendum to build this facility where do you think we'd stand?" she said.

The village administration has proposed using the 5 per cent utility tax to pay for the garage which would be built at the public works center, 222 N. Ridge Ave., at a cost of $998,000.

TRUSTEE DAVID Griffin, Caucus Party candidate for village president, also said he had doubts about building the garage as planned.

"We can't afford everything," he said. "I sense the feeling is that we've got the money, so let's spend it."

But other trustees accepted the administration's documentation that the garage is needed to service the 168 village-owned vehicles.

"I wish they'd come in for this building three years ago," said Trustee O. V. Anderson.

"To postpone this building would be reckless economics," said Trustee J. Burton Thompson.

TRUSTEE FRANK Palmatier, chairman of the finance committee that is reviewing the proposed budget, said that, over the life of the building, the construction cost will be minimal compared to the cost of staffing and operating the garage.

"The fact that it costs $1 million is irrelevant," he said at one point. Palmatier proposed long-term financing for the garage rather than using the village's utility tax because this would spread the cost of the garage to future as well as current residents.

"I am confident we can construct this facility, which is badly needed, without any increased cost to the taxpayer," he said.

But opposition to the garage was strong enough that Palmatier eventually deferred a committee vote on its construction in order to ask the building's architect to estimate how much money could be saved if the size of the garage were scaled down.

"I'M A BELIEVER in consensus on these major items and if we can't do better than a 2-1 vote in finance committee, maybe we'd better revise the project," he said.

Gene Willroth, public works director, defended the need for the garage by saying that public works is beginning now to feel the effects of developments that were built 10 and 12 years ago in street maintenance, streetlights and water and sewer repairs. The new garage would permit village employees to do more and better maintenance on village vehicles, he said.

"We've been talking about the need for this building for the last two or three years. This isn't any surprise package," said Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

"It's not a surprise, but there's been no justification for the building up to this point. It's been talk and that's all it's been," said Mrs. Harms.

'Book-banning' figure may get top school post

by BOB GALLAS

The West Virginia school superintendent who gained national prominence last fall when he became involved in a "Ban-the-book" protest by parents may be considered for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 superintendency. The Herald has learned.

The name of Kenneth S. Underwood was submitted by Judy Zanca, a Dist. 59 board member, to the Illinois Assn. of School Boards to be investigated as a possible candidate for the superintendent position.

Underwood, 46, was superintendent of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 from 1964-66, before taking a job in North Dakota, then in West Virginia.

A SCREENING committee of the state school boards association recently began a nationwide search for candidates for the post, vacated by the forced resignation of James Ervill in December.

The committee is expected to submit a list of five or six final candidates for the job in about two months.

Mrs. Zanca said she submitted Underwood's name to the committee because "I've heard a lot of good things about him. I'd like to see him considered for the job."

Underwood resigned his post as superintendent of the Kanawha County (W. Va.) school system Jan. 31, after a stormy battle with parents. Underwood defended the use of about 300 textbooks that protesting parents called obscene and immoral.

LOCAL CLERGY, saying "God is on our side," and the books are "the work of the devil," demanded the books be banned permanently.

Underwood was out of town Wednesday and unavailable for comment.

"He hasn't made up his mind yet on what he's going to do," said Underwood's wife, Shirley. When asked if she thought her husband would consider returning to the Northwest suburbs, Mrs. Underwood declined to comment.

Underwood announced his intention to

Wet snow cushioned the walk to the train Wednesday morning.

Snow was fun if you didn't have to work.

'Real' winter may be here

It's been a milder winter than most, but Wednesday's two-inch snowfall and Thursday's prediction of colder weather and more precipitation may change all that.

The slippery and hazardous driving conditions Wednesday will continue as temperatures are expected to remain below freezing today. Snow flurries and northwesterly winds of 10 to 20 m.p.h. and gusting probably will make driving difficult.

The high temperature Thursday will be in the low- or mid-20s, according to the weather bureau, with the low mark expected to be about 5 degrees above zero Thursday night.

Friday also is expected to be cold with temperatures remaining in the 20s.

Sticker deadline wins extensions

Cook County, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have extended deadlines for buying vehicle stickers until March 1 to conform to the new 1975 state license-plate deadline announced by Sec. of State Michael Howlett.

Officials of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove said Wednesday their communities would stick to the Feb. 15 deadline. In Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, no decision had been made Wednesday on extending vehicle license deadlines.

Howlett announced the new midnight March 1 deadline for state license plates because of delays in processing of applications.

Children's fights topic at Miner

Do your children fight? Would like to know what to do about it?

A discussion group, sponsored by the Family Education Assn., a branch of the Adler Institute, will discuss such topics tonight at Miner Junior High School, 1101 E. Miner St., Arlington Heights.

The group will discuss Rudolph Dreikler's book, "Children the Challenge," starting at 9:30 p.m. Persons interested in attending are asked to contact Fran Simonsen, 398-4286.

Regulation at issue

Supreme Court to decide on Palwaukee Airport case

by JOE FRANZ

The Illinois Supreme Court next May will consider attempts by Wheeling and Cook County to regulate runway length and aircraft weight at Palwaukee Airport, a village official said Wednesday.

A ruling by the high court will decide whether the county and village have the right to place restrictions on airport operations.

The Circuit Court has ruled that the Federal Aviation Administration, not the village or county, has jurisdiction. The ruling was upheld by the Illinois Appellate Court.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said Wednesday the village and county have until Feb. 28 to submit written arguments of its case to the court. After that Palwaukee officials will have 35 days to file a response, he said.

THE VILLAGE and county then will be given 14 days to file a reply before the court sets a date for oral arguments. "I think the Illinois Supreme Court will consider the matter during its May term," Hamer said.

The attorney said the village will at once from the FAA which states the agency has no right to regulate aircraft weights and runways at private airports.

"The lower courts have ruled that the village and county have no jurisdiction over local airports," Hamer said. "The critical consideration is who has jurisdiction, the FAA or the county where the airport is located."

The village and county have maintained since the outset of the legal battle that they have the right to control runways and aircraft weights because of zoning agreements made when the runways were extended in 1963.

WILLIAM ROGERS, chairman of Wheeling's Palwaukee Steering Committee, said Palwaukee was given permission to extend its northwest-southeast runway with the requirement that the airport comply with all FAA and state regulations.

The county permit, he said, restricts the length of the airport's runway and sets a maximum weight for aircraft landing at the airport. The steering committee to have the lower court decisions overturned because of recent correspondence contends the current length of the runway and the weight of aircraft landing at the airport pose a danger to passengers and to residents living in the path of the runway approach.

Rogers said the airport does not comply with FAA regulations and the appeal to the high court will attempt to force Palwaukee to limit operations on its northwest-southeast runway so it complies with all federal and county regulations.

The lower courts have ruled they do not have the authority to enforce FAA regulations. The previous rulings said that only the FAA can enforce its regulations.

U.S. REP. JACK Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the government activities subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations, recently said Palwaukee apparently fails to meet several FAA standards for runway design. He said, however, FAA officials have told him the standards in question are not a threat to air safety, and they plan no immediate action to make Palwaukee comply.

Rogers said he is hopeful the congressional subcommittee's report will help bolster the village and county's case against Palwaukee Airport. The subcommittee decision was based entirely on information supplied by Rogers.

Palwaukee Airport owner George Priester said Wednesday he will continue to fight the village and county in its attempts to regulate operations at the airport.

"I was really surprised to hear that the Illinois Supreme Court agreed to hear the case after the Appellate Court reached a unanimous decision in the airport's favor," he said. "I just think it's a shame that the people of Wheeling are paying to keep this thing going."

Palwaukee is at the northeast corner of Palatine and Wolf roads, near Wheeling.

Residents complain about hazards on new roadway

Residents living near the intersection of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads have complained to police and state officials that the new roadway is hazardous.

Five accidents have been reported on the curving stretch of N. Arlington Heights Road since December. State officials will ask for police reports on the incidents in response to a complaint by one resident.

Les Swieca of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation said he was uncertain what could be done after the reports are examined. The speed limit currently is 30 m.p.h.

The curving stretch was built by the state as part of the Dundee Road widening project completed last summer. Arlington Heights Road was widened to four lanes from University Drive north to Dundee Road and curved west to meet Arlington Heights Road north of Dundee.

One of the residents who complained, Isabel Dinitz, 909 Thornton Ln., Buffalo Grove, said she hopes something can be done to prevent future accidents. "I don't want my daughter going to school around here until this is taken care of," she said.

Capt. Jack Aldrich of Arlington Heights police said five accidents have been reported on that section of N. Arlington Heights Road since early December. Three of the accidents occurred after dark and involved cars leaving the roadway, he said.

The girl is 17 years old. She wants to go out on her own, get an apartment, find a job and perhaps go to school.

Like others her age, she needs advice but doesn't want to be told what to do. Unlike most other children, however, she is a ward of the state, and has lived with a succession of foster families. Who does she turn to for help?

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling, is working with the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services in a program called "Transitional Living." It is designed to help foster youths 15 to 18 to live on their own.

THE PROGRAM, to begin March 1, basically provides the foster child a volunteer who will teach him what it is like to live on his own, said Lois Broll, child welfare director for Omni-House.

"The volunteer will be much like a roommate for the ward," Miss Broll said. "The ward will have roommate status, sharing the workload. It's not a mothering situation."

Omni-House will receive about three referrals from the state in March and will eventually work with six to eight wards a year.

The volunteer must be single, at least 21 and living in an apartment. The ward lives with the volunteer, averaging three to six months in length of stay.

During that time, the ward learns all about living on his own. He learns how to budget, carefully parceling money for rent, groceries and other expenditures.

HE ALSO LEARNS to share responsibilities such as cooking, cleaning and maintaining the apartment. He learns the responsibilities of going to work or school, to tailor his schedule so that it would be compatible with his lifestyle.

As a backup service, Omni-House workers provide other services needed, such as counseling or vocational planning.

The "Transitional Living" program is subsidized by the Dept. of Children and Family Services. The foster volunteer will receive financial reimbursement for the care of the ward.

Youths often need to get away from parental domination when they feel they are ready for independence, Miss Broll said, adding that the program is needed because the same holds true for foster youths.

"No matter how old you are, if you're living in a family situation, there will always be somebody telling you what to do," Miss Broll said. Volunteers must be single to avoid a family atmosphere, she added.

BEFORE THE PROGRAM was planned, foster children who wanted to live on their own often were sent without sufficient guidance, Miss Broll said. They tasted independence the hard way.

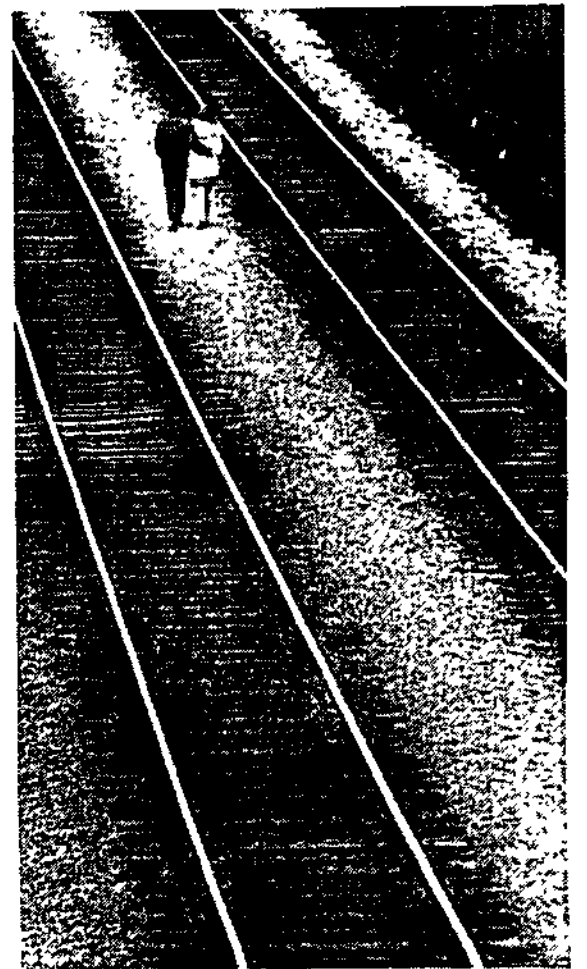

Omni-House is seeking volunteers for the program. An applicant need not be a college graduate nor have experienced in psychology, Miss Broll said. "We're looking more at the personality of the person."

Applicants will be interviewed and screened by the staff at Omni-House. Interviewers will look for such characteristics as maturity, flexibility and others desirable in a volunteer, Miss Broll said.

Foster youths will be referred by the state. Youths wishing to be placed in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships will be referred to Omni-House.

The staff will pair a ward with a volunteer whose personality would be appropriate for the youth, Miss Broll said. The volunteer will undergo training sessions and meet with Omni-House workers and occasionally a state caseworker in weekly meetings.

"The situation has to be looked at all the time," Miss Broll said.

for mental health survey

by JILL BETTNER

A township tax levy for mental health is being requested by officials of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center in Elk Grove Village.

Paul Rettberg, president of the center's board of directors, said the center has asked Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships to include a levy in their 1975-76 budgets to provide about $50,000 each for mental health.

Rettberg said the townships have the authority to adopt the levy without referendum under a state law passed about two years ago, but until now have not used the power.

"What we're talking about in terms of a tax would be a very minimal amount to come up with $50,000 spread over the whole township," Rettberg said.

OFFICIALS of both townships have not yet agreed to the tax request, but are expected to take action soon. Budgets for fiscal 1975-76 are being prepared.

In addition to the new tax, officials of the mental health center are seeking continued funding from the townships through federal revenue sharing.

Rettberg said about $83,000 in revenue-sharing funds will be given to the center by Elk Grove Township this year and about $65,000 is to be contributed by Schaumburg Township.

Increased township financial support of the mental health center is an important factor in plans to build a $680,000 center in the next three years.

THE NEW CENTER would replace the current offices in "The Farmhouse" in front of Alexian Brothers Medical Center on Biesterfeld Road.

Center officials last month asked the Elk Grove Village Board for a two-acre donation for the new building. Rettberg said three possible sites were suggested to the board last week, all of them in the vicinity of Ill. Rte. 53.

"As soon as we get the thing on the land donation resolved, we'll determine the method of financing the building," Rettberg said. He said the new offices will have to be completed by 1978, when the lease on "The Farmhouse" expires.

resign last October when one of his supporters on the board resigned, saying he wouldn't "capitulate to mob rule." The member was replaced with a member sympathetic to the protesting parents.

THE WEEKS OF controversy in the school district were marked with violence at times, including threats on Underwood's life.

Underwood left Schaumburg to become superintendent of a Fargo, N.D. school system. He moved to West Virginia in 1971, assuming the post of deputy superintendent because of a one-year residency requirement for superintendents in that state. He became superintendent the following year.

ESTIMATED RENT for this $100,000 home at 1720 S. Elm Rd., Palatine, is $50 for Forest Preserve employee Richard Morin. The home is one of 105 on district property rented to employees free or at low rates, according to results of an investigation by the Better Government Assn.

BGA hits Forest Preserve for employees' low rents

The Better Government Assn. has criticized Forest Preserve officials for renting houses on forest preserve land to district employees at cut rates.

The BGA, a private watchdog group, disclosed that district employees and supervisors occupy 106 houses on district land at monthly rents of $50 or less. Some pay no rent, the BGA said.

Houses are on property purchased by the district for public use, and are near Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Barrington and several western suburban communities.

The BGA said one employee, Gerald O'Connor, 377,072 head of maintenance and operators for the district, pays only $20 a month to rent a pro-

Civil War farmhouse in suburban Westchester.

DISTRICT SUPT. Arthur Janura said the employees, some of whom occupy houses valued at $100,000, are providing a service by maintaining the homes and watching for fires. He said 40 of the houses are near branch headquarters and nature centers, and the other 65 are rented to district personnel so they will be available to fight fires or handle other emergencies.

The BGA charged that the program is "an expensive way to fight fires" since there were only 66 reported last year in the district's more than 24,000 acres. Janura also says he would have to pay $25,000 each for watchmen at the district's 40 isolated headquarters or service areas, if employees were not living near the sites.

Janura said the incentive of low rent is occasionally not enough, because he has two vacant houses he has had difficulty renting to employees.

He said some homes are occupied by former landowners who were allowed to stay as a condition of sale of the properties.

The BGA charges that the district employees who live in houses on district property use local services such as schools, but pay no taxes. A spokesman added that one employee even uses a repainted and remodeled district outhouse as a warming house for his children to wait for the bus.
